WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Solution of the million dollar Brink's robbery in Boston in January 1950 was announced today by the Justice Department. Eight men are in custody.

None of the loot has been recovered.

Director J. Edgar Hoover said Federal Bureau of Investigation agents had arrested six members of the gang of 11 responsible for the robbery, that two more of the robbers are now in prison in connection with other offenses, one of the participants is dead, and two other are sought.

The announcement followed six years of perhaps the most intensive investigation the FBI has ever concentrated on a single case.

Hoover identified the six arrested persons as: Vincent James Costa, Michael Vincent Gagan, Adolph Maffie, Joseph F. McGinnis, Anthony Pino and Henry Baker. All live in the Boston area.

Two in Prison.
Hoover said the two gangsters now in prison, who were associated with the spectacular raid on the Brinks transfer office in Boston Jan. 17, 1950, are Stanley Albert Gusciora, confined in the Western State Penitentiary at Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joseph James O'Keefe, held in the Hampden county jail at Springfield, Mass.

Hoover identified the dead participant in the robbery as Joseph Sylvester Banfield. Hoover said two others—James Ignatius Faherty and Thomas Francis Richardson—are still being sought in the case.

The men arrested have been charged with bank robbery and theft of Government property and will be arraigned today.

The Brink's loot, carried away by a large group of Halloween-masked men, included $1,218,211 in cash and $1,557,183 in checks, money orders and other securities.

Five Dates to Go.
The federal statute of limitations bars federal prosecution on armed robbery charges three years after the crime, but the six-year state limitation would not have expired for five more days.

United States Attorney Anthony Julian said in Boston that the investigation had never ceased. About six days ago, he said, it was intensified after receipt of "hot information." What that information was he declined to say.

Julian disclosed that $98,000 of the loot was brand-new Federal Reserve notes, known in the underworld as "trouble money."

The United States Attorney said $8700 of the funds was Veterans Administration money.

NEW SENATORIAL DISTRICTS DRAWN FOR USE THIS YEAR

Election Board Corrects 1952 Gerrymander Thrown Out by State Supreme Court.

The Board of Election Commissioners today drew new boundaries for the seven state senatorial districts in St. Louis, to correct the 1952 gerrymander. As a result, Senators will be nominated from new districts in this year's elections.

At the request of Board Chairman Michael J. Doherty, other members of the Election Board prepared individual plans for revising the districts. It was from these plans that the new boundary lines were defined.

Certification of the new district boundaries will be filed with the Secretary of State today, Chairman Doherty said. The Missouri Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision last Nov. 14, ruled that the 1952 redistricting was invalid and violated constitutional requirements for compactness and equality of population.

The court directed that the new districts be drawn in time for the 1956 primary and general elections. Filing time for state senatorial districts April 24.

The redistricting map adopted by Chairman Doherty, it differed only slightly from a map submitted jointly by Commissioners Isaac C. Orr and William E. Buder.

Doherty said the map followed requirements of state law which say districts within counties or cities having more than one district shall be "as compact and nearly equal in population as possible."

Population of the districts, according to the 1950 census, is as follows: District No. 1—123,481; District No. 2—123,508; District No. 3—123,578; District No. 4—123,607; District No. 5—121,945; District No. 6—119,467; District No. 7—121,947.

Commissioner Daniel J. Nack, who submitted two other maps, argued that the Supreme Court decision pointed out that the gerrymandered redistricting had failed to follow natural lines, such as railroad tracks and Forest Park. He said the map submitted by the chairman also failed to follow these lines.

GIVES AWAY AUTO; ALL IT NEEDED WAS NEW POINTS

JACKSON, Tenn., Jan. 12 (AP)—Note to Dominic A. Tata of Niagara Falls, N.Y.: That gift you left in Jackson yesterday turned out to be pointless.

As service station attendant K. K. Hankins tells it, Tata drove his sputtering automobile into Hankins' service station, asked for a fountain pen, asked Hankins' name and then signed over the title of the 1948 Oldsmobile to him. Tata asked for and got a lift to the bus station for himself, his wife and their luggage.

Said Hankins later as he polished his car: "I put a new set of points in the distributor and now it runs like a sewing machine."

NEPAL PEAKS NEAR RED TIBET MAY BE RULED OFF LIMITS

NEW DELHI, Jan. 12 (AP)—Nepal was reported yesterday to be considering declaring its mountains along the Tibet border—including Mount Everest—off limits to mountain climbers.

Informed sources said the buffer state between India and Communist-occupied Tibet was studying this action following the arrest by Communist patrols of two Welsh climbers, Sydney Wignall and John Harrop, and a Nepalese liaison officer in October. They strayed near Tibet when climbing in northwest Nepal.

The incident was said to have embarrassed the Nepalese at a time they were trying to improve relations with the Chinese Reds.

Wignall, Harrop and the Nepalese arrived in New Delhi last night after more than 30 days trekking and riding over bumpy mountain roads.

41 DEGREES AT MIAMI, LOW MARK FOR WINTER

Cold Wave in Sixth Day: No Relief Due From Atlantic Winds.
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP)—The cold northerly wind that has blasted Florida for six consecutive days dropped Miami's temperature to 41 early today, the low mark of the winter, and weather forecasters still could promise no definite relief.

In the vegetable-growing area surrounding Miami, temperatures fell as low as 31. This minimum was reported in the mucklands north of Homestead. There was scattered frost through the area. Miami Beach had a low of 45.

The cold wave, one of the longest although not the most severe in south Florida history, is caused by a gigantic Atlantic ocean storm which has hovered off the East Coast for several days, whirling polar air southward all the way into the tropics.

DALTON HOLDS CITY CAN'T END STATE JOBS BY VOTING CHARTER

Elimination of 'County' Offices Is One of Main Goals of Proponents of New Charter for St. Louis.

The City of St. Louis cannot include in a new municipal charter any provisions for eliminating the so-called "county offices" without authorization of the State Legislature, Attorney General John M. Dalton held today.

Elimination of some of these offices, or the assumption of some control over their operation, has been one of the main goals of proponents of a new charter. They point out that these officials are paid by the city treasurer, yet the operation of the offices is controlled by the State Legislature.

Answer to Hillsman.
The opinion, issued by Assistant Attorney General C. B. Burns Jr., and approved by Dalton, was prepared at the request of State Senator William E. Hillsman (Dem.), St. Louis. He had asked if the new charter could contain provisions for eliminating or changing the method of selecting these "county" officers, other than that now prescribed by state statute.

These officers include sheriff, recorder of deeds, license collector, collector of revenue and clerk of the circuit court.

In his opinion, Dalton pointed out that under the State Constitution of 1945 St. Louis has been a city and county functions and is recognized as both a city and a county.

"It is clear from various rulings of the Missouri Supreme Court in past interpretations of the constitution, that the city cannot provide for the election of county officers established by state statute," Dalton said.

"It is the opinion of this office that a charter framed for the City of St. Louis, under provisions of the constitution, cannot provide for a method of selection of county officers, who are prescribed for by the statutes of this state."

May Run for Governor.
Dalton is expected to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the August primary election.

It is reported that Dalton, on a visit to St. Louis, told certain Democratic politicians here of his intention to rule as he did today. At that time he is reported to have expressed the opinion that a new charter could not eliminate or consolidate any of the county offices.

An opinion by Samuel H. Liberman, city counselor, and George L. Stemmler, former city counselor, for the 1950 board of freeholders differed with that of Dalton today. Liberman and Stemmler at that time were co-counsel for the freeholders and a similar question arose.

In brief they held that the 1945 constitution gave counties the right to frame charters for their own government. The City of St. Louis, they held, was a single corporate entity with a dual aspect, one as a municipal corporation and the other as a county. As a single entity it operated under a single charter.

In chartered counties, such as St. Louis, they held, the Legislature may enact laws providing for free and open elections and for the number and salaries of judicial officers, but may not enact any laws providing for any other officer or employee of such county fixing his salary.

County officers for which the city could legislate and which could be included in the charter, their opinion held, were circuit attorney, clerk of the circuit court, clerk of the criminal court, clerk of the magistrate court, collector of revenue, constables, coroner, license collector, prosecuting attorney, public administrator, recorder of deeds, sheriff and treasurer.

An example of what a first-class county may do under its own charter is afforded by St. Louis county where, under an amendment to the charter, voters of the county established a new police department and gave it all police powers hitherto exercised by such "county" officers as the sheriff and constables. The amendment was later upheld by the Missouri Supreme Court in a test case.

Old-Timers Back Charter.
Meanwhile, many of the "elder statesmen" of the Democratic party in St. Louis, who were active when the party's political fortunes were less stable, have been urging members of the Board of Freeholders to enact a bill tomorrow for election of a board of freeholders to draft a new city charter.

These "old-timers" who remember how completely Republicans controlled city elections between 1912 and 1933 and between 1941 and 1949, are warning party members that continued obstruction to Mayor Raymond W. Tucker's attempt to improve the city's

PRESIDENT ASKS CONGRESS FOR $2,170,000,000 FOR FEDERAL AID TO SCHOOLS

EISENHOWER HAS NO COMMENT ON BEING ENTERED IN ILLINOIS PRIMARY

Refuses to 'Assent or Dissent'—This Does Not Mean He Has Made Any Decision, Hagerty Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower, still keeping his own counsel on the second-term question, refused to "assent or dissent" yesterday to entry of his name in the Illinois presidential preference primary April 10.

A White House statement said, however, this was not to be interpreted as meaning the President has yet made a final decision on whether to run again.

The statement was issued after Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois announced in Springfield, Ill., that he would enter the President's name. Stratton said he had not consulted Mr. Eisenhower, but added: "This is our way of saying, Mr. President, we hope you run again."

The state's preference primary is only advisory—not binding on delegates.

New Hampshire Race.
Mr. Eisenhower's name will be formally entered next week in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation presidential primary March 13 and the President will promptly inform his backers here that he has no objections, the Associated Press learned exclusively today at Concord.

A reliable source who was in Concord today told the Associated Press that Gov. Lane Dwinell will submit petitions bearing the required 100 signatures to the Secretary of State's office Monday morning. Dwinell declined to comment.

The source added that the President, through a highly placed spokesman in the White House, already has informed Republican leaders in Concord that the move meets with his approval and that he will so state next week.

10 Days to Object.
Under New Hampshire law, a Presidential candidate whose name is submitted for ballot listing in the primary is immediately notified of that fact and given 10 days in which to request that his name be withdrawn if he so wishes. If a candidate takes no action within those 10 days his name remains on the ballot.

Thus, if Mr. Eisenhower chose not to throw out any hints about his plans, he could have decided to do so or say nothing about the New Hampshire primary.

A Presidential decision to let his name remain on the New Hampshire ballot would not be a guarantee that he would run. But, political observers said, the fact that Mr. Eisenhower is reported to go so far as to say specifically that he approves of the move to place his name on the ballot is seen as extremely significant.

Hagerty's Statement.
James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, dictated this statement and said it had been approved by the President.

The President knew nothing about the statement by the Governor of Illinois until I showed him the story which moved on the (news) ticker from Springfield.

"Under the Illinois law, there is nothing the President needs to do. Consequently, there will be no official statement from me signifying either assent or dissent."

"I want to make it clear, however, that lack of any assent or dissent cannot be taken to mean that the President has yet made any ultimate decision on whether again to be a candidate."

"That decision lies and he alone will make."

"The President has said that he will make that decision as soon as he feels he can and announce it to the American people."

Therefore, in the absence of such a decision no citizen should be misled by the absence of comment on the announcement by the Governor of Illinois."

Asked why the White House chose to issue a statement on plans to enter the President's name in the Illinois primary, but was remaining silent on the New Hampshire situation, Hagerty said, "We had an announcement yesterday by the Governor of the state," then, referring to the New Hampshire development. "This is a dope

Hug for Aerial Lifesaver

SGT. JAMES CLOSSON (left) of Everett, Mass., hugging PVT. LESSIE SMITH of Cleveland who saved the sergeant from a fatal plunge in mass parachute drop at Fort Campbell, Ky., yesterday.

PARACHUTE FAILS, SOLDIER GRABBED, SAVED BY ANOTHER

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky., Jan. 12 (AP)—Hurling from a sky filled with gently swaying parachutes, the sergeant—his chute twisted in a cigarette roll—was seconds from death.

As Sgt. James Closson of Everett, Mass., flashed last Pvt. Lessie Smith of Cleveland, O. Smith got a desperate grip on Closson's parachute and had himself a hitchhiker.

The jump began at about 3000 feet. Smith grabbed the sergeant at about 1500 feet. Both men landed safe.

They were ordered to report to Brig. Gen. Joe Stilwell Jr., commander of the 188th regiment of the Eleventh Airborne Division, who led the jump.

"Soldier," the General asked Smith, "what's your rank?" "Private, sir."

"Son, when you get back to your company you'll find you are a private first class."

The sergeant and the happily grinning Pfc. saluted and returned to the war game.

Four hundred men of the 188th made the jump in airborne maneuvers yesterday. Smith was making his seventh jump. Closson, his twenty-eighth.

GAS LAMP ERA FINALLY ENDS ON CHAMPS-ELYSEES

PARIS, Jan. 12—This city's most famous boulevard, the Avenue des Champs-Élysées, will soon become a fluorescent speedway. Its days as a softly-glowing illuminated haunt for strolling lovers are almost over.

The ministry of Beaux-Arts has agreed with the Paris municipal council that the graceful and romantic gas lamps of the Napoleon III era are no longer sufficient for the needs of growing motor and pedestrian traffic.

For the last four months local authorities have studied several new types of lighting. They decided on something called a "mixed ovoid projector." This consists of a 30-foot-high steel post that branches at the top into two slender arms, at the ends of which hang the mixed ovoid projectors. In these projectors are fluorescent tubes, with some kind of incandescent device.

Viewed from sidewalk level, the new lights, which have been installed on an experimental basis, look like a wilted sprig of lily of the valley.

AEROTRAIN JUMPS TRACK AS SWITCH ENGINE PULLS IT

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP)—General Motors' sleek, stainless steel Aerotrain, capable of speeds of more than 100 miles an hour, jumped the track last night as it traveled at a snail's pace.

The low-slung, nine-coach passenger train was being towed from Grand Central station by an electric yard engine when the rear wheels of its Diesel locomotive were derailed. The cause of the derailment was not determined.

HE PROPOSES $1,250,000,000 IN GRANTS FOR CONSTRUCTION

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President Eisenhower asked Congress today to authorize a $2,170,000,000 federal aid program for construction of new schools over the next five years.

The chief new element in the four-point proposal was a five-year, $1,250,000,000 program of federal grants to be matched by state funds. The grants would go to local school districts on a basis of need.

Bond Purchase Plan.
He asked also for authorization of $750,000,000 over five years for federal purchase of local school construction bonds when school districts have difficulty selling them in private markets. This was the principal feature of the Administration's 1955 proposal.

The third recommendation, also repeated from last year, calls for federal advances to state agencies financing local school construction on a lease-purchase basis to get around limitations on bonded indebtedness. This would mean a federal outlay of $150,000,000 in the first year of the five-year program, it is estimated.

Finally, the President proposed a five-year, $200,000,000 program of matching grants to states "for planning to help communities and states overcome obstacles to their financing of school construction."

Thus, the proposals comprise $1,270,000,000 in matching federal grants, $200,000,000 in loans which the Federal Government could expect to get back.

Political Snags Ignored.
Mr. Eisenhower ignored two political snags threatening passage of an education aid bill despite the widely-recognized shortage of classrooms.

He made no mention of the possibility of an anti-segregation "rider," an amendment expected to be proposed to withhold federal funds wherever schools have not complied with the Supreme Court's integration decision of May 1954.

Nor did he say anything about the difficult question of whether federal aid should go to religious and private schools as well as to those supported by tax funds.

Even the wealthiest states will be eligible for some of the grant money, it was explained by Secretary Marion B. Folsom of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at a press conference after the delivery of the message.

Giving additional details on the matching of funds, Folsom said that the federal states would get $1 in federal money for every $2 of their own. The ration would be reversed in the case of the poorest states.

Emphasizing the matching principle, Mr. Eisenhower said federal grants should stimulate state efforts to improve rather than reduce their incentive.

"If federal funds are used merely to replace funds which otherwise would or could be provided at state and local levels, there is no net gain of schools for our children," he said.

Local school districts would be permitted to put up matching funds in the first year of the program, since many state legislatures do not meet this year.

Spur on Laggard States.
He mentioned, but did not detail, a "formula to reduce the proportion of federal funds for those few states which are noticeably lagging behind their ability to support their public schools."

Another formula would put the construction grants on a basis of need, the President said.

State and federal contributions would be about equal for the nation as a whole, he said, but lower-income states would be required to put up less money than those where incomes are higher.

Federal aid per school-age child also would be greater to states with lower income per child. As states distributed federal funds, highest priority would be given to school districts with "the least economic ability to meet their needs."

The proposal for outright grants represented Mr. Folsom's response to recommendations from the National Education Association for remedying unfitted.

REALTY DEALER GILPIN GIVES UP HIS LICENSE

His Lawyer Appears as State Commission Opens Hearing on Revocation of Permit.

The brokerage license of Thomas G. Gilpin, real estate dealer under investigation for alleged unethical conduct, was surrendered to the Missouri State Real Estate Commission today by Gilpin's attorney, Francis C. Flynn.

Flynn appeared before the commission as a hearing to consider revocation of the license began at Hotel Jefferson. Two of the three members of the commission, Vice Chairman Rolla E. Stephens, Joplin, and Frank L. Woodward, Kansas City, were present.

Stephens said the surrendered license would be accepted on a conditional basis pending a determination by the Attorney General's office as to whether it should be accepted. There is a difference of opinion, he said, whether surrender of the license should be permitted when an alleged violation is pending before the commission.

Assistant Attorney General Frank P. Matherway, acting as attorney for the commission, signed a receipt for the license.

The license of the Gilpin Co., 6615 South Kingshighway, the firm which Gilpin operates, was turned over by Flynn to Sperm B. Boudoures, receiver for the company. Boudoures then was sworn and began testifying about affairs of the company, which has been defendant in a receivership suit since last spring.

Repeats Testimony.
The testimony was similar to that given by Boudoures last week at a hearing in the receivership suit in Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield's court. He repeated the assertion his inquiry indicated so far that money received by Gilpin from investors was lent to straw parties, ostensibly for home loans, but in fact never left the company's office.

Ray R. Dolan, chairman of the state commission, told the Post-Dispatch today that investigations of the affairs of Joseph Viola, another real estate man under fire, were discontinued because complaints against him were withdrawn. Inquiry had been initiated in 1952 and again last spring.

Viola, whose operations now are under grand jury investigation, surrendered his state real estate license last Dec. 30 in the face of another investigation. He is reported to owe about $100,000 to 20 creditors and to have assets of only about $20,000.

Dolan, a St. Louis real estate dealer, reached at Miami Beach, Fla., yesterday.

Army in New Battle of Bulge, Orders Attack on Officers' Flanks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, tall, trim Army chief of staff, today ordered all Army officers—some of whom are not so trim—to embark on a physical fitness program.

Taylor signed a new Army regulation requiring officers to take off a half day, not counting Sundays or holidays, every week for physical exercise.

He also ordered officers to report to their commanders when they see evidence of physical unfitness in a colleague. They are to notify commanders "with a view to the initiation of the procedure prescribed" for remedying unfitted.

SENATOR WARNS OF 'GIGANTIC RAID ON FORESTS WITH SANCTION OF U.S.

Neuberger Cites Loophole in Mining Laws 'Big Enough to Drive Diesel Through' — G.O.P. Replies.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Senator Richard L. Neuberger (Dem., Ore.) said today procedures used by the Department of the Interior in the Al Sarena mining claims case could open the way for a "gigantic raid on the national forests."

Neuberger, member of a Senate subcommittee investigating the granting of mineral and timber rights in the Rogue River National Forest, told the Post-Dispatch present mining laws "have a loophole big enough to drive a diesel through."

At issue in the case, he asserted, "is whether or not extraordinary procedures—and they are admitted to be extraordinary by witnesses—are to be allowed to become a precedent for the granting of mining patents."

"If the thousands of other mining applicants on national forest lands are permitted to use private assays, by laboratories chosen by themselves, to overrule the expert judgment of the United States Forest Service, then what is going to happen to all our national forest reserves?"

'A Gigantic Raid.'
Answering his own question, Neuberger said the result would be "a gigantic raid on the national forests."

The Senate subcommittee, sitting jointly with a House group, wound up two days of hearings on the disputed claims yesterday and recessed until next Tuesday, after announcing that Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay would be asked to testify later.

The hearings were marked by the first sharp political fight of the new congressional session. They produced, in addition, a battle of statements from both sides.

In two days, no less than seven statements were issued by committee members, as Democrats charged a "give-away" of natural resources and Republicans fought back with the contention that the inquiry was politically motivated.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Rep., Mich.), led the list with three statements. Senator W. Kerr Scott (Dem., N. Carolina), who presided at the hearings as chairman of the Senate subcommittee, issued two.

Senators James E. Murray (Dem., Mont.), chairman of the parent Senate Interior Committee, and Barry Goldwater (Rep., Ariz.), sent out one statement each.

Hoffman's Parting Shot.
In his parting shot before the hearings recessed, Hoffman, a veteran of 22 years in the House, said: "During my service in the Congress, I have never seen anything to match the handling of this investigation."

"Civil liberties, basic concepts of justice and ordinary courts and decency seem to have been forgotten."

Hoffman charged that subcommittee lawyers, appointed by the Democratic majority, had mistreated witnesses and subjected the Interior Department to a "vicious attack."

Senator Scott responded with a statement reaffirming his intention to conduct the hearings "in a fair and impartial manner" and said he would develop the full facts "in spite of the repeated cries of politics and smear."

Referring to testimony on disputed ore samples submitted by Al Sarena Mines, Inc., of Trail, Ore., Scott said he might "have to go to Oregon and dig some samples myself and get them analyzed."

Earlier, Neuberger charged that the Interior Department took "unique" steps to approve an application by the Al Sarena mining firm for patents on 300 acres of land in the Rogue River National Forest, despite protests from government experts.

Full Timber Rights.
Under present mining laws, granting of the patents gave Al Sarena full timber rights on the land as well. Neuberger said. Until the patents were approved, the company could cut only the timber it needed to operate its mines on a claim basis, a relatively small amount, he added.

In 1949, when the application was first filed, the Forest Service estimated value of the timber on Al Sarena's 300 acres at $77,000. Neuberger told the subcommittee.

Late in 1953, Forest Service officials said the timber value had increased about 3½ times, he added. This would make the 1953 value about $269,500.

Subcommittee Counsel Robert W. Redwine said the Al Sarena firm had cut 2,000,000 board feet of lumber, valued at about $110,000, since its patents were approved in January 1954. The company intensified its efforts to obtain patents in 1953, he added.

Democrats have charged that Al Sarena actually was interested only in the timber rights and used the mining claims as a ruse to get them, doing relatively little mining and spending only $8000 for mining fees and preliminary development. Republicans have denied this.

British Airlift Begins Rushing 2000 Paratroops to Cyprus

Government Also Considers Delaying Suez Evacuation Because of Middle East Tension.

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Britain began speeding some 2000 paratroops to Cyprus today as a show of strength in the Middle East.

The government also was considering slowing down troop evacuations from the Suez Canal zone because of the restless situation.

Transport planes were ferrying the special combat group to Cyprus to reinforce British garrison of 100,000 men, many of whom are tied down by disorders arising out of demands for the union of the island with Greece. The airlift is due to be completed by tomorrow night.

The airborne troops' main mission is to serve as a mobile force that can be rushed to any trouble spot in the Middle East where British lives and property are threatened.

Most of Group Moved.
The possibility Britain may slow down its Suez Canal evacuation came barely a month before the expected completion of the project. More than 65 per cent of the 20,000-man garrison already has moved out under terms of the British-Egyptian Suez agreement and it was anticipated the whole force would vigorously, saying the stand of number seven was worth more than $77,000 and contending the company conducted extensive mining operations.

Neuberger told the Post-Dispatch he viewed the timber rights provision as a "loophole" in the law. "For this reason," he said, "the law must be administered very carefully. You can't have the Forest Service overruled on too many patents."

Richard N. Appling Jr., an engineer for the Bureau of Mines, testified yesterday that he permitted the mine operators to choose their own assay firm to test the ore samples on which their patent application was based.

Applying said company officials "expressed a preference" for the A. W. Williams Inspection Co. of Mobile, Ala., because of previous dealings with that firm. The McDonald family, which owns the mine, is from Mobile.

The assay report from the Williams company found sufficient ore deposits on the Al Sarena claims to make them commercially feasible, a prerequisite in obtaining patents. Assays by the Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management disagreed with this finding.

McKay, a former Governor of Oregon, overruled the Government findings and approved the patents on the basis of the private assay report.

Applying said he and D. Ford McCormick, a mining engineer employed by Al Sarena, took the ore samples from which the report was made.

They divided up the samples, holding on to one set in case the others should be lost in transit, he testified. But after the report was made, he and McCormick dumped the extra samples in the Rogue river, Applying added.

Under questioning, he acknowledged that the additional samples could have been used as "umpires" in case the findings were disputed, as they were.

DULLES WARNED AGAINST ARMS SALES TO ISRAEL

High U.S. Officials Say It Will Lead to Weapons Race, Antagonize Arabs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—High American officials are warning Secretary of State Dulles that selling Israel arms would set off a full-fledged weapons race in the Middle East.

These officials, who asked not to be identified, are convinced that if American weapons go to Israel Egypt will place more orders for arms from Communist Czechoslovakia. Furthermore, they said, Arab anti-American sentiment would run rampant.

Israel requested weapons from the United States on bargain terms last November to offset weapons Egypt is getting from Czechoslovakia. American consideration of the Israeli request is now under suspension pending outcome of United Nations Security Council deliberations on an Israeli attack against Syria.

Dulles said yesterday the United States would take a fresh look at the Israeli request after the Security Council acts. The council is expected to adopt a resolution strongly condemning Israel for the raid.

United States experts on Egyptian affairs said Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser is determined his nation must be stronger than Israel. Despite Nasser's stand, the American experts believe chances of getting an Arab-Israeli peace are as good or better than they were a year ago. The reason is that the Arab world has a strong leader in Nasser and can afford to negotiate with Israel now. A year ago the Arab world felt too weak to enter such negotiation.

The authorities also feel that Nasser, frequently labeled a neutralist, sides with the West in his sentiments. In case of war, they believe Nasser would bring Egypt in on the Western side.

PLANE DOWN, FOUR RESCUED AFTER 20 HOURS ON ISLAND
VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 12 (UP)—Four men were rescued yesterday after being stranded for 20 hours on Bligh island, in Nootka sound. Their chartered float plane had been forced to descend on a flight from Port Alberni, B. C., to Gold River, about 130 miles to the northwest.

Rescued were Jim Lightbown, Port Alberni, the pilot; William Craig and Charles Rowlands, both of Vancouver, and Gene Olson, Seattle, Wash.

"The plane nosed over when we hit," Craig said. "We had to swim for the island. They spent the night huddled together around a fire."

The aircraft was spotted by Pacific Western Airlines Pilot Jack Moul. The men were then flown to Vancouver.

U.N. CAN'T FAIL TO CONDEMN ISRAEL, U.S. SAYS

Lodge Assails Attack in Security Council Talk—Briton Hits at Retaliation.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 12 (UP)—The United States declared today that the United Nations "cannot fail" to condemn Israel for its attack last month on a Syrian outpost on the Sea of Galilee.

United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. told the U.N. Security Council that this country does not favor either the Arab or the Israeli side in the Palestine situation, but believes that "no government has the right to take the law into its own hands."

Israel contends that the Dec. 11 attack, in which 56 Syrians and six Israelis were killed on the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, was a retaliatory action for attacks on Israeli fishing boats by the Syrian gunpost. "Mistaken Policy."

Britain's Sir Pierson Dixon, joining Lodge in support of a resolution of censure sponsored by their two countries and France, said "the time has come" for Israel to understand that its policy of retaliation "is a mistaken policy."

"Such retaliatory action," Dixon said, "is totally unjustifiable and I have no hesitation in asking the council to condemn it."

French Delegate Herve Alphand called the Galilee attack "a grave act by its very nature," which "came as close as could be to a breach of the peace."

Lodge said, "Our sole desire is to prevent increasing tension and to secure for the peoples of Palestine and the Near East a peaceful settlement."

"What makes these deliberations more serious is the fact that a member of the U.N.—in fact, a country created by the U.N.—should stand before this council on such a charge for the fourth time in two years."

'Out of Proportion.'
"The Israeli deed is so far out of proportion with the provocation for it that it cannot accurately be described as a retaliatory raid. Even if it could, we would still condemn it."

The three-power resolution warns Israel the Council will have to consider "further measures" in the event of future raids.

A Russian resolution, also before the Council, includes Syria's request that compensation be paid by Israel for the attack, but omits a Syrian demand that Israel be expelled from the U.N. as an aggressor.

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev argued that the council should make no reference to Syrian "provocations" before the Israeli attack.

"The Security Council," the Russian said, "cannot overlook the fact that it must in its resolution say that an unjustified and deliberate attack was made by Israel."

"The Security Council must demand that Israel strictly comply with the armistice agreement and the resolution of this council. Inasmuch as Syria suffered damages, we feel that the Security Council must call on Israel to pay compensation for those damages."

"We should proceed on the premise that a serious warning to Israel should be adopted and should be seriously considered by the government of Israel when it takes measures for the future."

Study of Defense Setup Ordered In View of Changes in Weapons

Wilson Wants Picture of Needs for Three Years—Manpower Ceiling to Go Up Slightly.

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson told Congress today he has ordered the high command to make a "complete and careful" new study of the military setup in view of changes in the weapons field and in the international situation. He wants the picture of what may be needed in the next three years.

In testimony prepared for the Senate Armed Services committee, Wilson disclosed also that military manpower will increase to about 2,840,000 by the end of the next fiscal year from 2,814,000 estimated for June 30, the end of the current year.

He said also that to provide a "measure of flexibility," President Eisenhower has authorized a manpower ceiling of 2,906,000 for the next fiscal year. But Wilson said use of that authority will be made "only after complete justification for need and mission."

Wilson said that "we do not foresee at this time any major changes in the over-all level of our military forces during the next few years," but he added: "There will, however, be continuing changes in the nature and composition of our forces, in line with scientific and technological progress and in the international situation."

"For this reason I am requesting the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the military departments to make a complete and careful evaluation of the size, nature and composition of the forces likely to be required for the nation's security during the next three years."

"This longer range study will provide us with a sound base for planning future procurement and other military programs, which necessarily extend over a period of years."

The present planned buildup of SAC (Strategic Air Command) forces will be completed by June 30, 1956, Wilson said. "The medium bomber wings are already fully equipped with B-47 jets. In the heavy bomber wings, major emphasis is now being given to the replacement of the B-36 with the new B-52 long range jet bomber. By the end of the coming fiscal year, a number of these wings will have been converted to the B-52."

The Strategic Air Command is understood to consist presently of 50 of the 54 wings planned under the 137 wing program. Under that program, there eventually will be 11 wings of B-52 heavy bombers. At present there are about seven wings of the piston-jet combination B-36s.

Wilson said that "conversion of the B-36 wings to B-52s will be carried out 'at an accelerated rate.' He said, too, that 'a substantial number of jet tankers for air-to-air refueling of the B-52 bombers is also included in the Air Force program.'"

At present, refueling is done from KB-97 tankers, piston-engined planes which lack the speed and altitude to match that of the B-52 and B-47 jet bombers.

Wilson took Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force chief of staff, to the hearing with him. Twining is acting chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the absence from this country of Adm. Arthur Radford.

Wilson said the continental air defense system "will continue to grow in scope and effectiveness during the coming fiscal year." He announced that the first segment of the new automatic warning-aircraft control system, known as "Sage," will "soon go into operation."

Army—19 divisions, 10 regiments, 143 anti-aircraft battalions. An infantry division will be converted to an airborne division, to be used in "special experiments with new organizations, tactics and weapons." There will be an increase in Army units armed with new weapons like the Honest John bombardment rockets.

Navy—To have a total of 1005 ships including 411 combatant vessels, compared with a present force of 984 ships including 403 warships.

Marine Corps—Continue at three divisions and three air wings.

The Baghdad pact countries, ending a two-day meeting in Baghdad, announced yesterday they were establishing an atomic energy training center in Baghdad. Informed sources said the group also worked out a blueprint for economic development of member countries.

Several Syrian students were injured today in clashes among demonstrators in the Syrian border city of Deraa, where Jordanian refugees are concentrated. It was learned unofficially. Press reports in Syria said that Israeli forces were being concentrated along the Jordan border.

EGYPT'S ATTACHE IN IRAQ OUSTED ON PLOT CHARGE
Action Weakens Arab Solidarity Against Israel and British Influence in Jordan.
JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, Jan. 12 (UP)—Arab solidarity against Israel and British influence in Jordan was further weakened today when Iraq ousted the Egyptian military attache in Baghdad for taking part in an alleged plot against the government.

Relations between Iraq and other Arab nations in the Middle East already were cool because of Iraq's adherence to the Baghdad pact, which includes Iran, Turkey, Britain, Pakistan and Iraq in an alliance along the southern frontiers of Russia.

Baghdad yesterday declared the Egyptian attache, Lt. Col. Kamal el Hinnawal, person non grata and asked he be withdrawn. Iraq gave no reason, but in Cairo a spokesman said Iraq implied he was involved in an anti-government plot.

There was no clarification in Iraq, but in recent days the government has accused neighboring countries of trying to stir up trouble. It did not name the countries.

Meanwhile, representatives of Syria, Saudi Arabia and Egypt were trying to build a solid bloc against Israel and at the same time to work against the Baghdad pact.

The three Arab nations offered funds to replace the $56,000,000 a year Britain pours into Jordan to support its Arab Legion. It was understood Lebanon also would be invited to join in the project.

British influence already had suffered a serious blow when Jordan's new government strongly indicated it would not join the anti-Communist pact.

Damascus reports said the three Arab nations—which have joint military alliances against Israel—would offer Jordan funds under a ten-year program to make it independent of British aid.

BOY PATIENT'S DEATH POINTS UP NEEDS AT STATE TRAINING SCHOOL

$6,626,500 in Bond Issue Funds Sought — Lack of Qualified Attendants Severe Problem.

The accidental death of a 15-year-old retarded boy at the St. Louis State Training School in Bellefontaine Neighbors Tuesday emphasizes the urgent need for additional facilities, Dr. A. A. Hines, superintendent, told the Post-Dispatch today.

The mental institution has requested $6,626,500 in bonds of the $75,000,000 state bond issue to be submitted to voters Jan. 24.

A most urgent requirement is for additional personnel, but that cannot be met with building funds from bonds. Dr. Hines pointed out he has the money to hire 15 more attendants and fill the quota of 90 for the present capacity of 600 patients, but cannot find qualified persons to take the jobs, which start at $187 a month and rise to $250.

The child died when an attendant left him alone for 15 minutes shortly before feeding time. A large napkin was tied around him as he sat in a chair. He slipped down, the napkin caught, and he was strangled.

The accident could have been prevented if there had been more attendants, Dr. Hines said.

The last previous violent death at the training school occurred 10 years ago, when two patients mauled and killed another, but that is the only other violent death, Dr. Hines' 16 years as superintendent there.

The superintendent and the business manager, James A. Fox, took a Post-Dispatch reporter and photographer on a tour of the main buildings, pointing out the gross inadequacy of many facilities yesterday.

Beds were crowded close together, segregation of different kinds of patients was impossible, and many normally necessary things were lacking—such as buildings for recreation, vocational training, central dining, and employees' residence.

When this became a state institution in 1948 it had 130 vacancies, but it was rapidly filled to capacity and now has a waiting list of 368. Persons with all types of mental illness are admitted at the age of 5 and some remain there the rest of their lives.

On the other hand, many have shown such improvement that they could be placed in jobs. A youth of 23 who read or wrote has saved $1200 in bonds through selling greeting cards. He has his customers write their own orders. Others make $3 a night setting up pins at a bowling alley.

The school has 11 main buildings, at 10695 Bellefontaine road, including six dormitories, a hospital and one for classrooms.

Dr. Hines and Fox have requested $6,626,500 for new buildings to expand the capacity, to provide services, and to eliminate 10 fire hazards cited by the Missouri inspection bureau after a recent survey.

Some of the old buildings designed for 105 patients now serve as many as 128, despite the fact that according to later official standards only 82 should be placed in them.

A state law requiring segregation of those afflicted with epilepsy cannot be complied with, Dr. Hines said.

New Buildings Sought. These are the new buildings asked for:

One for custodial patients, $1,150,000; two for delinquent delinquents, $1,000,000; four for trainable patients, $645,000; recreation, $600,000; vocational training, $420,000; central dining room, $605,000; employees' dormitory, $370,000; two staff homes, $40,000; addition to laundry, $228,000; garage and maintenance building, $96,000; storehouse, $270,000; addition to power plant, $120,000; steam

Surrendering License

Real Estate Dealer Gilpin Surrenders His License

Fla., where he is vacationing, refused to comment on why the commission did not pursue an investigation of Viola in the light of the two formal complaints, even though they were withdrawn after Viola paid off the amounts sought by complainants.

Powers Under Law.

Chapter 339 of the Missouri statutes sets out that the commission may open its own motion, and shall upon written complaint filed by any person, investigate the business transactions of any real estate broker or real estate salesman and shall have the power to suspend or revoke any license... "If the licensee is found guilty of any among a specified list of irregularities, including failure to account within a reasonable time for clients' money in his possession.

The St. Louis Better Business Bureau called attention to Viola's activities in a bulletin last June. A month earlier the bureau, in a letter to the state commission, had described still another complaint about Viola, pointing out that it "adds to the file on Viola to prove that he is withholding on his money remittances due clients."

As related in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, Viola was permitted to continue six months in business as a "realtor" after the St. Louis Real Estate Board learned of the Better Business Bureau complaints. Only members of the Real Estate Board are entitled to use of the "realtor" term.

Clarence C. Lang, board secretary, said Viola was not investigated earlier because the board had received "no complaint" and that "we awaited a determination by the Missouri Real Estate Commission before taking any action."

Viola finally was expelled by the board last Dec. 29, on the basis of action instituted Dec. 5, charging unethical practices. The code of ethics of the Real Estate Board describes the "realtor" as "zealous to maintain and improve the standards of his calling and (he) shares with his fellow-realtors a common responsibility for its integrity and honor."

The code sets out that "it is the duty of every realtor to protect the public against fraud, misrepresentation or unethical practices in connection with real estate transactions."

Chairman Dolan of the state commission is a former president of the St. Louis Real Estate board.

Additional Witnesses. Meanwhile, Assistant Circuit Attorney Eugene P. Freeman was to question additional witnesses today in the investigation of Viola.

The grand jury heard several witnesses yesterday and will continue its inquiry next Tuesday. Those who appeared yesterday included Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Boveri, 7330 Dartmouth avenue, University City, and Mr. and Mrs. Gustav F. Zausra, 511 West Davis street. Complaint of the Zausras' was that they paid Viola $5027 to pay off two mortgages in a real estate transaction and he kept the money. The Boveris' complaint, described in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, was that he gave them a $6200 check as a refund on a mortgage transaction.

$1000 REWARD IS OFFERED IN MIZERANY BOMBINGS

A $1000 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the recent bombings of two stores of the Mizerany Appliance Co. It was announced today by Joseph Mizerany, president.

Mizerany said he and his four brothers who operate the firm were completely baffled by the bombings which damaged one store at 6279 Natural Bridge avenue, Pine Lawn, early last Jan. 5 and another at 9516 Gravois road, Afton, last Tuesday night.

"We have received no threatening notes and we have never had any labor troubles of any kind," he said. "We are hoping this reward will help us get to the bottom of these outrages."

Pre-Atom Age Definition. NORTH KINGTON, R.I., Jan. 12 (AP)—The town library has a new encyclopedia. It has discarded the old set, published in 1901, which included among its profundities: "Uranium—a useless metal not found in the United States."

generator, $60,000; steam distribution system, $335,000; bakery, $37,000, and dairy addition, $90,000.

Also requested is five miles of fencing to cost $180,000. To eliminate fire hazards the following requests were made: Fifty thousand dollars for enclosing interior stairways; $80,000 for exit facilities, including fire escapes; $44,000 for vestibules and to make all doors swing outward; $12,000 for a machinery room in the power plant; $36,000 for an emergency source of electricity; $15,000 for two vent hoods in the main kitchen; $35,000 for additional fire hydrants and water lines; $7500 for an incinerator; $3500 for lightning rods, and $7500 for installation of natural gas.

The newest building on the extensive grounds was opened last June, with 76 beds. It has many features the old ones do not— including tile walls instead of plaster, and a spacious arrangement of beds.

Movies are shown in a second-floor gymnasium, but bed patients and those in wheel chairs cannot get to them for there are no elevators.

"If it were possible for more employees to live at the institution it would be easier to attract qualified persons, Dr. Hines pointed out. Busses for those who live off the grounds run only once an hour.

Because storage space is inadequate, the institution cannot make large quantity purchases and is "constantly running out of clothing, food, and linens," the superintendent added. The bond issue proposal was endorsed yesterday by the St. Louis Industrial Union Council.

SCARED BY POLICE CAR LIGHTS SO HE SPEEDS 120 M.P.H.

An Army private, who said he was "scared" by the red lights of a group of police cars chasing him, drove 120 miles an hour before his machine went out of control early today on Lindbergh boulevard just south of Page avenue. His automobile stopped only one foot away from a 30-foot embankment.

Patrolman Melvin Lloyd of the Kirkwood police department said the speeder, who said he was Victor Zaiz of 1800 block of Oregon avenue, was going 60 miles per hour when he first gave chase on Lindbergh south of Manchester road.

Zaiz stepped up his pace to 120 miles an hour through Huntleigh Village, Lloyd said, "and I wasn't gaining on him."

Patrol cars from the county police department, Creve Coeur and Frontenac joined in the chase before Zaiz lost control of his machine.

Zaiz, 20 years old, who is on furlough, was charged with reckless driving. He was not charged with violating any electric stop signals, with luck denied to most motorists, he made every green light on the four-mile chase.

HIT SERIOUSLY BY AUTO

Fritz Mueller, a brewery worker, 6 Lockhaven avenue, St. Louis county, suffered fractures of the leg and wrist and a skull injury last midnight when he was struck by an automobile at Arsenal street and Jefferson avenue. He was taken to City Hospital.

The driver, Kenneth Lynch, laborer, 718 Wyoming street, told police the traffic signal was in his favor and Mueller stepped into the street in the path of his eastbound machine.

BAR ON POLITICS URGED IN COUNTY 'WATCHDOG' BODY

Co-chairmen Say Partisan Activity Would Impair Value of Bond Issue Committee.

A warning against making "a political football" of the St. Louis county citizens bond issue "watchdog" committee was issued yesterday by the committee's co-chairmen, Donald L. Barnes Sr. and E. E. Pershall.

The 59-member committee, constituted Dec. 28 by a resolution of the County Council, is a "civic body," the co-chairmen said. They stated they did not want party politics to "interfere" with the bond issue program.

Barnes and Pershall said that if the committee "becomes a political football its value would be seriously impaired. We are not a political organization. We have members of both parties on the committee."

Dispute on Alleged Delays. There has been sharp dispute in recent weeks between Democratic and Republican members of the county council as to alleged delays in launching projects in the county's $39,712,000 public improvement bond issue approved in the election Nov. 22. Democrats have been critical of St. Louis County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews.

The "watchdog" committee co-chairmen pointed out that they themselves are members of different political parties, adding, "We are interested in getting this show on the road in all parts of the county."

Their statement came at a meeting of the executive committee of the "watchdog" committee, held at Barnes' office at Clayton. To expedite the committee's function of advising and recommending to the council on bond issue projects, 10 subcommittees were named yesterday.

Eight of them will deal with the eight bond issue items: expressways; children's welfare center and detention home; supplemental roads, bridges and grade crossings; playgrounds and small park picnic areas; voting machines; Inner Belt highway; hospital and health center; and civil defense center and warning signal sites.

Purchase of Landfill Sites. A ninth subcommittee will consider the purchase of sanitary landfill sites authorized in the 1954 bond issue and the tenth will act as a co-ordinating agency.

Chairmen named yesterday were Charles W. DeWitt, Mor-

Matthews to Take New Step For Metropolitan Police Force

Five Chiefs to Be Appointed to Draft Pension Plan for All County Officers.

An important step toward formation of a metropolitan police force in St. Louis county was taken today with announcement by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews of his plans to appoint an advisory committee of police chiefs to work out a general police pension plan.

Matthews said he expected to name a committee of five chiefs from county municipalities to advise the Board of Police Commissioners in devising a single pension plan for all policemen in the county. He added he hopes to have the committee formed within a week.

"We will get started on what the police charter amendment was intended to do to establish an over-all department for St. Louis county," Matthews said. "The plan may require a separate police tax, with approval of the Legislature, but I feel certain it can be worked out."

Several county police departments, including Clayton, have satisfactory pension plans. Experience gained from these plans probably would be incorporated in a general plan, it was indicated.

No Organized Crime. In a talk last night before the Men's Club of Temple Shaare Emeth, 6830 Delmar boulevard, University City, Matthews praised the new county police department and declared there is no organized crime in the county.

ton D. May, Edward A. Rudolph, Arthur B. Baer, Hugh H. C. Weed, J. John Brook, John J. O'Toole, Francis J. Fabick, Oliver R. Koenenman and Willis Cooper.

The subgroups were instructed to call on the various county departments concerned with bond issue projects and to work with them toward getting projects launched as soon as possible.

In addition, three vice chairmen of the entire "watchdog" committee were elected. They are: Edwin M. Clark, Alfred H. Kerth and Edwin J. Spiegel. Girard C. Varnum was named secretary. The executive committee called a meeting of the full 59-member committee for 4 p.m. Tuesday in the council chambers at Clayton.

At a meeting of the county council at Clayton yesterday, Supervisor Matthews recommended the hiring of a consulting engineer to assist those concerned in the preparation of plans, designs and engineering for bond issue highway projects.

Regarding general county problems, the supervisor said transportation "is growing faster than the highways," and he discussed briefly needs resulting from the rapid population growth.

Matthews was one of five speakers before the Men's Club. Edwin M. Clark, president of Civic Progress, Inc., emphasized that St. Louis needs new industries. "We must attract more manufacturing in order to live," Clark said. Recent progressive accomplishments cited by Clark included plaza redevelopment, the master traffic control plan and the city and county bond issues.

Cites Negro Gains. M. Leo Bohannon, executive director of the Urban League, said the St. Louis Negro population "is here to stay, and must be made an asset to the community." He said the majority of Negroes live in slum areas and average income was $1402 last year. He estimated the Negro population of the city at 171,000, increase of 82 per cent since 1932.

Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley of Washington University urged citizens to go to the polls and elect capable representatives in government. He asserted that "the masses decide who shall rule," adding that the elected official then should be given the opportunity to carry out his duties without interference.

DRUGGIST, HELD UP 10 TIMES, MAKES 25 CENTS ON NO. 11

Stanley Madison, who operates a drug store at 2523 Marcus avenue and has been held up 10 times, came out of a holdup attempt last night 25 cents to the good.

Three Negroes entered his store as he was closing. One of them bought a magazine for 25 cents. As he gave the man his change, a companion pulled a shotgun from under his topcoat saying: "This is a stick up."

Madison grabbed the gun and scuffled with the holdup men. When he broke loose, he ran from the store shouting for help. The would-be robbers also fled.

Back in the store, Madison found the magazine the men had bought lying on the counter.

COUNTY'S EMPLOYEES FACE LOSS OF PAYDAY

1400 Likely to Go Payless Because Council Did Not Act.

About 1400 employees of St. Louis county are facing a payless payday next Monday and the possibility of a second one Feb. 1 as the result of the County Council's failure to pass appropriation bills yesterday, County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews said today.

Plans by Matthews to confer with a county bank to see what arrangements could be made to make money available Monday to the employees were called off after the Supervisor was told by County Auditor Clarence H. Hackman that the county charter would prevent such a step.

The appropriation bills were perfected at yesterday's meeting of the Council but unanimous consent to pass the bill at the same meeting was denied when Councilman James H. J. McNary (Dem.) Second District, objected. Matthews said that when one man could hold up the pay of 1400 county employees "just for political purposes," it was time to amend the charter.

If the vote in favor of passage of the bills at next Wednesday's meeting is at least 3 to 2, the bills will become effective when signed by Matthews. However, if passage is by a simple majority of 4 to 3, they cannot be effective until 15 days after signature. This would put the effective date beyond the Feb. 1 payday, Matthews said.

2 OF 7 PART-TIME POLICEMEN QUIT IN MARY RIDGE

Two of Mary Ridge's seven part-time policemen resigned last night in a dispute with the municipality's chairman of the board of trustees, Henry Bealer. They are William Storey, who was a sergeant, and C. E. Olmstead, a patrolman.

They quit when Bealer and Acting Marshal Roscoe Smallwood asked them to remain after the weekly police court session, to discuss reports that they had had an accident in a police car and did not report it, and that they had checked a tavern last Sunday without first notifying the marshal. The tavern was open to sell food only.

Bealer said he had heard that another policeman might quit. Smallwood said seven policemen probably was too many anyhow, and that the community of 350 population would have no law enforcement problem.

Text of President's Education Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP.)

Following is the text of President Eisenhower's education message to Congress today.

The Congress of the United States:

For several years now, our educational system has been the object of intensified appraisal.

Signs of heartening progress have come to light. Among these are: classroom construction at a higher rate than ever before; teachers' salaries increased in many communities; the number of small, uneconomical school districts reduced; substantially more young people preparing for the teaching profession; private gifts to higher education at new heights; support of education at all levels greater than ever before.

Encouraging as these advances are, they are not enough to meet our expanding educational needs. Action on a broader scale and at a more rapid rate is clearly imperative.

We still do not have enough good classrooms for our children. There is insufficient emphasis on both short-range and long-term research into the core of educational problems. We need examination and study, from a broad viewpoint, of the increasing needs of higher education. These lack are magnified by an ever-increasing stream of student enrollment and the increasing complexity of modern society.

THE WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE ON EDUCATION

Two years ago, the Congress approved my recommendation of a program to direct nationwide attention and action to our educational problems and opportunities. As a consequence, more than 4000 state and local conferences were held throughout 1955. The White House Conference on Education, the first such conference in our history, was held last November. The work of the conference has aroused the nation. The final report of the White House conference committee should receive wide and serious attention.

Benefits Already Apparent

Benefits already are apparent. About half a million people across the nation, representing all segments of life, came to grips with the problems of education. The status of American education—where it is, the future of American education—where it should and can go—have been illuminated as perhaps never before. Most important of all, there has been a reawakening of broad public interest in our schools. The conference helped to erase the corroding notion that schools were the other person's responsibility.

In our society no firmer foundation for action can be laid than common understanding of a problem; no more potent force can be devised for assailing a problem than the common will to do the job. For the improvement of our educational system, the people themselves have laid the foundation for understanding and willingness.

THE NEED FOR FEDERAL AID IN MEETING THE CLASSROOM SHORTAGE

The responsibility for public education rests with the states and the local communities. Federal action which infringes upon this principle is alien to our system. But our history has demonstrated that the Federal Government, in the interest of the whole people, can and should help with certain problems of nationwide scope and concern when states and communities—acting independently—cannot solve the full problem or solve it rapidly enough.

Clearly, this is the kind of situation we face today in considering the school classroom shortage. In the war and post-war periods, school construction was drastically curtailed by shortages of materials. And then schools were filled to overflowing by the largest, most rapid enrollment increase in history. Today, hundreds of thousands of children study under overcrowded conditions, in half-day or double-shift sessions, or in makeshift buildings not designed as schools. Furthermore, many classrooms use today are obsolete, inadequate—and each year more rooms become so. School enrollments will continue to increase rapidly over the years ahead—and this will require still more classrooms.

Communities Need Help

Against this backdrop of needs, states and communities are substantially increasing their classroom construction. But many communities simply do not have available locally the resources needed to cope both with the legacy of shortages from past years and with future needs. Unless these communities get help, they simply cannot provide enough good schools. The best estimates indicate that, on a nationwide basis, the current rate of construction only a little more than meets each year's new enrollment and replacement needs. This rate barely dents the large accumulation of needs from past years.

The rate of classroom construction must be further increased, as the White House Conference of Education asked, by a greater combined effort of local and state governments. And the conference concluded that federal assistance also is necessary. The facts support this conclusion.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S PROPOSALS

A year ago, I proposed a federal program designed to aid the states and communities in overcoming the classroom shortage. The Congress has not yet enacted legislation. In the light of a full year of further experience and study, in the light of congressional hearings and the White House Conference on Education, I now submit a revised and broadened program to meet our pressing classroom needs. I propose:

A program of federal grants amounting to $1,250,-

000,000, at a rate of $250,000-000 annually for five years, matched with state funds, to supplement local construction efforts in the neediest school districts.

A program to authorize $750,000,000 over five years for federal purchase of local school construction bonds when school districts cannot sell them in private markets at reasonable interest rates.

A five-year program of advances to help provide reserves for bonds issued by state school agencies. These bonds would finance local construction of schools to be rented and eventually owned by the local school systems.

A five-year, $20,000,000 program of matching grants to states for planning to help communities and states overcome obstacles to their financing of school construction.

If speedily and fully utilized, this federal program—added to the increased basic efforts of states and communities—should overcome the nation's critical classroom shortage within five years. Once this shortage is overcome, the federal grant program can and must terminate. The states and localities should then go forward, without federal funds, to meet their current and future needs. Present construction levels indicate their ability to do this.

I am confident the Federal Government with this program can help construct schools without in any way weakening the American tradition that control of education must be kept close to the local communities. Any legislation enacted should embody this principle.

ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLES IN FEDERAL GRANTS

I strongly urge the Congress, in providing grants for school construction, to follow certain principles which are indispensable if federal aid is to serve the cause of American education most effectively.

The first broad principle is that federal grants must not reduce the incentive for state and local efforts—but rather, must stimulate an increase in such efforts. If federal funds are used merely to replace funds which otherwise would or could be provided at state and local levels, there is no net gain of schools for our children. I propose, therefore, that federal grants be matched by state appropriations.

Because many of the state legislatures will not have a session this year, I recommend, in order to speed the program at the outset, that during the first year of the five-year period the matching of federal funds may be by either the states or by local school districts. The requirement for state matching will result in a larger total program of school construction, and will assure active participation of the states in improving laws relating to financing of school construction, as well as sound administration of the program.

Furthermore, I propose a formula to reduce the proportion of federal funds for those few states which are noticeably lagging behind their ability, to support their public schools. This feature should act as an incentive for the lagging states to increase their effort.

Another fundamental principle is that federal funds, under this type of program, should be distributed according to relative need. We must recognize that some states have more financial resources than others. We must recognize that a weakness in education anywhere is a weakness in the nation as a whole. Federal appropriations will most quickly accomplish the most good if a relatively larger share of federal funds is distributed where local and state resources are least adequate to meet classroom needs.

I propose that this principle be fulfilled in three ways. First, in distributing federal funds, larger amounts per school-age child should be allotted to states with lower income per child. Second, in fixing matching requirements, states with lower income should not be required to put up as large a proportion of funds as higher income states. For the nation as a whole, the total of state matching funds would approximately equal the total federal funds. Third, as the states distribute these funds, the highest priority should be given to school districts with the least economic ability to meet their needs.

CREDIT SUPPORT FOR SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION

Some school districts find difficulty in marketing bonds to finance needed school construction. To meet this situation, I again recommend that the Congress authorize federal purchase of local school construction bonds unmarketable except at excessive interest rates.

Some school districts, however, are unable to raise capital funds needed for school construction because of bonding limits. To encourage school construction in these districts, as well as in districts where construction would be speeded by the lease-purchase method, I propose again that Congress authorize advances to the states as a reserve for bonds of state school financing agencies.

State Bond Agencies

Several states have made marked progress in building schools through state agencies which issue long-term bonds to finance school construction in the districts. The school district leases the new building. Revenue from rents is used by the agencies to retire their bonds. After the bonds have been paid, title to the school is transferred to the local district. The program of federal support is aimed at helping more states start such school financing agencies, and thus at helping local districts overcome barriers to building more schools.

The credit support for bonds of communities and state agencies taken together with the planning grants, should help the states and communities continue their present annual rate of substantial increase in school construction over the next five years. The partnership program of federal grants, matched by the states, should complete the task of building the classrooms that are critically needed.

AID TO FEDERALLY AFFECTED AREAS

In considering the school construction problem, there is a special, related area which should have the attention of the Congress at this time. The Congress has for some years recognized the responsibility of the Federal Government to aid communities where federal activities result in excessive burdens on the local school system. Authority to provide federal funds for school construction in federally affected school districts will expire next June and should be extended.

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH

Basic to all endeavors in improving education is a vigorous and far-sighted program of educational research. This has been a sorely neglected field.

Such a program should be comprehensive in its approach, planned on a broad scale and executed thoroughly. In this way, educational research can, among other things, point the way to advances in making life more meaningful to more people and in the more effective use of manpower and funds for education.

Education Projects

To increase the effectiveness of education, national leadership could well be directed to research in such areas as: ways of educating more people to their fullest capacity, staffing and housing the nation's schools and colleges, educating the child of special abilities so that he may utilize these abilities more fully; the relationship of schools to juvenile delinquency; educational effects of population mobility; educational needs of low income families. These studies would be conducted through the Office of Education in co-operation with the nation's colleges, universities and state departments of education. This is encouraging and strengthening existing research efforts. For these research purposes, and also to expand and improve other services, I urge the Congress to provide a major increase in funds for the Office of Education.

EDUCATION BEYOND HIGH SCHOOL

Our vision would be limited if we failed at this time to give special thought to education beyond the high school. Certain problems exist now in this field, and already we can foresee other needs and problems shaping up in the future.

Shortages now exist in medicine, teaching, nursing, science, engineering, and in other fields of knowledge which require education beyond the level of the secondary school. Changing times and conditions create new opportunities and challenges. There are new possibilities for older persons—properly trained —to lead more productive and rewarding lives. The tide of increasing school enrollment will soon reach higher educational institutions. Within 10 years, we may expect three students in our colleges and universities for every two who are there now.

Higher education is and must remain the responsibility of the states, localities and private groups and institutions. But to lay before us all the problems of education beyond high school, and to encourage active and systematic attack on them, I shall appoint a distinguished group of educators and citizens to develop this year, through studies and conferences, proposals in this educational field. Through the leadership and counsel of this group, beneficial results can be expected to flow to education and to the nation in the years ahead.

TEACHING

In all our efforts for education—in providing adequate schools, research and study—we must never lose sight of the very heart of education: good teaching itself.

Good teachers do not just happen. They are the product of the highest personal motivation, encouraged and helped in their work by adequate salaries and the respect, support, goodwill of their neighbors. The quality of American teaching has never been better. But the rewards for too many teachers are not commensurate with their work and their role in American life.

It is my earnest hope that, along with progress in other aspects of education, the states and communities will give increasing attention to this taproot of all education—good teachers, and hence good teaching.

CONCLUSION

These several proposals are designed, not only to correct current problems, but to build for the future. For today's decisions will influence tomorrow's education—and, hence, the welfare of the nation.

The actions here proposed, I believe, constitute a sound and realistic approach to those educational problems on which the Federal Government should now act. They have a primary reliance on the private initiative which wells from the free spirit of a free people.

With this program, we can lay the basis for better education in America in the years ahead. In this way we keep faith with our children.

MILLION-DOLLAR BRINK'S ROBBERY SOLVED, 8 HELD

route to the United States fiscal agent.

Witnesses at Inquiry.

The department said all of the gang members except Farber were among the many witnesses who appeared before a federal grand jury which investigated the Brink's robbery between Nov. 25, 1952 and Jan. 9, 1953, at Boston.

During the FBI's six-year investigation, thousands of possible suspects were investigated and eliminated.

Brink's, an armored trucking service which hauls money to banks, stores and other businesses, offered $100,000 in rewards.

The robbery looked like the perfect crime despite early leads and legal efforts to force suspects to reveal what they knew, but Hoover had vowed from the beginning that the FBI would never rest until it cracked the case. At one time 3000 police officers and FBI agents were working on the case.

The FBI's continuous investigation revealed that the robbery was "a product of the combined thought and criminal experience of men who had known each other for many years," the Justice Department said.

The gang planned the robbery more than a year in advance. Its success resulted from what the department called "a systematic study of the Brink's organization."

The FBI investigation showed that each member of the gang had familiarized himself with the building and with Brink's schedules and shipments by entering the building surreptitiously on several occasions after employees had left for the day.

The gang also made several "trial runs" of the robbery by practicing their approach and their flight.

The gang met in the Roxbury section of Boston in the early evening of Jan. 17.

On the way to the Brink's building seven members donned Navy-type pea coats and chauffeurs caps. They equipped themselves with pistols, gloves, and Halloween masks.

The Justice Department announcement did not explain how the gang obtained the keys to the building.

Given Go-Ahead Signal.

The men were given a "go ahead" signal to enter the building from a "lookout" on the roof of another building on the same street.

With their keys, the seven masked members of the gang went to the second floor where they took five Brink's employees by surprise. They tied them up and sealed their mouths with adhesive tape.

The gang got the largest cash haul in history but missed another $1,000,000 in cash in the vault in their hurry to get away. The entire robbery took only 20 minutes.

The robbers worked swiftly and were limited in their loot only by the amount they could lug out. They even had to drag the money across the floors.

A number of Brink's employees were questioned at one time because of the ease with which the holdup was staged. They all were released.

Loot Put in Truck.

The gang loaded the loot into the stolen truck and took it to the home of one of the members in Roxbury the same evening.

Some members tried to count the loot. But they gave up the task and left to establish alibis for themselves.

On the night of the robbery, the gang removed about $360,000 from the Roxbury house and the equipment used in the robbery.

Next day—on Jan. 18—a gang member took the remainder of the loot from the house.

Divided Weeks Later.

Several weeks later it was divided up among the 11 men. The robbers also took four pistols from Brink's.

One was found by a group of boys near the Mystic river at Somerville and turned over to police there on Feb. 5.

Descriptions of the stolen truck used in the robbery were obtained from persons in the vicinity of the crime scene.

Pieces of an identical truck were found at a dump at Stoughton, Mass., on March 4, 1950. The truck had been cut up with an acetylene torch.

Before leaving the Brink's building, the gang tried to open a metal box containing a General Electric Co. payroll, but they didn't succeed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12.—The Missouri Supreme Court today took under advisement a property dispute between the College Club of St. Louis and the St. Louis branch, American Association of University Women.

Division No. 1 of the court heard arguments of counsel in an appeal from a ruling of Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood, who held that property worth about $40,000 belongs to the College Club. The property includes a three-story clubhouse at 5428 Delmar boulevard and bonds and cash in excess of $11,000.

The College Club, which formerly was the St. Louis branch of the American Association of University Women, split into two factions when the national organization lifted its bar on Negroes in 1949. Rather than accept desegregation, a majority of the members voted to cancel affiliation with the A.A.U.W. The minority which did not secede contends that it is entitled to the property now held by the College Club.

EISENHOWER HAS NO COMMENT ON ILLINOIS PRIMARY story by the Associated Press dealing with an intention.

There is a great deal of difference.

No Clearer Indication.

There were some new predictions that the President would seek re-election, but no one claimed to see in the White House statement any clearer indication than Mr. Eisenhower gave a press conference on Sunday at Key West, Fla.

He said then his mind is not so fixed that it cannot be changed. The clear implication was that he has made a tentative decision one way or the other, but he was careful not to say what it was.

His doctors have said it will be mid-February before they can say whether his recovery from a heart attack Sept. 24 is complete enough for him to run.

Shortly after the Illinois development, it was announced that Mr. Eisenhower's name would be entered in the Florida preference primary on May 29.

State Republican Chairman G. Harold Alexander said at Fort Myers that "there definitely will be a slate for Mr. Eisenhower and it will win by an overwhelming majority."

A candidate's consent is not required for entry in the preference primary in Florida.

In Illinois, the custom has been to withdraw a name on request of the entrant. Hagerty declined to say whether such a step might be taken if Mr. Eisenhower decides not to run.

Regardless of what he decides about a second term, the very presence of his name in the primaries serves as a "holding action" which prevents the building up of other candidates.

It may thus affect the plans of Senate Minority Leader William F. Knowland of California, whose friends have indicated that his name may be entered in Illinois if there is no early announcement from Mr. Eisenhower.

The deadline for filing in Illinois is Jan. 23. Knowland, who declined to consent to the entry of Mr. Eisenhower's name in Illinois, has said the President should make his announcement by the end of this month to permit others to enter early primaries should Mr. Eisenhower bow out.

He has said he will back Mr. Eisenhower if he makes the race.

Senator Glenn Beall (Rep.), Maryland, told reporters that if Mr. Eisenhower did not plan to run "he would have said something about it before now."

"There is no reason for him to give any statement at this time," Beall said, "and there is no necessity for all this hysteria about an early statement."

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, said the developments "only confirm my belief, and my prayers and hopes, that he will see it as his duty to run."

Senator Clinton Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, said he still thinks "there is no doubt President Eisenhower will run again." He added that he thinks the Democrats will defeat him.

Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, described as "highly encouraging" a report issued by Hagerty yesterday on behalf of three of Mr. Eisenhower's physicians. The report, made after a 45-minute examination, said the President's "physical condition is excellent."

NO CONSTABLE TO AID HIM,
COUNTY MAGISTRATE BALKS

Magistrate Raymond I. Harris of Clayton, informed attorneys today he would accept no more civil cases and would stop handling criminal cases at the end of the month, because the County Council failed to provide him with a constable.

Harris' Fifth District was established by the State Legislature 18 months ago, as a state office, after the county's population passed the 400,000 mark. Constables are county officials, and the charter provides for four in St. Louis county. Harris has been using constables from the First and Second Districts.

A request that the County Council provide the First District with extra deputies, to handle Fifth District business, was not included in the appropriations bill now under consideration.

Magistrate Harris, whose court is at 34 North Central avenue, said 150 civil and criminal matters are pending, and he plans to clear his docket before Feb. 1. Last Monday Harris heard 179 traffic violation cases brought in by the Highway Patrol, and assessed about $4900 in fines.

ITALIAN CIVIL SERVICE BILL APPROVED BEFORE DEADLINE

ROME, Jan. 12 (UP).—Premier Segni won a race with time last night and pushed through a year-old bill regulating salaries and working conditions of Italian civil servants.

President Gronchi signed the bill 20 minutes before midnight—the deadline. Government sources made no secret of the fact that failure of the bill to pass on time would have touched off a wave of strikes that could have unseated the Segni cabinet.

The bill which goes into effect today gives government white collar workers conditions for career advancement, pensions and wage increases. The wage increases will cost the government an estimated $417,600,000 annually.

INQUIRY BEGINS IN FIRE IN WHICH TWO PERISHED

An investigation into possible violations of the city building code was begun today by Fire Marshal Walter Bergman following a fire yesterday in which two small children suffocated at 2701-03 Howard street.

Bergman said the quarters on the third floor, where the children lived, was an attic "never intended for living quarters." The children, Wallace, 4 years old, and Rico, 2, were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Martin, Negroes.

The attic flat had only one means of access, a steep, narrow rear stairway, and its rooms were divided with cardboard partitions, Bergman said.

Cause of the fire was kerosene which had leaked from a fuel can in the kitchen. It was ignited by flames from a gas cooking stove the family used for heating, he said.

PRESIDENT SEEKS $2,170,000,000 FOR SCHOOL AID in the Administration's 1955 program. Last year, Mr. Eisenhower asked for only $200,000,000 in direct grants, and these were to be spread over three years and limited to local school districts unable to benefit from other provisions designed to help them help themselves.

President Eisenhower's new request falls short of a Democratic program last year for federal matching aid at a rate of $400,000,000 a year for four years. Neither house completed action on this or the Administration proposals last year.

In expanding his plan for federal aid, the President followed recommendations of the White House Conference on Education, held last month at his own suggestion. The conference concluded that delegates were "more than two-to-one" in favor of federal aid for school construction, but "divided almost evenly" on the issue of federal funds for local school operation.

Salaries a Local Matter.
The President referred only indirectly to teachers' salaries and made it clear that this was a problem for state and local authorities.

"The quality of American teaching has never been better," he said. "But the rewards for far too many teachers are not commensurate with their work and their role in American life."

"It is my earnest hope that, along with progress in other aspects of education, the states and communities will give increasing attention to this important part of our education—good teachers, and hence good teaching."

Turning to problems of higher education, Mr. Eisenhower announced he would appoint "a distinguished group of educators and citizens" to conduct studies and hold conferences this year in this field.

He made it clear that he considered higher education "is and must remain the responsibility of the states, localities and private groups and institutions." But he expressed concern about present shortages of manpower in medicine, teaching, nursing, science and engineering. He predicted that in 10 years there would be three students in the nation's colleges and universities for every two enrolled there now.

Believes Program Is Enough.
Twice the President expressed confidence that the five-year program would be sufficient to see the nation through its present school crisis. He emphasized that he considered federal grants an emergency, temporary measure.

"If speedily and fully utilized, this federal program—added to the increased basic efforts of states and localities—should overcome the nation's critical classroom shortage within five years," he said.

"Once this shortage is overcome, the federal grant program can and must terminate. The states and localities should then go forward, without federal funds, to meet their current and future needs. Present construction levels indicate their ability to do this."

At another point, he said: "The partnership program of federal grants, matched by the states, should complete the task of building the classrooms that are critically needed."

Penalty for Lagging States.
In discussing the message with reporters, Folsom estimated that eight or 10 states would be penalized for failure to spend sufficient state funds on their schools.

Explaining how this penalty formula would work, he said a state's federal grant would be reduced if its per capita expenditures for all school purposes, including teacher's salaries, was below the national average and if it devoted to school purposes a smaller proportion of per capita income than the national average.

Asked why the Administration had decided to ask for large direct grants this year instead of relying primarily on assistance to state and local bond programs, Folsom pointed out that he was not Secretary of the Department when the 1955 program was drawn up. He succeeded Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby last August.

"We know a lot more about the problem than we did a year ago," he went on. "Also, a year has gone by with nothing done about it, so that the situation is more serious than it was a year ago."

470,000 Classrooms Needed.
Summing up the new proposals, he said they were intended to help the states meet a "reasonable goal" of 470,000 new classrooms over the next five years. He said this figure included 210,000 required by school enrollment increases, 80,000 to relieve present overcrowding, double-shift sessions and use of makeshift buildings, and replacement of 180,000 obsolete classrooms.

Folsom declined to make any direct answer as to whether federal grants would be available to Virginia and other states moving to convert their public schools to private systems to avoid racial integration.

That is one of those life questions of legal interpretation," he said.

In answer to another question, however, he said the federal funds were available only for public schools, not for private or religious schools.

NEW SENATORIAL DISTRICTS ARE DRAWN BY BOARD

The final balloting he voted for the chairman's map, however. Other members of the board objected to Nack's maps because of a larger disparity in population among them.

District 1—Starting at the Mississippi river and Meramec street, westward to Brannon avenue, north to Arsenal street, west to Tamm avenue, to Southwest avenue to the city limits. District 1 includes Wards 11, 12, 13 and 28.

The Supreme Court turned down a request for a rehearing of its redistricting decision, filed for two St. Louis voters, who intervened in the suit. The application for rehearing was filed by Maurice Schechter, attorney for the intervenors.

DALTON SAYS ASSEMBLY MUST ACT ON CHARTER

Older Hands More Active.
Renewed political activity by older, wiser heads in the Democratic party has been in evidence for several weeks, the Post-Dispatch has learned, in an attempt to prevent overconfident party politicians from creating an issue which would again send the party reeling back on its heels for many years, as it did after the attempted "governorship steal" in 1941.

Many of the veterans of earlier political battles remember how the attempted domination of the party by the St. Louis machine caused the Democrats first to lose the governorship race in 1940 and then all city offices the following year.

They now fear that using the power in the party's hands to defeat the Mayor's attempt to improve the city's government will create similar issues for Republicans in this year's election campaigns.

Feeling the Heat.
It has become more apparent to older politicians in recent weeks that failure by the Board of Aldermen to act tomorrow to call an election of freeholders on March 6, as requested by the Mayor, will not end "the heat" which has been directed at Democratic politicians and aldermen on the issue for almost two years.

They are said to feel that the heat, which until now has been smoldering, will break out into roaring flame if the charter bill is defeated tomorrow when it is up for action before the aldermen.

It is known among those in politics that this is the last time Mayor Tucker will give his fellow party members a chance to vindicate themselves on the issue of whether the basic law for the city is to be modernized.

Although he has refrained from threatening them, there is no doubt that, if the aldermen vote down his proposal tomorrow, he will take the issue directly to the people.

Issue Would Be Kept Alive.
Doing that would keep the refusal of the Democratic politicians to permit revision of the antiquated 41-year-old charter before the public for the remainder of the coming election campaign.

In the first place, initiative petitions for enactment of an ordinance calling an election would have to be circulated and filed with the Board of Aldermen. If the board fails to act within 30 days, the matter would be referred to the voters in a special election.

If the ordinance passed in this election, then another special election would have to be called to elect the 13 citizen-freeholders to draft a proposed new charter.

Nomination of freeholders would also be by petition circulated among the general public. All this intense activity would take several important months during the primary and general election campaigns this year and would keep alive in the public mind the refusal of the present Democratic leadership to authorize an election of freeholders to draw up a modernized charter.

It is this intense activity on the part of the Mayor that the older men in the local party fear. They remember well how he single-handedly defeated the machine of the Democratic City Central Committee to obtain the party's nomination three years ago and how he went on, in spite of the subsequent coolness of these politicians, to be elected by the largest margin ever given a mayoralty candidate.

They recall also how his efforts were responsible for getting 6 to 1 approval for the earnings tax amendment to the charter at a time the party politicians felt taxes were an unpopular issue and they recall also how last spring his efforts resulted in overwhelming majorities for the items in the $110,639,000 bond issue.

His persistence in behalf of good government is also known to the older politicians. There is no doubt in their minds that he will keep up the fight for a new charter until he gets one.

They are reasoning that it is better politically for the Democratic party to let him have a board of freeholders now than to have him continue this fight through an important election.

Mayor Preparing.
Tucker, who is preparing to make a personal appeal to the aldermen tomorrow in behalf of the freeholder measure, has declined to disclose his future plans in the event the measure should be defeated.

But, well-known for his usual preparation for any eventuality, he has been unusually active in a quiet way this week, leading observers at City Hall to believe he will be ready to start immediately an initiative petition if the bill fails to pass. In his calm manner, however, he merely expresses confidence that the measure will pass.

The St. Louis Industrial Union Council, CIO, last night adopted a resolution expressing the belief that the present charter needs revision but disagreeing with the contention that the entire document needs revising. It asked the aldermen to propose amendments, "in keeping with present day requirements," to the present charter.

6 Killed in French Blast.
LA FLECHE, France, Jan. 12 (AP)—Six men were killed and four seriously injured last night when a case of detonators exploded at the Camp de Beauregard munitions depot.

VIOLENCE AT TWO PLANTS OF WESTINGHOUSE, 10 HURT
NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 12 (AP)—Violence broke out on two fronts of the Westinghouse strike in New Jersey today as cars tried to pass through picket lines into plants at Bloomfield and Edison.

Ten persons were injured in the incidents. Among the injured were a police captain, seriously hurt, and a union local president.

At Bloomfield, Police Chief Fred Hess said three persons were hurt when a car carrying three production workers and supervisors crashed through a line of 50 pickets.

Later, three women pickets were injured when another car tried to get through a line at Bloomfield.

In the Edison incident, four pickets were injured, none seriously, when autos hit them as they massed at the plant gates.

MO. PAC. SEEKS AUTHORITY TO ISSUE NEW SECURITIES
The reorganization managers of the new Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. yesterday sought Interstate Commerce Commission authority to issue new securities to be exchanged for the outstanding stock and bonds of the old firm.

After the exchange is completed, an order of consummation will be asked of United States District Judge George H. Moore. This order will complete a reorganization proceeding that began in 1932 when the railroad went into bankruptcy.

Searcher for 5 Missionaries Sights Two Men in Jungle

Flyer Reports One of Pair Waved Shirt—
Low Visibility Curtails Aerial Hunt.

QUITO, Ecuador, Jan. 12 (AP)—Air search for five United States missionaries missing in the Amazon jungle area of north-eastern Ecuador was curtailed today by low visibility.

Hope was held that two of the missionaries had survived an indicated attack by savage Aucas Indians. The hope was based on an airline pilot's report he had sighted two men yesterday on the bank of the Curaray river in the jungle.

The pilot, Capt. Gonzalo Ruales, said he saw the men during a flight before dusk and one of them waved a white shirt.

Ruales took off on a flight over the area today but returned to Shell Mera, the nearest village, when clouds prevented observation. He was accompanied by Mrs. Roger Youderian, wife of one of the missionaries, and Frank Cook, a Quito radio announcer.

(In Toronto, W. R. Roberts, father of Dr. Paul Roberts, director of the Rimmer Memorial Missionary Hospital at Quito, said he had received word by radio that a group search party led by Dr. Art Johnson of St. Catharines, Ont., had left Quito to search for the missionaries.)

First word of the spotting of the two men yesterday was received today in New York in a radiotelephone interview between Dr. Clarence W. Jones, president of the World Radio Missionary Fellowship, and Dave Garroway of the National Broadcasting Co.

Jones said the men were sighted by a local commercial pilot who photographed them with a 35-millimeter camera. They could not be identified from the photographs, however.

Jones said that a United States Air Force helicopter arrived yesterday to aid in the search.

(The United Press reported that the helicopter hovered today over the spot where it was believed any survivors might be.

the missionaries had flown to the jungle site in an effort to get in contact with the Aucas. The bodies were not identified. Besides Youderian the missing men are Nathaniel Saint, Huntington Valley, Pa.; James Elliott, Portland, Ore.; Edward McCulley, Milwaukee, Wis., and Peter Fleming, Seattle, Wash. They apparently were seized Sunday just after radioing. "Here come a group of Aucas whom we have not known before."

All five missing men have been missionaries in South America for three to 10 years. All are married and have been accompanied by their wives and children. Jones said they made their initial contact with the Aucas last month. The Indians accepted gifts and appeared friendly. The Aucas, the least civilized of Ecuador's Indians, are arrogant and independent, always ready to defend their territory against trespassers. They are undisputed masters of the Cuzco region along the Curaray river in Napo Pastaza province.

SVERDRUP CALLS FOR AREA-WIDE TRAFFIC STUDY

Suggests C. of C. Work to Extend Master Plan Throughout County.

A comprehensive study of the traffic problems in St. Louis and St. Louis county, including interstate traffic, has been suggested as a starting point for the metropolitan traffic committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today.

Leif J. Sverdrup, chairman of the traffic committee, in a letter to the Chamber's executive committee pointed out that the Citizens Metropolitan Transit Committee, composed of three city and three county members, will receive proposals Feb. 1 for solving traffic problems of the city-county area.

In view of the transit committee's work, Sverdrup suggested that his committee, using available information, work toward completing and bringing up to date the present master traffic plan and extending its principles into the incorporated and unincorporated areas of St. Louis county.

The committee, he said, also can work for better co-operation between the city and county and between the 98 municipalities in the county on such problems, study obvious traffic bottlenecks and work toward eliminating them.

Sverdrup suggested his committee work to promote the adoption of uniform traffic regulations and controls throughout the county and finally urge

ATTLEE TO SAY GOODBYE TONIGHT TO ACTIVE POLITICS

LONDON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Socialist Clement Attlee, now an earl, bows formally out of Britain's political front ranks tonight, leaving to younger blood the resurgent labor attack against Prime Minister Eden's government.

Eden seemed to be weathering the storm, but Britain's latest Gallup poll said his popularity had declined in the past three months. It said he now has the support of 60 per cent of the general public and had the support of 70 per cent in September.

The poll was taken during the last two weeks of December, before the Socialist attack was launched with a vigor that caught Eden in between the Laborites and severe grumblings within the Conservative party. Attlee, 73 years old last week, returns tonight to the East London district he has represented in the House of Commons since 1950 to thank the voters and say farewell. By the end of the month he will be established in the House of Lords as an elder statesman.

Nippon Times President Named. TOKYO, Jan. 12 (UP)—Shin-ato Fukushima, a former diplomat who served many years in the United States, was elected president of the independent English language Nippon Times today. He pledged to "continue the policy of very close co-operation in the interests of Japanese-American friendship." Fukushima succeeds Kiyoshi To-gasaki.

Whatever administrative changes appear to be necessary, he concluded.

"In short, we can use existing information and, with the advice and counsel of available technical experts, endeavor to obtain the best possible use of existing traffic facilities pending adoption of a long-range plan which the transit committee's survey would make possible."

TWO SAID TO ADMIT DISMEMBERING GIRL

Fatal Abortion Suspected—Boy Friend and Ex-Employee of Hospital Held.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Two men have admitted they dismembered the body of blond fashion artist Jacqueline Smith, 20 years old, presumably after a fatal abortion Christmas eve, police said today.

The body of the girl, who came here from Lebanon, Pa., to make a career, still has not been found. The men allegedly disposed of it in "different places."

The admission came from two men facing arrest on homicide charges, the police said.

Assistant District Attorney Alexander Herman ordered the arrest of Thomas G. Daniel, 24 years old, the fashion designer's steady friend, and Leo Pijuan, 46, a former hospital employee.

Authorities worked on the theory that Miss Smith may have been the victim of a bungled abortion and that her body was dismembered and hidden.

They said they found a supply of surgical instruments in Pijuan's apartment.

The order for the arrests came after long interrogation of Pijuan.

Daniel already had been in custody in $25,000 bail as a material witness.

Authorities said Daniel has given conflicting stories about his girl friend's disappearance; that she walked out while he dozed on a couch; that she committed suicide with a knife when he refused to marry her and he dumped her body into the Hudson river; and that a second man was involved.

Also questioned were George Guzman and Dr. Oscar Klaus. The latter dined with Miss Smith and Daniel in Daniel's apartment Christmas eve.

Police yesterday dragged the Hudson river at the spot where Daniel purportedly said he disposed of the girl's body. Other areas, including the East river, may be dragged today.

Daniel came to New York from Warren, O., in 1953. Daniel has been working in a fashionable riding equipment shop. Miss Smith, ambitious to become a fashion designer, had been working at a silk brokerage firm.

PRESIDENT NAMES SOBELOFF TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower today nominated United States Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff to be a federal circuit judge—an appointment on which the Senate took no action at the last session.

Mr. Eisenhower named Sobeloff to be judge for the fourth circuit, which includes Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina. Sobeloff's home is in Baltimore.

The nomination apparently faces opposition from Southern Democrats. Senator Thurmond of South Carolina has said he opposes confirmation on the ground that Sobeloff "has been a strong advocate of integration of races in the public schools."

Though the solicitor general normally handles a Government case before the Supreme Court, Sobeloff neither signed the Government brief nor argued the case against the late Dr. John Peters, a Yale professor who was dismissed as a public health consultant after a civil service loyalty board held that there was a reasonable doubt about his loyalty. Dr. Peters appealed successfully from the finding and the Supreme Court ruled that the review board had no right to intervene.

MOBERLY OFFICIALS DENY PROSECUTOR'S VICE CHARGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., Jan. 12 — City officials took sharp issue today with a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney John F. Carmody that Moberly is "Missouri's Phenix City, Ala." Police Chief Omar Winn said it is as clean as any town its size in the state.

Carmody made the statement after he was severely beaten with a ballpeen hammer in his office Tuesday. He blamed the underworld for the attack and said he would urge a grand jury investigation of prostitution and gambling here. An investigation of vice in Phenix City attracted national attention.

Meanwhile authorities today continued an investigation of the beating. They questioned merchants in the area in an attempt to obtain a description of the attacker. A towel, in which the hammer was wrapped, has been traced to a Kansas City linen firm.

COUNTY TO DRAW UP CONTRACT FOR REASSESSMENT

Legality of Pact With Private Firms to Be Determined in Meantime.

Preparation of a contract with two private firms to make a parcel-by-parcel revaluation of all St. Louis county real estate will be started immediately, William B. Kline, assistant county counselor, announced today.

Kline said the counselor's office at the same time will take steps to initiate a lawsuit which would determine the county's legal right to contract with private firms for this purpose. It is hoped a court decision can be obtained by July 1.

The county council yesterday approved a resolution authorizing the contract. The resolution directed that two firms, Roy Wenzlick & Co., and Doane Agricultural Service, Inc., be employed. The council directed an appropriation of $250,000 to cover the first year of re-appraisal be included in the budget of County Assessor Phil G. Deuser.

Since some preliminary work has been done on the contract, Kline said, the counselor's office should have it completed and ready for signing within a week. Filing of the test case would follow.

Three Major Questions. These three major questions would be raised by the suit: Whether the county can contract with private firms, whether the county can qualify for a refund from the state of half the cost of re-assessment, and whether the county can make such a contract running longer than a year.

Kline, who said the suit probably would be filed in circuit court, expressed the opinion that some preliminary work could be done on re-appraisals before the final court action.

Original authorization for the contract was voted last June by the council, which set total cost of re-appraisal at $855,000. A council committee reported Deuser and County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews had agreed on revaluation of county property in "a non-political and scientific manner." No action had been started to carry out the contract, however.

A delegation of county school officials appeared before the council yesterday and asked that any large scale changes in assessments be held up until next Jan. 1. Otherwise it would be difficult for school districts to know how to figure the 1956 tax rate, a spokesman said.

Final action on six appropriation bills totaling $9,089,816 was held up when Councilman James H. J. McNary (Dem.), Second District, objected to a substitute bill appropriating $4,728,235 for the 1956 general revenue fund.

The council at a special meeting last Saturday had decided a number of controversial appropriations would be placed in an emergency fund not earmarked for any specific use. When this was included in the bill introduced yesterday, McNary said he was opposed because the emergency fund could be "tapped" for any use the council might wish to make of it.

McNary further objected because the bill would set a tentative tax rate of 72 cents on each $100 assessed valuation, an increase of six cents over the 1955 rate. The entire boost would be in the general revenue levy, which would be 29 cents.

"This bill is not the one I understood would be presented," McNary said. "It is a subterfuge because it requires an increase in the tax rate. I am against the 29-cent levy this bill would require."

McNary said the emergency fund would be controlled by Republicans, who hold a 4-to-3 majority on the council. He voted against a series of amendments introduced by Councilman James Singer (Rep.), to remove money from the emergency fund and earmark it for specific departments.

The appropriation bills introduced included an increase of $320,253 over the amount recommended by Supervisor Matthews. Through a series of amendments increases were voted yesterday for three county offices.

Officers affected and the amounts of appropriation were as follows: County police department, $594,970, an increase of $98,000 to provide 17 additional men and seven cars; election board, $401,773, an increase of $110,000, and the assessor's office, $625,335, an increase of $200,000.

SPRING BLUFF BOY DIES OF AUTO CRASH INJURIES

Gary Mastin, 15-year-old schoolboy of Spring Bluff, Mo., died last night at St. Francis Hospital, Washington, Mo., of injuries suffered yesterday when an automobile in which he was a passenger went out of control and overturned on Highway U near his home in Franklin county.

The boy was riding with his brother, Thomas, 20, when a rear tire of the machine blew out on a gravel road. Highway Patrolmen at the Kirkwood station reported. Gary was thrown out of the automobile and when it overturned it struck him, officers said. Spring Bluff is 75 miles southwest of St. Louis.

PHILIPPINES WON'T SPONSOR FORMOSA IN ASIAN TREATY

MANILA, Jan. 12 (AP)—Vice President Carlos P. Garcia said yesterday the Philippines would support a proposal to include Nationalist China in the Southeast Asia defense alliance but would not initiate the move. Garcia, also Foreign Secretary, denied press reports here that the Philippines would sponsor Formosa as a member of the alliance.

He discounted the probability of Nationalist China's admission. He said two other treaty members—Britain and Pakistan—recognize Communist China and are not expected to conclude mutual defense treaties with a country they have considered as judicially non-existent.

ST. LOUIS ADDRESS ON RED PAMPHLETS

Anti-Segregation Literature Distributed in Louisiana.

Distribution of anti-segregation pamphlets in Louisiana over the signature of the Communist party's regional office in St. Louis was being investigated today.

The address of the "Southern Regional Committee of the Communist Party" is listed on the pamphlets as "P.O. Box 464, St. Louis, Mo." Postmarked from cities within Louisiana, the literature was sent to persons all over the state.

Investigations were started by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Louisiana, the district attorney's office at Baton Rouge, and the New Orleans chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

A. P. Tureaud of New Orleans, an attorney for the N.A.A.C.P., branded the pamphlets an attempt to link the organization with the Communist party before the Louisiana gubernatorial election scheduled for Tuesday.

The Post-Dispatch was unable to find anyone in St. Louis who would acknowledge being a representative of the Communist party or having any knowledge of the literature.

Tureaud said the N.A.A.C.P. had denounced Communism and the Communist party, asserting: "We in the N.A.A.C.P. believe we are quite capable of handling our affairs without the assistance of any subversive groups, including the Communists."

Leander H. Perez, state district attorney for the Twenty-fifth district in southern Louisiana and a pro-segregation leader, declared the pamphlets "prove unmistakably that the fight for racial integration is actually the Communist cold war on the home front."

NICARAGU HEARING PUT OFF DAY. WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The House committee investigating the Government's nickel plant at Nicara, Cuba, has postponed opening its hearing until tomorrow. It also switched the inquiry from New York to Washington.

The inquiry was originally set for New York today. The change was made because all subcommittee members were not able to take time out for a trip to New York.

BROWNELL AGAIN ASKS FOR SLOT MACHINE LAW CHANGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Attorney General Brownell yesterday renewed a 1954 request that Congress clarify a 1951 act prohibiting interstate shipment of slot machines and other gambling devices.

In a letter to House Speaker Rayburn, Brownell noted that in 1953 the Supreme Court held that some sections of the act are too vague and ambiguous to be enforced. The court also said the federal statute could not be used to regulate intrastate business, as the Justice Department had attempted to do.

The law requires manufacturers and dealers in gambling devices to register with the Attorney General and file monthly sales reports. The Attorney General wants to eliminate the monthly reports in favor of current inventories, open to inspection by the FBI.

PRICE RECOVERY IN STOCKS IS EXTENDED

Price Gain Range to 3 Points and More Cut to 2 on Late Profit-Taking.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—

The stock market moved higher today, but late profit-taking truncated the size of most gains.

The urge to take profits became more evident in the closing

ran from fractions to around two points. Earlier in the day, there had been plus signs of three points and more.

Today's upturn was a continuation of a rally that started yesterday, halting a slide earlier in the week.

Most sections of the list were higher, but the rails, strong

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $1.10 at $173.20. The industrials were up $2.20, the rails 60 cents and the utilities 20 cents.

Dow-Jones averages of 30 industries was 481.80, up 3.30

points at the close, the 20 rails

160.11 up 40 and the 15 utilities

63.91 up 33.

There were 633 advancing issues and 300 declining issues traded today, 1172 against 1184 yesterday. There were 15 new high for 1955-56 and six new

Volume totaled 2,300,000

shares against 2,310,000 yester-

Steel, rubber, chemical and oil shares were higher with the motors and aircrafts.

General Motors opened unchanged and then advanced around a point and a point.

In the aircrafts, Boeing,

United, Northrop, Lockheed and North American were strong.

Westworth, up yesterday on an increased dividend, extended its gain today. Douglas was ahead on an extra dividend and earnings forecast. Reynolds

Metals, up 4 1/2 yesterday, opened with a further gain today on news of a big contract was hit by profit-taking.

Du Pont was among the better gainers, up nearly four

steaming American Hawaiian

Steamship jumped more than

The market's decline on Monday and Tuesday was attributed

run again. Yesterday the market rallied, helped along by news that physicians regarded the President's physical condition as "excellent."

Most analysts were cautious about predicting the market's immediate course. Some observed that political factors would play a bigger role for the present than corporate developments. Others noted that earnings statements could be looked for shortly from many

FIGHT PAIN FAST...
Deep-Down Where it Hurts

Don't suffer tortures of arthritis, rheumatism, back pain, sprains, neuralgia, chest cold discomforts! Use DENCORUB for blessed relief.

With DENCORUB, no prolonged rubbing is necessary, because it rubs in, not on, acts fast... penetrates into your joints almost instantly and carries with it medication that (1) acts directly to soothe sensitive nerve endings while, (2) it stimulates sluggish circulation at point of pain, raising temperature of tortured tissue with beneficial heat, to further relieve deep-down pain. Unlike other rubs, DENCORUB is greaseless, stainless, has pleasant, "non-medicinal" fragrance.

Get DENCORUB (formerly Antiphlogistine Rub A-535) at Katz Stores today. Regular size 75c. Large $1.08. Economy tube saves you 45c.

REDS REPORTED INCREASING AID OFFERS TO INDIA

Russians Propose to Build Aluminum Industry, Expand Power Project.

NEW DELHI, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Soviet Union is reported to be stepping up its offers of economic assistance to India. Indian officials disclosed that the Russians have offered to build a complete aluminum industry and to expand a major hydro-electric project in this country. These and previous Soviet offers to build a steel mill and aid Indian oil exploration are believed only a beginning in the Russian campaign. Informants say, however, the Reds are finding the going slow, with the Indians examining every angle of any Russian proposition. Discussions of economic cooperation were started by members of the Soviet party which accompanied Russian Premier Bulganin and Communist party secretary Nikita S. Khrushchev on their November-December visit.

Discussions Stages. Indian officials so far will confirm only the Russian offers for the aluminum and hydro-electric projects, which they say are both still in the discussion stage. It was understood the unresolved factors include prices and credit terms.

India's small aluminum industry now produces about 7000 tons a year. The second five-year plan starting in April calls for boosting production to 30,000 tons. Officials said Russia has offered to supply technicians and machinery to aid the undertaking all along the line—from surveying and mining through the manufacture of finished products.

The hydro-electric project is at Machkund, in Andhra state. Already under construction, it will have a capacity of about 120,000 kilowatts.

The amount of the Soviet proposals was not disclosed, but United States engineers estimate expansion of the Machkund project would involve about $20,000,000. It is believed the aluminum proposal would cost at least that much.

Below U.S. Aid. American circles here said these amounts, with about $100,000,000 involved in the Soviet steel mill proposal, would still leave Moscow below the approximately $250,000,000 in aid the United States has given India in the last four years. However, these observers believe Russian economic co-operation is accelerating at a rate fast enough to pass the United States program.

United States Ambassador John Sherman Cooper left New Delhi yesterday for Washington to confer with the State Department, but there was no indication what his recommendations would be.

AMERICANS WANT PEACE, SOVIET VIOLINIST DECLARES

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP)—David Oistrakh, eminent Soviet violinist, returned to Moscow after an American concert tour. Moscow radio reported last night, he said: "My one and a half month's stay in the United States convinced me once more that the American people sincerely want peace and friendship with the Soviet Union."

Valley Park Man Saved by Fellow Jumper When Parachutes Tangle

SPECIALIST 2-C KENNETH D. MCGRAW (left), thanks SPECIALIST 3-C JAMES R. WILSON for saving his life in a parachute jump.

Paratrooper James R. Wilson has been credited with saving the life of a fellow soldier, Specialist 2-C Kenneth D. McGraw of Valley Park, by securing McGraw's fouled parachute when both were making a jump last week over Fort Bragg, N.C., it was learned here today.

Both soldiers had leaped simultaneously from opposite doors of a C-119 Flying Boxcar when McGraw's parachute became entangled with the suspension lines of Wilson's chute. The effect was to throw McGraw into free fall. "About three seconds had elapsed," Wilson said, "when a bunch of silk wrapped around me. I knew then a man was below and he was in trouble. I managed to grab a good bunch of the canopy before the full weight of McGraw's falling body hit the end of his suspension lines."

Meanwhile McGraw's arms became entangled in lines above his head, making it impossible to pull the cord on his reserve chute. McGraw said he yelled to Wilson to hang on, realizing the man was supporting the weight of two in the continuing descent.

Both men landed without injury. McGraw is the son of Mrs. Clare McGraw. Wilson is from Muncie, Ind.

Both men are members of the support company of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

FRANCE DECIDES NOT TO REINFORCE ALGERIAN TROOPS

PARIS, Jan. 12.—The 60,000 troops now being sent to Algeria should be enough to cope with the emergency in North Africa, the outgoing cabinet of Premier Faure decided yesterday.

Some ministers argued that additional troops should be sent to North Africa, but the cabinet voted to follow the plan of Gen. Pierre Billotte, defense minister, turning down requests for additional reinforcements to the Algerian garrison.

However, the Faure government which will resign automatically after the new National Assembly convenes Jan. 19, authorized a unified military and civilian command for the mountainous Kabylie area which is infested with Algerian rebels. This move was in line with recommendations of Gen. Pierre Jacquot, who was sent to Algeria to survey conditions there.

Official sources said Gen. Jacquot had advised better deployment of existing French manpower in Algeria and the 60,000 reinforcements on the way.

FIRE RAGES FOR 5 HOURS, RUINS BELLEVILLE FOUNDRY

A spectacular fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Supreme Foundry & Manufacturing Co. in Belleville early today. The company has not been operating for some time. The fire was discovered shortly after midnight by nearby residents. It spread rapidly through the large frame structure. Firemen from O'Fallon, Swansea and the Northwest and East Side Volunteer Fire Departments were summoned to assist the Belleville department.

Firemen poured water on an adjoining foundry to prevent the flames from spreading. The blaze was not extinguished until 5:30 a.m. today. An immediate estimate of the damage was not available.

NIXON'S EX-MANAGER FILES $1,250,000 LIBEL SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12 (AP)—The former campaign manager of Vice President Richard Nixon filed a $1,250,000 libel suit yesterday against a magazine, alleging an article called him "Nixon's secret link to the underworld."

The plaintiff is attorney Murray M. Chotiner, who in 1952 was Nixon's national campaign manager. Chotiner named Behind the Scene magazine, two corporations, 13 individuals, and 20 John Does as defendants. He asked for $500,000 general damages, $500,000 punitive damages and $250,000 special damages.

SURPLUS CROP DISPOSAL REPORT BY EISENHOWER

$1,692,000,000 Worth Sold or Given Away in First 18 Months of Farm Trade Act.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—President Eisenhower reported to Congress today that the Administration has disposed of $1,692,000,000 worth of surplus farm crops in the first 18 months of operation of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act.

In his third semi-annual report on the act, Mr. Eisenhower said most of the money represented sales of surpluses to foreign countries in exchange for foreign currency.

He said programming under the act totaled $491,000,000 in July-December, 1955, to bring the total to $1,692,000,000. The President gave this breakdown of operation:

1. Sale of surpluses for foreign currency—$211,000,000 in the last six months to make a total of $679,000,000. Congress last year increased from $700,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 the authorization for this type of disposal.

2. Famine or other relief shipments abroad—$32,000,000 during the last six months for a new total of $141,000,000.

3. Domestic school lunch and needy persons distribution and foreign relief through non-profit voluntary agency—$197,000,000 during the last six months for a total of $339,000,000.

4. Barter of surpluses abroad for strategic materials—$51,000,000 for a total of $333,000,000 since the start of the program.

The biggest single deal in foreign currency in the six-month period was a $71,810,000 sale, mostly of wheat, to Brazil. Second was sale of $42,168,000 worth of surpluses, again mostly wheat, to Yugoslavia.

3 FORCE BANK HEAD TO OPEN DOOR, STEAL $325 IN COINS

WHITTINGTON, Ill., Jan. 12 (UP)—Three robbers kidnaped the president of the Whittington State Bank last night and forced him to help them escape with $325.

The three men, described as being between 30 and 40 years old, forced their way into the home of Grover C. Payne, 70, in the evening. They ripped out the telephone, then one gunman guarded his wife, Jenny, 67, while the other two took Payne to his bank.

At the bank, Payne told the robbers a time lock prevented him from entering the vault. Another device, he said, would flash on the lights in less than an hour.

The men returned Payne to his home after collecting several bags containing $325 in coins.

66 DIE IN FIRE ON S. KOREAN COASTAL SHIP

Passengers Trapped in Cabin Blaze After Boy Drops Kerosene Lamp.

SEOUL, Jan. 12 (AP)—Sixty-six passengers, trapped in a third-class cabin, were burned to death today as flames swept through a small coastal ship, Korean national police reported. Eighteen persons were reported injured.

Police said a cabin boy dropped a kerosene lamp, turning the cluttered, below-deck cabin into an inferno.

The cabin boy and the captain were arrested on a charge of negligence.

The 130-ton ship was docked at Samcheong, about 60 miles west of Pusan on Korea's southern coast.

First-class passengers scurried to safety, but nearly all the third-class occupants were trapped and died, police said.

The ship was reported carrying 127 passengers. It was South Korea's biggest ship disaster since Jan. 9, 1953, when a passenger ship capsized off Pusan with a reported loss of 249 lives.

PRESIDENT SEEKS ADDITIONAL $25,000,000 IN DISASTER AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower today asked Congress for an additional $25,000,000 for his disaster relief fund, which has been depleted as a result of hurricanes and floods in 1955.

The money was sought in request for supplemental appropriations totaling $60,439,590, including $31,600,000 to reimburse the Army Engineers for money spent last year for flood relief in northeastern states.

At the time of the floods in August, congressional leaders authorized the President to spend the relief funds and promised to appropriate it later.

Mr. Eisenhower also asked for $330,000 for the Army to start a review of existing flood control projects in the northeast.

LEGALITY OF FOREIGN TRIALS OF SERVICE MEN QUESTIONED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Attorneys for four service men filed a suit today to test the constitutionality of trials of G.I.s in foreign courts for civil offenses committed overseas.

Foreign courts have limited jurisdiction over American service men under the "status of force agreements" between the United States and nations where American troops are stationed.

The challenge to the constitutionality of the agreements was contained in a case involving four service men charged in Japan with inciting a riot.

HIGHER VETERAN PENSION SOUGHT BY THE LEGION

Plan to Ask Congress for Half Billion More Expected to Get Cool Reception.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The American Legion told Congress today its No. 1 legislative goal this year is a half billion dollar boost in veterans' pensions.

The plan would increase individual pension payments and make more veterans eligible for them.

National Commander J. Addington Wagner said passage of the Legion's pension bill would "spell the difference between existing and living-between despair and hope" for thousands of veterans.

Cool Reception Seen.

But chairman Olin E. Teague (Dem., Texas), of the House Veterans Affairs Committee indicated in advance of Wagner's testimony that the Legion plan will face cool treatment in Congress.

Teague disclosed he had turned down a Legion request that he introduce its bill. He said also that the committee would not take up the Legion plan before it has disposed of such other items as hospital repair, scholarships for veterans' orphans and "equalization" of various veterans benefits.

The Veterans Administration figures the Legion bill would cost $528,000,000 its first year, with the amount to increase 18 per cent a year for some years thereafter. The Veterans of Foreign Wars is understood to be giving top priority to a similar measure this year.

Pensions are provided largely on the basis of need. They thus differ from compensation payments, made for service-connected causes.

Wagner's Requests. Wagner asked that Congress: 1. Increase the present monthly pension rates of $66.15, $78.75 and the maximum of $135.45 for help-veterans to $85, $105, and $150 respectively. 2. Increase income limitations on veterans eligible for pensions from the present $1400 a year for a veteran with no dependents and $2700 for those with dependents to $1800 and $3000. 3. Presume for pension purposes that any veteran age 65 or over is totally disabled and unemployable, and thus automatically eligible for a pension provided he meets the income and military service requirements.

About 500,000 veterans are now getting pensions under existing disability, unemployability and income limitation standards.

"We do not ask pensions for veterans regardless of income," Wagner said. "We do ask, urgently, and as a matter of simple justice, modest support for every veteran who, by reason of age or physical disability, cannot support himself."

Milton Eisenhower Called Top Adviser on President's Future; Adams Also Will Be Consulted

Points in Cases For and Against Seeking a Second Term Listed—Decision Termed One of Toughest Any President Ever Had to Make.

By JAMES RESTON

The New York Times News Service
Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER, pronounced in "excellent" physical condition yesterday by his three official doctors, has now reached the period of decision about his political future. He has committed himself to an "objective and intensive" study of "all considerations" in the coming weeks, and has said he would confer on these with his "most trusted advisers."

Who are these "most trusted advisers?" How "objective" can they be? And what are the main "considerations" for and against his seeking a second term in the White House?

The general feeling here is that Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother and president of Pennsylvania State University, will be the most important of the advisers on this question.

He is the President's favorite brother. The President has said ever since he returned from Paris in June 1952 to enter politics that Milton was the "brains" of the family. They have been extremely close since the death of Milton's wife last summer, and Milton has been with the President a great deal during the convalescence in Denver, Gettysburg, and Key West.

Others in His Confidence.

Others who will almost certainly be in on the discussions are the assistant to the President, Sherman Adams, who was the President's campaign manager in 1952, Attorney General Herbert Brownell and James C. Hagerty, the leaders of the former "Dewey team" who helped run the 1952 Eisenhower campaign, and Henry Cabot Lodge, his floor manager at the Republican convention in Chicago four years ago.

In addition, several old personal friends, among them William Robinson, president of the Coca-Cola Co., and Gen. Lucius Clay, former United States high commissioner in Germany, will probably be consulted.

How objective can these men be? All of them have not only great respect for the President, but great personal affection. All except Milton are known to have expressed the conviction that he should run if the mid-February medical check-up continues to show the "satisfactory progress" reported yesterday.

Who then will be the "objective" study the President has promised? The best guess here is that the "case against" will be explored only if the President or his brother insists on it.

Summary of Case 'For.'

The case "for" can be clearly and simply summarized. It is as follows:

1. After more than a decade of contention and division in American political life, President Eisenhower has produced a large measure of unity within his party and within the nation.
2. He has won the confidence of the Allied leaders. He has also won respect of the Russians to a greater degree than any other leader in the Western world.
3. His personal leadership is the cement that holds together a cabinet and party that are divided on such fundamental policies as the form and extent of foreign economic aid, federal aid to education, subsidies to the farmers. He needs more time to stabilize his party in support of his policies.
4. He has produced "peace and prosperity."
5. Nobody else in the party has "caught on" with the electorate, not Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Herbert

CANADIAN WOMAN FIRST TIME OPENS DEBATE IN HOUSE

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 12—It was ladies day yesterday in the Canadian House of Commons.

For the first time in Canadian parliamentary history, a woman member opened debate on the speech from the throne, and the chamber's galleries were filled elegantly-clad women who came to hear her.

Mrs. Ann Shipley, a 56-year-old Liberal from a northern Ontario mining community, made the traditional reply to the policy speech with which Governor General Vincent Massey, representing the British crown, opened the new parliamentary session Tuesday.

After a few general remarks, she welcomed the Government's offer to give equal pay for equal work to about 70,000 women employed in industries under federal jurisdiction. She then urged the Government to consider the possibilities of giving women equal opportunities for advancement.

U.S. Submarine Loan to Brazil.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Brazilian admiral said yesterday the United States has agreed to lend this country two submarines for five years. Brazil and the United States do not have a mutual military agreement. The submarine loan was arranged on an independent basis.

U.S., RED CHINA RESUME PRISONER NEGOTIATIONS

GENEVA, Jan. 12 (AP)—Ambassadors of the United States and Communist China resumed their secret negotiations today, after a holiday recess. It was the thirty-second meeting of United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Red Chinese Ambassador Wang Ping-nan since the talks started Aug. 1.

The ambassadors announced they agreed to meet again on Jan. 19. Continuing their once-weekly routine, and there was no indication the Reds were anxious to carry out a threat to break off the talks.

Radio Peiping last week dampened hopes, however, that the talks would lead to the early release of 13 Americans still held in jail in Red China. A Peiping broadcast said "no foreign interference would be allowed" in dealing with the prisoners, despite the agreement between Johnson and Wang of Sept. 10 that the Americans would be freed "expeditiously."

German Astronomer Honored.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Bruce medal, top American honor in astronomy, was awarded yesterday to Dr. Albrecht Unsold, of the Kiel Observatory in Germany. The award was made by the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, which includes in its membership astronomers all over the world.

FLEESON

Democratic Turnabout on Aid Poses Problem for President

Talmadge Attack on Spending Abroad Has Forced George to Modify Position in Election Fight.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has launched a fight against influential Democrats in Congress on the foreign aid issue which will bring home to him some of the facts of election year politics.

It is possible that the President, who was shut off from so much news during his illness, does not realize the extent to which the opposition party has been switching sides on foreign aid outlays. Up to the time of his attack he had been able to count on more fervent Democratic support on foreign policy than Republican.

This was especially true of Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who last year often called the signals for the Eisenhower plays.

But when the President went to Denver to vacation last summer George went home to Georgia to find himself facing his stiffest fight for re-election.

The challenger, Herman Talmadge, was raising and continuing to raise a hue and cry against spending American tax money on foreigners. It is said to have great appeal in the rural counties.

In the other 47 states George could counter the Talmadge demagoguery with his pulling power in the cities. But the antiquated county unit system gives rural control on Georgia's elections, and so George is under the iron necessity of approaching Talmadge's position to some degree.

Manfield's Position.
Internationalist Democrats such as Senator Manfield of Montana already had called for an end to foreign spending. From personal observation on the scene, Manfield became convinced that more and greater aid for underdeveloped countries the defeat would be "disastrous." Two Democrats signed it, Senator Pastore and Representative Hays. They are both much respected, but their influence is minor compared to that of Senator George.

Secretary of State Dulles announced President Eisenhower's desire to "wake up the country" to the need for putting foreign economic aid on a 10-year, semi-permanent basis.

PEARSON Benson Aids Vetoed Soil Bank Plan

Agencies Said It Would Be Costly, Difficult to Enforce.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1956.)
WASHINGTON.

ONE letter which the Eisenhower Administration would certainly like to forget is in the files of the Department of Agriculture, in which Secretary Benson's department takes vigorous exception to the soil bank plan that President Eisenhower is now proposing to Congress.

On July 27, Acting Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse sent a letter to Congressman Harold Cooley of North Carolina, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, flatly opposing the bill introduced by Congressman Fred Marshall, Democrat, of Grove City, Minn., which provided exactly the same plan that Mr. Eisenhower is now proposing.

Again on Sept. 30, the Department of Agriculture sent the same letter to Senator Elender of Louisiana, who is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Though Secretary Benson didn't sign the letter, his acting secretary, Morse, stated that a committee of all affected agencies in the department had studied the soil bank plan. Their recommendation was negative.

Here are pertinent quotes from the letter of July 27 in which the Department of Agriculture vetoed the soil bank plan:

"This is in response to your request for the department's views on H.R. 2420. The department recommends against the enactment of this bill."

"H.R. 2420 authorizes and directs the secretary to establish policies and programs for the use of acreage diverted because of the establishment of acreage allotments on basic commodities. The declaration is made that acreage diverted from allotment crops increases the planting of other crops not under acreage allotments and will tend to increase the surplus of

Bombers Kept Aloft Can Take On Atom Weapons in an Hour

Other Planes on Ground Able to Leave Instantly—Backbone of Massive Retaliation Concept.

By ANTHONY LEVIERO

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.

HUNDREDS of bombers of the Strategic Air Command kept aloft day and night, always can take atomic bombs aboard in about an hour if a sneak attack is made on the United States.

This capability of the bombers is supplementary to the readiness of many bombers on the ground that could take off with atomic weapons instantly.

These elements of security, in the air and on the ground, constitute the backbone of the massive retaliation concept on which this country is relying to deter a world atomic war.

Responsible sources who guardedly discussed the air atomic capability, within the legal limits of security, disclosed yesterday that some atomic bombs were stored in Air Force "premises." These storage sites are widely scattered strategically, so that no plane in the far ranging Strategic Air Command readiness fleet need fly much more than an hour, many of much less, to pick up their "atomic payloads."

It was emphasized, however, that all the atomic weapons so readily available to the Air Force were under the strict control of civilian personnel of the Atomic Energy Commission, as required by law.

The fact that the bombers could reach their atomic weapons in an average of an hour, flying at about 600 miles an hour, illustrates both the dis-non-basis commodities. In addition, the bill points out the need for increased soil fertility.

"The program would be very costly. Estimated payments based on 25 per cent of average yields, assuming full participation, would be about $490,000,000. (Administrative costs and cost-sharing conservation payments are not included in this total.)

"Since the bill requires that approved practices be carried out on the acreage qualifying for payment, the job of determining the acreages, locating them, measuring and checking practices would require a great deal of administrative supervision and effort, resulting in difficult and expensive administration."

"A committee composed of representatives of the different agencies in the department were asked to study H.R. 2420 and report the probable effects of the bill."

ELIZABETH GIVES HONOR TO BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT-ELECT

(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

LONDON, Jan. 12—Queen Elizabeth made Juacelino Kubitschek, President-elect of Brazil, a knight grand cross of the British Empire in a half-hour audience at Buckingham Palace yesterday.

Kubitschek arrived at London airport and was met by Selwyn Lloyd, Foreign Secretary, and the Earl of Scarborough, Lord Chamberlain.

After his audience with the queen, he was host at a reception at the Brazilian Embassy.

Prime Minister Eden presided at a dinner at 10 Downing street in Kubitschek's honor last night.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'No' to Spoils

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Isn't there enough patronage without the Aldermen seeking to undermine the civil service system? "Spoils system" is right. Years ago, at the height of the depression my husband sought to get on the police force here in St. Louis. One evening our precinct captain and one of his cohorts came to our home and in plain words told us if my husband wanted to get on the police force it would cost us $300, payable to him. Needless to say we did not pay the $300 and my husband didn't get on the police force.

These Aldermen are elected by the people to perform civic duties to help better the City of St. Louis, but it looks like they are just out for what they can get out of it, with no thought for the welfare of the people.

Several years ago my husband took city civil service examinations for a city position. He passed, and was told to report to work the following Monday. We received a phone call from the Alderman in our ward that Saturday asking my husband to come over to see him at his place of business, which my husband did. He was advised "you join our political organization, pay the dues, help us out, and you will be assured of a job with the city."

My husband declined to join any political party and secured the position without the aid of the Alderman, and on his own merits.

Are the Aldermen afraid to run on their merits alone?

The city employees should have more security in their jobs than of forced under the spoils system, where every change of Mayor or administration means the loss of their jobs unless they "pay up."

Leave the civil service system alone! TAXPAYER.

As to the Price of Coal

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In answer to Charles R. Bates of Webster Groves in regard to the coal miners of Southern Illinois and John L. Lewis, I am sure he knows almost as much about coal mining as a hog knows about Sunday. And even less about John L. Lewis.

I wonder why some of these brainy ones only criticize the coal miner and John L. and never think of the mine operators. After all it's the operator who sets the price on a ton of coal. John L. only helps set the price on wages.

I am sure Mr. Bates wouldn't be too disappointed with a raise in wages if he were a working man.

Herrin, Ill. L. GLENN.

Quick Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May I publicly express our appreciation to the volunteer firemen of Creve Coeur? These gentlemen were diminishing a racing fire in an unoccupied house on Oak block within eight minutes from my husband's midnight call to them last Friday.

MRS. WINSTON L. GREENE, Frontenac

How High for Housing?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As we move from rebuilding the worst areas to improving the blighted areas with new tools of public housing, private redevelopment, etc., it is well to take a second look at the question of high vs. low housing.

Few people can have a valid criticism of public improvements which are part of a larger plan, and where neighborhood values in the long run have been considered. Too, there is little doubt that the easy solution of meeting the high cost of land with elevator apartments is not good enough.

I suggest that sufficient time and study be allowed to determine the combination of high and low housing best suited to each neighborhood—whether predominantly elevator apartments, row houses, or flats—before a project area is finally determined.

The consolidation of Public Housing and Private Redevelopment Authorities would seem to make possible this kind of planning. With greater understanding and support of larger numbers of our people, the better plan can be built to take its proper place in the redevelopment of St. Louis. INTERESTED.

Nixon Is a Liability

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"A little foolishness now and then is good for the best of men."

So here is something in that category, a suggested strategy for President Eisenhower. Let him agree to run again—no shirking of duty to his party—with Nixon (and this is important) as candidate for Vice President.

Nixon on Ike's coat-tails will slow Ike down to defeat, saved from the toil and danger of another term. The Democrats will be in power, which would be no bad pill for Ike. The Republicans could not complain, for, did not Ike run again?

ROSCOE NUNN, Kirkwood.

Long-Range Forecast

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The congressional subcommittee on economics tells us that within 10 years the federal income tax can be reduced by as much as one third.

Within 10 years I dare say they will be calling for complete repeal of the Sixteenth Amendment.

REGUSTED.

Let the Light So Shine

College and university presidents, in St. Louis for the annual meetings of the Association of American Colleges and related organizations, have gone into such matters as how to obtain larger financial grants and gifts from philanthropic sources.

Adequate financial support is fundamental and no educational institution can survive for long without it. We wish them all fullest success on the financial front. Yet we can hope that college and university presidents find some time at least to inventory the world of teaching and to see truly how it stands after the wave of intolerance that swept over the country in the post-war years.

There can be no question about the fact that damage has been done on our campuses and in our schools, and at our libraries. This damage has not been uniform and in many places it has been resisted with admirable devotion to the highest concepts of freedom. But it has done its subtle if not obvious harm all too frequently. The real questions are: How much damage? and, How to repair that damage so the evil effects can be kept to a minimum?

It would be difficult for anyone to make a better start toward this urgent stock-taking than by reading two important books, both issued by the Columbia University Press, for the American Academic Freedom Project, made possible by Louis M. Rabinowitz. "The Development of Academic Freedom in the United States," by Richard Hofstadter and Walter P. Metzger, tells the inspiring story of how, from earliest days, freedom to inquire and expound became a vital part of American democracy. Robert M. MacIver's "Academic Freedom in Our Time" cites chapter and verse on our recent past. It does so on a broad national basis.

But Dr. MacIver, who is Columbia's distinguished professor emeritus of sociology, does not content himself with citing instances of trespass on academic freedom. He draws up procedures for college administrators and faculty members when they are under attack by self-appointed controllers of thought and learning. He stands staunchly by the appropriate faculty committee as the first body to make an investigation of complaints against a member of a teaching staff. And he holds strongly that "while the final authority is the governing board, that body should pay high respect to faculty judgment."

If there are dangers on the outside, there are also dangers within the colleges, as when faculty members "display a considerable indifference to violations of academic freedom that affect colleagues or departments remote from their own." When the threat is not immediate many "remain complacent," as Dr. MacIver puts it, "disregarding the injury to the greater cause that unites them all."

But this can only invite still worse invasions. And the bitter cost to society of ever greater excesses, the director of this notable project suggests when he says:

Unless we appreciate the value of the primary function that distinctively and in a sense uniquely characterizes the university and refuse to let it be jeopardized by the conformist demands of special groups, then the community will suffer two grievous losses.

It will lose the light of intellectual freedom that shines from the untrammelled university, itself a freedom on which the very being of democracy depends. And it will lose the great contributions that a university can bestow—the example of open-minded inquiry, the substitution of reason for passion in the treatment of controversial issues, the spirit of fair play that listens to the arguments on all sides of a case, seeks to discover and interpret the evidences instead of rushing to conclusions, and thus leads to understanding and wiser decisions on matters where the miscalculations of prejudice may have grievous costs.

And so we say again that we hope the college presidents are finding time to take stock as well as to cast accounts. Survival of universities would be a mockery where the lamps of free inquiry were turned low or blacked out. If the climate has improved somewhat in recent months, and happily it has, then there is all the more reason to move vigorously to reestablish the historic principle of academic freedom more firmly than ever before!

The Young Democrats' Piff

Just as the Republicans in the United States Senate were fomenting harmony by broadening their policy committee to include everybody—just as Gov. Stratton of Illinois was sounding the tocsin for Missouri Republicans to unite—what happened?

The Young Democratic Club of St. Louis split. The defecting group will be known as the United Young Democrats, presumably in honor of the fact that the young Democrats are no longer united. It accuses the Young Democratic Club of St. Louis of being "too social," and absolves itself of any charge of excessive sociability by refusing to associate with the Y. D. C. of St. L.

Maybe these rifts are catching. It is all a mystery to us. But anyhow we detect a note of disharmony in the donkey's bray as in the elephant's trumpeting.

What If It Had Been a PEC?

The case of retired Maj. Gen. Byron E. Gates is an amazing affair. He made a tidy little profit of $2440 as a result of being called on the carpet and fined $500 and reprimanded over a bit of personal business enterprise which he carried on while he commanded Chanute (Ill.) Air Force Base.

Gen. Gates was charged specifically with using his position as commander from 1953 to 1955 to influence sale of corporate stocks and insurance to military personnel; giving an insurance firm exclusive right to sell its policies in one area of the base; providing office space for an automobile insurance firm. He is said to have received $7000 through his insurance company arrangements.

In order to investigate the charges and take action against Gen. Gates it was necessary to recall him to active duty. The wheels of military justice must have ground mightily slowly for Gen. Gates was recalled for six months. During that time he received $2990 more than he would have received had he remained on retired status. And the net result of the investigation of the charges that he had mishandled his administration at Chanute Base for personal gain was a decision that court martial was not justified.

Instead it was recommended that he be tried under Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. This article has long been referred to as "company punishment," since it can be administered by a company commander. It provides maximum limits of punishment which are exceedingly light in comparison with the sentences generally given in even the most minor court martial. Usually a defendant who knows he is innocent or believes he has any chance with a court martial will ask for a court martial instead of company punishment. Gen. Gates chose to receive "company punishment" from Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, commanding general of the Air Training Command. If he does not like the tone of the letter reprimanding him, or if he decides that a recall to active duty and $2990 increase in pay do not make up for a $500 fine and the letter, he can file an appeal with the Air Force Chief of Staff. But Gen. Gates clearly has too good an eye for profit to do anything like that!

Tomorrow's Big Issue

The Board of Aldermen will meet tomorrow, possibly to make one of the most important decisions in the history of St. Louis. The issue before it will be the call for election of a board of freeholders to draft a new city charter. This is so important that Mayor Tucker will appear before the Board to state the case himself.

If the Aldermen procrastinate or vote against the pending ordinance, they will virtually kill Mayor Tucker's hopes for such an election on March 6. But negative action may well mean political suicide for charter reform opponents. St. Louisans by now are well aware that this is no narrow and petty issue between the Aldermen and the Mayor. They know it involves progressive reforms in the city government which must go hand in hand with the city's continued physical progress.

St. Louisans know that the 1914 charter is out of step with the times. It saddles the city with all manner of inefficiencies in the collection and disbursement of money. It deprives municipal authorities of powers taken for granted elsewhere, and which are essential to the solution of St. Louis problems and to the full development of the potentials of St. Louis.

This city needs a greater measure of home rule. It cannot depend on short-term grants of authority from Jefferson City for the management of some of its most important affairs. These involve too much uncertainty. If St. Louis is to make real progress it must know what it can do; it must be able to plan—and for more than just a year or two.

These are the real reasons for having freeholders make a year's study of charter changes and then submit their conclusions to the voters. The Aldermen themselves acknowledge this need at least in part when they suggest amendments to the present charter.

The only real reason for foot-dragging is the preservation of political perquisites rooted in the old charter. Some of the Aldermen—and the politicians behind them—do not want to lose these plums. So far only a minority of the Board has put municipal welfare ahead of partisan warfare. But now that the Democratic City Central Committee has refused to endorse such political selfishness, a goodly majority should be ready to give St. Louisans the chance they deserve and demand—the chance to elect freeholders, and to vote a year hence on a reformed charter.

This need is so real that aldermanic stubbornness at most could only hold off action for a little while longer. Hopefully, there are signs not only that some Aldermen have heard from their constituents, but that most of those hesitant about reform have rethought the issue and now are ready to vote accordingly.

If the oppositionist Aldermen are ready to forget their past foot-dragging, the community is ready to forget it. If they are now ready to vote in accord with the city's best interests, the city will applaud. We venture to say that they are, and that tomorrow's meeting of the Board of Aldermen will hear the call for an election of freeholders to draft a new charter.

No Help Spurned

The professionals of amateur sports, the coaches, athletic directors and other impresarios, have been holding a meeting in Los Angeles of their trade organization, the National Collegiate Athletic Association. And despite agitation and protests from such laymen as college presidents, they have discovered little need for change in their business arrangements.

Somebody suggested a little tightening up on the recruiting of athletes, proposing that colleges be limited to paying the expenses of one round-trip to the campus by a high school player and forbidding "booster clubs" from picking up the tab for other trips and other expenses. But that idea went out the window faster than it came in the door.

The trouble is that some nasty alumnus may remember this incident the next time he gets a pleading letter from his college setting forth all the school's needs and beseeching him to be generous in helping it to spread the blessings of higher education.

Senator Hennings on His Record

Missourians can be glad that Senator Hennings has announced his candidacy for re-election. His announcement means that there will be at least one fully qualified man in the senatorial contest at the time of the August primary.

What kind of opposition Senator Hennings will have remains to be seen. He may be opposed in the primary by some outstanding, worthy Democrat, although that is not too probable. He may have an unusually able and qualified Republican opponent in the November election. Choices, if they are to be made, must await the establishment of the alternatives.

Meantime Senator Hennings is fully justified in submitting his name on his record. Few Senators have built more solidly in a first term. Working quietly and without display, he has put his hand to one good cause after another. He also has taken on mean, difficult jobs that fellow Senators have avoided.

When others ducked it, Thomas C. Hennings Jr., although then serving in his first Senate, shouldered the onerous responsibility of directing the compilation of the facts about Senator McCarthy's dubious financial and related affairs. Because he handled this hard assignment in a way that produced a unanimous report, including the Republican member, he has been abused repeatedly by the Wisconsin demagogue.

The very fact that Senator Hennings has been denounced by the spawner of McCarthyism has real value. For it may be remembered that people said of Grover Cleveland: "We love him for the enemies he has made."

Senator Hennings was a leader in the fight against the Bricker amendment to shackle President Eisenhower in his conduct of foreign affairs. He led the opposition to the Butler amendment to put unnecessary restrictions on the Supreme Court. He helped rescue President Eisenhower's appointment of Justice Harlan when it was stalled in committee. He has been the spokesman for constitutional protections at the Eastland inquiry. And he has done many other good things.

It is not surprising that Senator Hennings is running again. The surprising thing would be if he were not.

Press Review of the French Vote

Between Book Ends

The Louisville Courier-Journal

France's general elections, called in haste, conducted in an atmosphere of spite and confusion, have produced about the result that France's friends had feared. No party or coalition of parties emerges with a clear enough majority to govern. The usual working arrangement will have to be made, the rival parties trading with each other for coveted cabinet positions—and the whole presided over by a man whose major efforts must be devoted to keeping order and preserving his power.

France's difficulties, internal and external, are unlikely to be solved by such a government. The bitterness now existing between what were once two halves of the same party—the Mendes and Faure groups of Radical Socialists—does not promise any lasting association between them. The old Gaullist rally has fallen in pieces; its leader, the implacable Gen. de Gaulle, did not even bother to vote. The Popular Republicans are angry with all their left-of-center colleagues and they too emerge with diminished strength and little likelihood of power.

There is a chance that under Socialist leadership a coalition of moderates might tackle the truly pressing need for the reform of electoral laws that produce such results as these.

No friend of France, and no thoughtful Frenchman, can view without disquiet the increase in Communist strength and the emergence of "Poujadists," a right-wing group of tax rebels having much in common with the newer Fascist parties. Both of these represent protest votes but they spell a mood of increasing disillusion.

The Christian Science Monitor

France stands in urgent need today of a great act of patriotism and humility on the part of two men—Pierre Mendes-France and Edgar Faure. They are both former Premiers. They were once good friends. But during the recent parliamentary crises over Algeria and French electoral reforms they became apparently the bitterest of enemies.

Their feud has split the Radical Socialist party. This division during the national elections just ended has made possible important gains by Communists and others who show scant regard for the future of French democracy.

Even if the two leading figures in the discouraging fiasco were to act like heroes, it is not certain that they could bring enough of their followers into line. But without this, even a quick dissolution of the new Parliament could only lead into another political cul-de-sac. With it, any such high-desperate measures might be made unnecessary.

Both M. Mendes-France and M. Faure seem agreed on a new approach toward federalism to the pressing Algerian problem. And the elections should have proved to all Frenchmen the absolute primeness of the need for electoral reform.

If a government dedicated to solutions of these two issues, and no others, could be built on a Mendes-France-Faure reconciliation, France might get back on the road to political stability.

New York Herald Tribune

Between the Communists on the extreme left and the Poujadists on the extreme right stand the majority of the National Assembly and the majority of the French people. Unfortunately, it is not a united majority.

Yet unless the two central groupings, which between them have won nearly 65 per cent of the popular vote, combine into a stable middle-of-the-road coalition, subordinating their differences to the national need, France may be in for a difficult time.

The essential difficulty in the National Assembly is that with the Communists doing their best to sabotage the government from the left, and the Poujadists acting similarly on the right, the center groupings must achieve near-unanimity to get any constructive measure passed. This is almost the equivalent of demanding that the American Congress conduct all its activities by a three-quarters, rather than a simple majority vote.

It is a difficult task, but a determined and major effort must be made to complete it successfully. Such a democratic coalition would best reflect the desires of the French voters. It would also bring France the internal stability she so desperately needs, and strengthen her role as an integral, indispensable member of the Western alliance.

The Washington Post

Results of elections in France paint a discouraging, almost sinister, picture of a country trapped by the bitterness of its political factionalism and the complexity of its electoral system. So deep are the fissures between the democratic parties that the real victors are the twin extremes—the Communists on the left and the know-nothing Poujadists on the right.

The tragedy is compounded by the fact that the extremist groups actually won a smaller percentage of the total vote than in the last election, in 1951. The Communists, despite a smaller proportion of the total, picked up some 300,000 new votes and were able to increase their representation in the National Assembly by more than 50 seats.

Although the right-center coalition, headed by Premier Edgar Faure, won the largest number of seats, the results cast extreme doubt on whether his stroke in dissolving the last Assembly before completion of electoral law revision was really a smart maneuver. Faure managed to best his rival, Pierre Mendes-France, but he did not win enough seats really to govern.

Doubtless France, which has shown a miraculous ability to survive governmental paralysis (in part because, as Herbert Luethy has observed, it is the bureaucracy that really runs the country), will do so again. But it is a sobering commentary that at a time when the free world desperately needs unity of purpose and firmness of policy, the vote in France has worked in just the opposite direction.

The Baltimore Sun

What will happen in France? Domestically, the country may be expected to stagger along under a new series of coalitions, day-to-day affairs being capably administered by that balance wheel of French government, the bureaucracy.

But such coalition cannot take effectively the really dire need of France for domestic reform, still less work out an intelligent solution of France's crisis in North Africa. The French outlook was bad before the voters went to the polls. It is worse now that the returns are in.

The Kansas City Times

Who is this Pierre Poujade who has been creating such a ruckus in French politics? On the eve of a national election in France he was being described as the leader of a "typical lunatic fringe." Yet when the balloting ended, his followers—who were absolutely unopposed in the outgoing Parliament—had won more than 50 seats.

In its beginnings Poujadism resembled the American Populist movement at the end of the last century, springing from rural desperation, with a dynamic village shopkeeper as the role of another "Sockless Jerry" Simpson. The basic program of the Poujadists combined resistance to taxes and non-payment of the debts that together threatened to bankrupt them. They were soon joined by wealthier Frenchmen who also opposed any effective taxation. And they shortly added a shrewd appeal to others of their countrymen increasingly disgusted by the weakness of democratic government in France.

The movement's platform still consists of these two planks, both negative. The idea is simply to trust Poujade. Understandably the outside world remembers Adolf Hitler, the "clown" who turned into a dictator. Will Poujade's backers see the resemblance in time?

An Eagle for the Babe

THIS LIFE I'VE LED, by Babe Didrikson Zaharias, as told to Harry Paxton. (A. S. Barnes, 242 pp., $4.)

She told them to stack her clubs in the corner of her hospital room because she would be using them soon. The time: April 17, 1954. The problem: cancer. The person: Babe Didrikson Zaharias, perhaps the foremost woman athlete the world has ever known. Today she is being called upon to make her greatest recovery shot, out of the trap of man's most insidious disease. In "This Life I've Led," she reflects upon her past.

Born of Norwegian parents in modest circumstances, the Babe resembled other youngsters except for flying feet which sent her hurdling over the neighborhood hedges.

Her phenomenal rise in the sports world began with basketball, at which she became an All-American. There followed a series of unbelievable track-and-field performances. But she is known for her golfing victories, including an amazing series of 17 consecutive tournament wins.

The present account relives many great contests, won and lost, and includes commentary on some of the most extravagant personalities of our day. Among the side-stories, this reader's favorite concerns the 1932 Olympic out-of-control championships at Chicago. The Babe was sent as a one-woman team and swept the meet.

If Babe Zaharias seems boastful, it is an illusion created by the prodigious weight of many great victories. She is, on the contrary, open and honest, two qualities often missing in autobiographers (as Cleveland Amory pointed out so emphatically recently). Those who picture the Babe as an outsized tomboy with a super tee shot will now understand her as a warm person and a hard, clean competitor.

The fact that the book itself is modest reading fare ought in no way to diminish the stature of this great woman. She did not actually write it. She spoke it with colloquial directness into a tape recorder. Harry Paxton listened to it and rearranged it. When it reaches the reader, it is still undiluted though perhaps unduly simple. The author shies away from multi-syllable words and his sentences as though she were blasting out of a sand trap.

The book will appeal more to sports enthusiasts than literary savants. However, critical judgment on it is less important than the fact that it concerns the life of an extraordinary woman whose life offers hope to thousands. "My autobiography," says the Babe, "isn't finished yet." And we believe her.

Fun of Footloose Freedom

TRUMPETS FROM MONTMARNASSE, by Robert Gibbings. (E. P. Dutton, 231 pp., $3.)

In his latest book, Robert Gibbings, talented artist and author, takes the reader by the arm and gently leads him through a series of scenes and episodes in Italy and France. It is a journey enlivened by quiet humor, vivid description, spiced with anecdotes and interesting details of history, art and legend. The illustrations, copious and appropriate, consist of a few color reproductions of his oil paintings—his first attempts in a new medium—and many decorative wood-block prints, which are his specialty. Constant orders for these prints provide Mr. Gibbings with the wherewithal to travel wherever his whim directs, and the reader who goes with him enjoys, vicariously, the fun of footloose freedom with a companion who possesses a sensitive appreciation of art and human nature, as well as the ability to express himself clearly, simply and with imagination.

The White House's New Deal Facade

WASHINGTON. PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S program is being advertised as a "New Deal program." That is considered smart politically in this election year, for the New Deal still shines in retrospect with many millions of voters, or at least the G.O.P.'s shrewdest strategists think so.

It is true that the President and the Eisenhower top command in the Administration and in Congress have adopted such New Deal reforms as social security, minimum wage protection, federal financial assistance for private health insurance and health programs, public housing, federal subsidies for soil conservation which now is called "soil bank," among others, and even some of these have been expanded. But the impression created by this process of imitation and adaptation can be deceptive if it is interpreted too broadly, as is being done for political effect for the November election.

D'Ewart

Yet, under the present Administration, this broad-scale, integrated development has been stopped. A new formula, something inaccurately called "partnership," has been substituted, which is intended to exploit our river resources for private profit at public expense. So one part of the "American dream" is vanishing in spite of all the fine language about Government-sponsored conservation in the field of the "soil bank."

Many years ago in the interest of conservation Congress began to set aside forest lands into national forests and national parks. There were regulations against excessive grazing which would destroy the grass cover and thus would contribute to erosion and floods.

Strange Park Guardian.

A Wesley D'Ewart, a former member of Congress who sponsored a bill to grant vested rights in our national forests and national parks for grazing, which conservationists protested would violate conservation principles—and which happily was defeated by the House—was recently appointed as Assistant Secretary of Interior in charge of our national parks and game.

Conservation laws, like other regulatory laws, are not effective if officials who are supposed to enforce them are not sympathetic with their purposes. This brings us to numerous regulatory commissions designated to administer laws passed by Congress which have been "packed" in this Administration with commissioners whose background and former business interests incline them to favor the interests supposed to be regulated.

Democrats Do It, Too.

Anybody who knows Washington knows how this has been done, as it has been done periodically through the years in both Democratic and Republican administrations.

One example is uppermost in the news now—the Federal Power Commission. One reason for the spotlight on the FPC was its license some months ago—now the subject of court action—to a private utility to develop in a piecemeal fashion the biggest power site still remaining—Hell's Canyon in the Snake River along the Oregon-Idaho border.

Another reason for FPC's place in the public eye is the policy it adopted against regulation of natural gas producers, which was reversed by a Supreme Court decision by a bill of its own, and thus exempt such producers from regulation.

So it's wise to peer behind the "New Deal" front which both parties throw up to deceive us.

C. E. RUBICAM DIES; HELPED FOUND SECRETARIAL SCHOOL

Charles E. Rubicam, retired roofing company executive, whose financial support enabled his two sisters to found the Rubicam School of Secretarial and Accounting Training here in 1892, died today of the infirmities of age at his home, 6224 McPherson avenue. He was 93 years old.

Though not engaged actively in the operation of the school, which now has an enrollment of almost 1000 in two locations, Mr. Rubicam always maintained a keen interest in its affairs and served on its board of directors. He operated the Excelsior Roofing Co. for many years.

Survivors include his wife, Belle; a daughter, Mrs. C. D. P. Hamilton Jr., and a son, Dan Rubicam, president and general manager of the school.

ST. LOUISAN A MAJOR DONOR TO ANTIOCH COLLEGE CAMP

Leo A. Drey, owner of Pioneer Forests, a timber concern, is one of eight major donors to a school camp being established by Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., it was announced today.

The grant will permit a public school teacher and a class of 40 students to live for a week at the camp, a 1000-acre area adjacent to the college campus.

The Kresge Foundation donated $25,000 for the project last May, and college officials obtained $33,000 from individual and group donors. Drey, 515 West Point avenue, University City, received a bachelor of arts degree from Antioch in 1929.

ILLINOIS U. TO PURCHASE CARL SANDBURG'S LIBRARY

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP)—Carl Sandburg's library—a massive collection of Lincolniana, poetry, manuscripts, letters and first-edition books—will be purchased by the University of Illinois, it was announced yesterday.

The University of Illinois Foundation, an alumni fund-raising group, allocated $30,000 for the purchase of the collection now housed in Sandburg's home in Flat Rock, N.C.

Dealers acknowledge that on the open market the collection would bring three to four times the $30,000. Sandburg has agreed to take in payment.

'TOTALLY OBJECTIVE'

Vice President of Foundation Is One of 4 to Speak Here on Funds.

The Ford Foundation was "totally objective" in selection of recipients for its recent $210,000,000 grant to 615 regionally accredited private colleges and universities, William McPeak, vice president of the Ford Foundation, said here yesterday.

McPeak, speaking at a sectional meeting of the Association of American Colleges at Hotel Jefferson, said the grant had been made "in favor of a certain category of institutions but not against any particular category."

The foundation decided to use the funds to raise teachers' salaries in the selected institutions because "their salaries are not now as high as those which professional men and women should earn," he declared, noting that low teacher pay was common to virtually all schools in the nation.

McPeak, who was one of four speakers from large foundations, gave a general outline of the Ford Foundation's grant, largest single contribution in philanthropic history.

Determining the exact amount of each grant, which is not yet known, is difficult, he said, because of the great differences found in the definition and organization of liberal arts institutions. The grants will be based on 1954-55 liberal arts faculty payrolls.

Eight colleges in the St. Louis area will share in the grant. Other speakers were Howard C. Baldwin, vice president of the Kresge Foundation; G. Harold Duling, secretary of Lilly Endowment, Inc., and John W. Gardner, president of Carnegie Corporation.

Baldwin told the meeting the Kresge Foundation has made grants totaling $37,817,445 since its inception 31 years ago.

"We have not specialized in any one field of activity or research," the speaker said, adding that the foundation does not make grants in the field of propaganda, for scholarships or to establish new institutions. It has been active in advancing religion.

"We would prefer to make progress in the field of intangibles, realizing that man's only real hope for the long future is progress in realms that are spiritual," he said.

Duling said Lilly Endowment has made grants in the last 18 years of $16,300,000, mostly in the state of Indiana.

About 77 per cent of the foundation's gifts in 1954 went to educational institutions, with community services, public health and cultural projects sharing the remainder, he said. Gardner said Carnegie Corporation seeks to deal with creative people and nurture creativity without embarking on crackpot projects. A foundation should not contribute to propaganda nor attempt to dictate to a beneficiary, he said.

CHURCH IN CIVIL DEFENSE IS TOPIC OF CONFERENCE

A conference on the church in civil defense was held today for representatives of all religious denominations in this area at the Civil Defense Control Center, 5100 Clayton avenue.

The meeting, attended by more than 30 clergymen, included discussions and talks on the basic concerns of the church with civil defense, the essentials of modern civil defense, escape routes and evacuation, church organization, family planning and facility planning, specific pastoral duties and continuing needs for civil defense in the church.

The program was arranged by the Civil Defense Religious Advisory Committee, and presided over by Brig. Gen. Francis P. Hardaway, retired, civil defense director.

PAUL A. TURNER FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Paul A. Turner, operator of a music store in Overland and leader of a hillbilly band, will be at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Baumann undertaking establishment, 2504 Woodson road, Overland, with burial in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mr. Turner, 55 years old, was an entertainer on radio stations KXLW, in Brentwood, and KWRE, in Warrenton, for nine years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lillian Monte Turner, and a daughter, Miss Norma Jean Turner.

MACHINE HELPS SYMPHONY FANS FOLLOW THEMES

For the listener who likes Mozart and Beethoven but has trouble detecting symphony themes as they appear and recur in the music, St. Louis University has a cultural aid straight out of the machine age.

Brainchild and personal property of Ernst C. Krohn, the university's director of musical activities, the machine is a cabinet about the size of a hi-fi speaker. Across its face are strips of parchment, reading "Introduction," "First Theme," "Second Theme" and so on.

Using the aid, Krohn's students sit with their eyes on the screen. The instructor manipulates switches that illuminate the panel as the music is playing. In time, listeners learn to recognize and associate the various parts of the work.

Krohn developed the machine in collaboration with Thomas Hoopes, curator at City Art Museum. Explaining its value, he said: "If you don't know what the themes are, you don't know what the symphony is all about."

ARTIST PERSHALL WINS $25 IN INDEPENDENTS' CONTEST

Walter W. Pershall, Granite City artist, has been awarded the $25 first prize in the twenty-fifth anniversary painting contest of the Society of Independent Artists of St. Louis. It was announced today. Second, $15, went to Virginia Moberly Schlueter and third, $10, to Beatrice Carter.

Their winning paintings and 40 others entered in the competition will be auctioned at the society's annual costume ball, to be held Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. at Hotel Jefferson. Honorable mentions were given Calvin L. Hunn, Genevieve Brackman and Lillian Thole.

Pershall's winning work, an oil painted last summer in Holland, catches the bright, airy quality of a sunny day near the Zuider Zee. Virginia Schlueter's is an oil sketch of New Orleans, loose and impressionistic, like her treatment of the same theme in the current Kiel Auditorium show, and Beatrice Carter's is a fresh, direct water color, "Covered Wagon."—H. D.

TWO APPOINTED LOOP ROAD ROUTE TO STATE G.O.P. GETS TENTATIVE FINANCE POST OK FROM STATE

Arthur K. Atkinson and Walter E. Burtelow Named Co-chairmen to Succeed Hobbs.

Arthur K. Atkinson, president of the Wabash Railroad, and Walter E. Burtelow, executive vice president of the Bank of St. Louis, were appointed co-chairmen of the Republican State Finance Committee yesterday.

They were named to the position by Perry Compton of Montgomery City, Republican state chairman, following conferences with party leaders. The job had been held for years by Roscoe C. Hobbs, who resigned last Friday after 16 years of association with G.O.P. fund raising in Missouri.

"I chose two men for the position because 1956 is going to be a year full of hard party work," Compton said. "The state finance chairmanship is really a full time job, but you can't ask one business man to give his full time."

Reasons for Selections.

Compton said Atkinson and Burtelow were selected first because they are successful business men and secondly because they are staunch Republicans.

"Neither has ever held public office," he said, "and neither is aligned with any faction in the state. They are just workers for party success."

Atkinson, a member of the St. Louis Republican Committee, is chairman of the Missouri advisory committee on payroll savings and general chairman of the Savings Bond Committee for Metropolitan St. Louis, both activities of the United States Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury.

Active on committees of many private and public agencies, Atkinson is vice president of the City-County Cavalade, Inc., which will sponsor the Mid-America Jubilee Exposition here in September; chairman of a building fund drive for the Boys Club of St. Louis, and is chairman of the $100-a-plate "Salute to Eisenhower" dinner to be held at Hotel Jefferson Jan. 20.

Burtelow, city-county finance chairman for the Republican party, has been a member of the Airport Commission of St. Louis for about 10 years. He is executive vice president of the Ambassadors Club, treasurer of the Knights of the Cauliflower, and member of various philanthropic organizations.

Hobbs said his resignation as finance chairman was due to the press of business. He is president of the City-County Cavalade.

Highway Department to Make Preliminary Study of Proposed St. Louis Bypass.

The Missouri Highway Commission has tentatively approved the general location of the St. Louis county portion of a loop highway proposed by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads to carry interstate traffic around St. Louis and East St. Louis, it was learned today.

Rex M. Whitton, chief engineer for the commission, told the Post-Dispatch the State Highway Department had been authorized by the commission to proceed with preliminary surveys of the route.

Although no cost estimates have been made, the 25-mile route is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $500,000 per mile, Whitton said. This would bring total cost to about $12,500,000.

While a date for starting the surveys has not been fixed because of immediate lack of funds, Whitton said the preliminary studies would permit an early start on detailed planning if and when the federal highway agency receives the needed authorization from Congress.

The loop or belt highway was proposed by the Bureau of Public Roads as part of the national system of interstate highways. Its construction will depend on the progress of a proposed new highway bill in Congress. Such a multi-billion-dollar bill failed to pass in the last session but introduction of a new bill is expected shortly. Whitton expressed the opinion that if a large sum is voted by Congress for highways the loop expressway would be built on the basis of 90 per cent federal aid and 10 per cent state participation.

Whether St. Louis county would participate in the non-federal share of the expense was not clear, although the county bond issue has allocated $1,937,500 to pay a one-half share in right-of-way acquisition cost for a proposed Outerbelt Highway that is virtually the same route as proposed for the loop highway.

Whitton said the federal highway is now being thought of as a four-lane, limited-access highway with grade separations for all county and state road crossings except a few that may have to be closed.

Tentative Route. The tentative route approved this week would start in the south at the Jefferson Barracks Bridge and proceed to an intersection with U.S. Highway 66 near its crossing of the Meramec river, Whitton said.

From that point it would go northwest about three miles, then due north, paralleling Ballas road and on the west side of Ballas to an intersection with St. Charles road just west of its junction with Natural Bridge road.

It would proceed northeast from here to the intersection of U.S. 66 and State Route 140 in Hazelwood north of Lambert-St. Louis Field and then south of and parallel to U.S. 66 to the Chain of Rocks Bridge.

The loop would be completed in Illinois by a route from the bridge to a point southeast of Edwardsville, thence north of Mounds State Park, through Grand Marais State Park, skirting Dupon and connecting with Jefferson Barracks Bridge.

FRANCE'S TEST HELICOPTER EXPLODES, ENGINEER KILLED

PAU, France, Jan. 12 (UPI)—France's record-breaking turbo-helicopter "Alouette II" exploded in an endurance test flight and crashed and burned near here yesterday. The pilot escaped by parachute, but his engineer died in the blazing wreckage.

The aircraft held the world's altitude record for helicopters, 24,780 feet, and the helicopter speed record, 156.5 miles an hour.

SPALDING, RAWLINGS STATUS QUO ASSURED

Agreement Reached on No Merger Pending Trust Action Outcome.

Any merger of Rawlings Manufacturing Co., St. Louis sporting goods concern, with A. G. Spalding & Brothers, Inc., of Chicago, Mass., will be held up pending the outcome of an anti-trust action instituted by the Federal Trade Commission, it was announced yesterday.

Earl W. Kintner, FTC counsel, said that an agreement signed by Spalding "will insure the maintenance of the status quo while the commission's complaint is pending." A deal in which all the capital stock of Rawlings was to be purchased by Spalding for $5,635,000 was announced in November, but the FTC opposed this in a complaint charging that acquisition of Rawlings, if carried into actual merger, would threaten to reduce competition in the sporting goods industry, inasmuch as the firms are two of the four leading manufacturers in this field.

As outlined by the FTC, the status quo agreement provides that Spalding will give the commission 30 days' notice of any plans to discontinue the use of Rawlings; dissolve Rawlings Sporting Goods Co., a subsidiary of the St. Louis firm; discontinue any Rawlings sales branches, or transfer Rawlings machinery or personnel.

The agreement is not an admission by Spalding that any of these acts would be unlawful, the commission explained.

REFUSAL TO GRANT CHARTER FOR CLAYTON BANK UPHELD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12—Denial by state finance commissioner J. A. Rouvevrol of a state banking charter sought by the proposed Bank and Trust Co. of Clayton, St. Louis County, was upheld yesterday afternoon by the state board of appeal.

The board, made up of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. and Attorney General John M. Dalton, upheld the commissioner after a closed hearing. The board found incorporators had failed to meet the statutory requirements. The charter application was opposed by banks operating in the area, Rouvevrol said, on the ground there was not adequate business to support an additional bank.

The proposed bank, which would have been headed by Ralph M. Fox, now vice president of the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., would have had a starting capital of $350,000, including $250,000 in capital stock and $100,000 in paid up surplus and undivided profits, Rouvevrol said. It proposed to operate at the northwest corner of Clayton road and Brentwood boulevard.

ODM ADOPTS NEW DISPERSAL PLAN FOR INDUSTRIES

H-Bomb and Missiles
Make 10-Mile Policy Obsolete, Flemming Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Government, adopted a new policy for dispersing essential industry yesterday. It replaces standards made out of date by the vast destructive reach of H-bombs and the inter-continental missiles of the future.

The Office of Defense Mobilization issued an order calling on each company which builds a new plant to locate it outside the presumed range of the kind of bomb most likely to be dropped on its city.

The Commerce Department will make an individual decision on each plant site, except in the case of military projects when the Defense Department will have final say.

Abandons 10-Mile Rule.
The ODM thus abandoned the arbitrary dispersion rule that plants should be 10 miles from the rim of a target area. Director Arthur S. Flemming had declared the mileage rule to be "obsolete under new weapons condition."

In its place the administration has adopted a policy which can be altered to meet local conditions and is sufficiently elastic to be revised without difficulty as new and more powerful weapons come into being.

Flemming declared it to be the national policy "to encourage, and when appropriate, to require" adequate spacing of plants wherever practicable. Actually the Government could "require" compliance by private industry only if the construction depended on federal tax benefits, federal loans or loan guarantees, or government-owned machinery.

However, ODM officials pointed out that in a war emergency, vulnerable plants probably would be the last to get military contracts and to qualify for priorities on the material and manpower without which they could not stay in business.

Protective Construction.
Under the new mobilization order, the companies also will be expected to incorporate protective construction features to reduce the hazards of blast damage and radioactive fallout. "Except under very unusual circumstances, the ODM will not grant rapid tax amortization certificates for the construction of facilities unless guidance is received and followed from the Department of Commerce," Flemming said.

At the same time he delegated to the Federal Civil Defense Administration authority to develop programs reducing the vulnerability of entire metropolitan areas.

The FCDA might, for example, work with the Federal Bureau of Public Roads and state highway departments to see that new highways were planned with the evacuation of cities in mind; with the Department of Welfare to see that new government-aided schools had adequate shelters; with housing authorities to see that were fire-breaks in redevelopment projects.

U.S. AT 'BRINK OF WAR' 3 TIMES, DULLES QUOTED

Strong Action Met Crises on Korea, Indochina and Formosa Issues, He Says.

By WALTER KERR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, in an extraordinary interview published yesterday by Life magazine, says that three times in the last three years the United States "walked to the brink of war."

On each occasion, he is quoted as saying—in Korea, in Indochina and in the case of Formosa—the United States took "strong action."

Dulles says that he recommended the action and President Eisenhower took the decision. The magazine adds that in each instance the "action" involved indications the United States would use nuclear weapons.

Dulles was questioned on the article at his news conference yesterday, but he declined to make formal comment on the ground he had not read it, and the White House refused comment last night.

The magazine says, however, it is based on an exclusive interview with Dulles and on information supplied by Dulles and the State Department. It also says Dulles drafted the Formosa resolution which the President sent to Congress last year and that Dulles originated the "long-haul concept" and the policy of "deterrence."

"The Necessary Art." This is the way Mr. Dulles is quoted on over-all policy.

"You have to take chances for peace, just as you must take chances in war. Some say that we were brought to the verge of war. Of course we were brought to the verge of war. The ability to get to the verge without getting into the war is the necessary art. If you cannot master it, you inevitably get into war. If you try to run away from it, if you are scared to go to the brink, you are lost."

"We've had to look it square in the face—on the question of enlarging the Korean war, on the question of getting into the Indochina war, on the question of Formosa. We looked it in the face, and we looked it in the face. We took strong action."

"It took a lot more of courage for the President than for me. It was the ultimate decision. I did not have to make the decision myself, only to recommend it. The President never flinched for a minute on any of these situations. He came up taut."

The article, written by James Shepley, chief of the Time-Life Washington Bureau, says that "Dulles not only radically revised the 'containment' policy of the Truman Administration, but also altered drastically the basic concept of the job of Secretary of State."

Three Basic Decisions. These three basic decisions, which Dulles is said to have recommended, are these:

KOREA—To carry the air war into Manchuria, if the Communists sought to continue the military stalemate in Korea, and to use atomic arms tactically should hostilities be renewed.

On Dulles's recommendation, President Eisenhower took this decision, then Dulles conveyed the news to the Communists by flying to India to see Prime Minister Nehru, telling the story to Nehru and waiting for Nehru to pass it on.

INDOCHINA—"Dulles recommended that the dangers be faced, and that if the Chinese Communists intervened openly, their staging bases in South China be destroyed by United States airpower. President Eisenhower concurred."

"It can be argued the Geneva conference on Indochina represented no victory for the West, but Dulles is convinced that the solution finally agreed to was acceptable because it eliminated the possibility of a 'domino effect' in southeast Asia."

"Dulles had seen to it that the Chinese and the Soviets knew that the United States was prepared to act decisively to prevent the fall of all of southeast Asia. It was also clear to the Communists that the French and British, if they were pushed too far, would accept Dulles's suggestion for united action."

IN FORMOSA—"Here war was avoided mainly by a resolution drafted by Dulles and passed by an overwhelming bipartisan vote in Congress which authorized the President to use United States military forces should the Chinese Communists attack Formosa. Thus the Chinese were publicly put on notice that Eisenhower was ready and authorized to retaliate at once."

When Rhee Freed Prisoners. By the United Press. The first crisis arose just five months after Mr. Eisenhower took office when South Korean President Syngman Rhee freed North Korean prisoners who did not want to be repatriated.

Shepley said word of Rhee's action reached Dulles at 2 a.m. June 18, 1953. Truce negotiations were then under way in Korea. Dulles immediately telephoned the President.

White House Denies Kerr Claim On Hospital Suite for President

G.O.P. Angered by Senator's Report Room Is Being Readied for Eisenhower at Convention.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—The White House said today it made "absolutely no" request that a San Francisco military hospital prepare a suite for President Eisenhower's possible use during the Republican convention in August.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty denied a statement to that effect yesterday by Senator Robert Kerr (Dem., Oklahoma). Kerr had said that Republicans are "so alarmed about their own low political reserve they plan to bring like to the G.O.P. convention, even if he has to stay in Letterman General Hospital which reportedly is preparing a suite for him. He advised Republicans not to put 'too great a burden' on the President's 'physical reserve.'"

Reporters asked Hagerty if there had been any White House request for a suite. "Absolutely none at all," Hagerty replied. "There never has been, and that information has been relayed to the commanding general of the hospital."

Asked if the President has seen Kerr's remarks, Hagerty said, "not unless he read it in the papers." He said that he had not even called Kerr's attention.

Asked if he had any comment on Kerr's statement, Hagerty said: "It isn't even worth the dignity of a 'no comment.'"

Republicans replied to Kerr's remarks with "such words as 'unmitigated lie,' 'despicable' and 'smear politics.'"

Kerr was an unsuccessful candidate for the 1952 Democratic presidential nomination. House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois said Kerr "hit another new low in smear politics."

Senator George H. Bender of Ohio, denounced Kerr's statement as "the crudest, the foulest, and the most despicable attack I have ever had the misfortune to hear." He said Kerr's "utter lack of even common decency is beyond belief."

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said "shame on Senator Kerr." He called on "responsible" Democratic leaders to "repudiate this reprehensible attack on our President."

Hall also denounced as "an unmitigated lie" any report that Letterman has received any request from the G.O.P. for a room for the President.

Letterman officials said last night they were preparing a suite for the President in case he attends the convention but said they were doing so as a "routine" precaution. They said they had no knowledge whether Mr. Eisenhower would attend.

In reply to the Republican attack, Kerr said he was "saying nothing inconsistent" with his own prayers for the President to recover.

"And if anybody seeks to place upon the President a burden he cannot bear, it is they, not I," he said.

DONNELLY TO AVOID PRIMARY SQUABBLE

Asserts He Will Be Neutral—Won't Ask Appointees in Race to Resign.

By BOYD F. CARROLL

Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 12 —Gov. Phil M. Donnelly said yesterday he will not take a hand in the impending primary campaign scramble for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Asked at his press conference whether he would back any of the candidates already in the field, or now trying to decide whether to get in, Donnelly said, "I will remain neutral in the governorship contest."

He said further that he had not requested the resignation, or temporary withdrawal from the state payroll, of any of his appointees who are candidates for elective state offices.

"They have a right to run if they want to," Donnelly said. "I have not asked for any resignation and do not intend to do so."

Asked About Carpenter. His announcement was prompted by an inquiry whether he would ask for the resignation of L. C. Carpenter of Trenton, State Commissioner of Agriculture, who has filed for the Democratic nomination for Governor, or M. E. Morris, also of Trenton, State Director of Revenue, who has announced for the Democratic nomination for State Treasurer.

When asked if he would expect any of his appointees to ask for a leave of absence from the state payroll while seeking party nominations for elective offices, in lieu of a resignation, Donnelly countered with a question, "How are you going to get that done?"

Dallan to Decide. So far only two candidates have filed for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Carpenter and Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. of Jefferson City. At

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME

The body of Mrs. Clara Dunn was found yesterday on the basement floor of her home at 3947 Parker avenue by her husband, Charles. Police said a rope was fastened about her neck and another piece was looped over a joist. They said the rope broke apparently when she hanged herself.

Dunn, a meatcutter, said his wife had been under a physician's care for nervous disorders. She was 57 years old.

torney General John M. Dalton of Kennett, who has been canvassing the possibility of running for the governorship, has said he will announce what he is going to do, probably by the end of this week.

Donnelly's term as Governor will expire Jan. 8, 1957. Missouri Governors may not be elected to succeed themselves under provisions of the state constitution. Donnelly, however, is completing his second term. He was elected to his first four-year term in November 1944, stayed out four years after that term and was elected to his second term in 1952.

Canned Foods Solve Many Problems

A Good Stock on Pantry Shelf Enables Homemaker to Meet Any Emergency.

By Dorothy Brainerd
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

In the feature story on this page we have suggested several ways in which canned meats, fruits and vegetables can be used to provide quick and appetizing menus.

However, if you take our advice and stock your pantry shelves, do bear in mind that these are only a few of the many canned foods. And in using the term "canned" we also are including the many fine products which now come in glass jars as well as in tins.

Don't forget the many specialties such as Spanish rice, Mexican and Chinese foods, tomato aspic and sandwich spreads. And, of course, there are the canned soups and canned fish which are the mainstay of many a meal.

There are the dietetic canned foods which are truly a blessing to those who must observe dietary restrictions; there are the countless baby foods (which Mother often borrows for use in souffles and sauces), and special foods for the older members of our families.

Please do remember two things when shopping at the canned goods counter. Buy the size container which best suits your needs. There is little economy in buying a large can if leftovers are a perennial problem in your household.

On the other hand, if your family is large you may find it wise to buy one big can or jar, rather than two smaller ones. It is wise to take time to read the labels. They will not only tell you the amount of food in the container in cups or number of pieces, but also will describe the style of pack. There is no point in buying whole beets, for instance, if they are to be used in a recipe which requires that they be sliced or diced. Yet many homemakers do, purely from force of habit.

These may seem like trivial matters, hardly worth your time, but you will be surprised at the savings in food and money which can be affected by attention to just such details. There is much wisdom in the old cliché about watching the pennies, and the dollars will take care of themselves.

HELPFUL though they are, canned foods are just one part of our marketing so let's move along to the meat department. It is pork, pork, pork right down the line. Values are really amazing. You just can't go wrong with any pork item you may prefer—chops, roasts, steaks, spareribs, hams, bacon, pork sausage. Just name it, and if it is pork it's a good buy.

There is no doubt that pork is leading the field, but beef also continues to offer many possibilities. Veal is high; it simply is not being received in any quantity.

And there are plenty of apples to go along with that pork. There is a wide choice of varieties so you can be assured of finding your favorite.

Cranberries (happily, another good companion for pork) deserve a very special plug. Rarely does one find them of such good quality and so cheap at this time of year. This is a value not to be overlooked, so use them freely and consider putting them into any vacant spots in your freezer.

You will find plenty of grapes at reasonable prices, including some especially fine Emperors. Prices on Florida grapefruit are moderate and the quality quite satisfactory. Light supplies of Texas grapefruit, most of it with a red blush, may be found here and there around town.

Navel from California show an improvement in quality. Florida is sending us not only oranges but also tangelos, tangerines and Temple oranges. The last two items are at the peak of their season now for flavor and quality, so enjoy them while you may.

Pears, Cuban pineapples, a few Florida strawberries and kumquats, and the first Michigan rhubarb of the season complete the list.

A COLD snap late last week and early this week down in some of the vegetable growing areas of Florida may cause a temporary upset in supplies and prices on the more tender vegetables.

Outstanding vegetable buys include cabbage, cauliflower (unusually handsome and quite reasonable), carrots and celery. Small northern yellow onions are inexpensive; the big yellow ones have worked up a bit.

Potatoes are in the budget bracket; some Florida red new potatoes are forerunners of those to come. These, of course, are priced higher than the others. Sweet potatoes of all kinds are reasonable; the nearby ones downright cheap.

Beans are definitely higher. Quality is very poor on Brussels sprouts, which were affected by the western floods. And buy iceberg lettuce with care; there is a marked variation in quality and condition, but even the best is reasonable.

Delicious Dinner, Little Effort

Canned foods make it possible for the homemaker to be prepared to serve delicious meals such as this at any time with little effort and on short notice. The canned ham is glazed with tart cranberry sauce, the peas and sweet potatoes both came off of the pantry shelf but were given special touches before being served.

IS YOUR HUSBAND the hospitable type, given to bringing home guests on the spur of the moment? Or do you sometimes linger a little longer than you planned over the canasta table or the January sales? No need to worry if your pantry shelves are well stocked with canned foods. If you have a good supply on hand, it gives you the same nice, cozy feeling that comes from having money in the bank.

Canned meats, vegetables, fruits and specialty products are offered in such wide variety that every course of the meal may come from your pantry shelf. Of course they should not entirely replace fresh fruits and vegetables in our menus, but they do have a definite place in the scheme of things.

Because canning plants are located close to the fields in order to shorten time between harvesting and processing, the products retain high food value. But do remember that canned vegetables are cooked in the same cans in which you buy them, so use the liquid to save the water-soluble vitamins and minerals which it contains.

Drain the liquid from the vegetable into the sauce pan; boil rapidly until reduced to half or a third cup. Then add the vegetable, butter or margarine and seasonings and heat, but do not overcook. The reduced liquid often can be used in white sauce or in baked vegetable dishes.

Protect your canned foods from vitamin loss by storing them at a moderately cool temperature in a dry cellar or closet. Storage temperatures should never be higher than 80 degrees, and lower temperatures are more desirable.

Now let's consider some specific ways in which canned foods can be used in our menus. Does the dinner pictured above look tempting? Think how easy it was to prepare. It started with a canned ham, given this treatment:

Ham With Cranberry Glaze.
One canned ham.
One can (about one pound) jelly cranberry sauce.
One-fourth cup honey.
One-half teaspoon ground cloves.

Remove ham from can. Score fat with sharp knife. Place ham, fat side up, on rack in shallow baking pan. Place cranberry sauce in small saucepan; break jelly up with fork; blend in honey and cloves. Brush ham with cranberry glaze. Bake ham in slow oven (325 degrees) basting often, according to this chart:

Approximate Size of Ham and Time.
Three to four pounds, 25 minutes per pound.
Five to eight pounds, 15 minutes per pound.
Eight to 13 pounds, 10 to 15 minutes per pound.
Ten to 16 pounds, 10 to 15 minutes per pound.

Add to your menu canned sweet potatoes, given a 10-minute candying, and dress up canned peas with a seasoning of mint. For dessert serve meringue nests filled with scoops of ice cream.

For a real quickie, try this Jelly Glazed Luncheon Meat.
One can luncheon meat.
One-third cup cranberry or currant jelly.
Two teaspoons prepared horseradish.

Cut luncheon meat into eight slices and place in a shallow baking dish. Mix jelly and horseradish and spread on meat slices. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 20 minutes. Yield: four servings.

Canned vegetables can, of course, be served just as they come from the can, perhaps with a bit of butter or margarine and some seasonings or herbs. But they also can be "dressed up" many other ways. For instance, beets have special zest when served with this sauce:

Beets in Lemon Sauce.
Three tablespoons sugar.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One can (16 oz.) sliced beets.
One teaspoon grated lemon rind.

One and one-half tablespoons lemon juice.
One tablespoon butter or margarine.
Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt; add two-thirds cup liquid drained from beets. Mix until smooth and cook until clear, stirring constantly. Add lemon and put in serving dishes. Spoon raspberries over the peaches and chill.

Whip ice cream to a pouring consistency and flavor with rum. Serve over chilled peach mixture. Yield: six servings.

Tomato Juice Cocktail.
The next time you are planning a tomato juice cocktail as a starter, add some powdered dry mustard. It perks up the bland juice and gives a delicious flavor.

Or combine canned green beans and onions in a sauce given zip with horseradish and Worcestershire.

Beans and Onions in Horseradish Sauce.
One can (16 oz.) cut green beans.

One tablespoon butter or margarine.

Two teaspoons flour.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

One-half cup light cream or top milk.

Two tablespoons prepared horseradish.

One-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

One can (eight "oz.") small whole onions.

Drain liquid from beans into a saucepan and cook down to about a fourth cup. Add butter and a mixture of flour, salt and cream. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in horseradish and Worcestershire sauce. Add beans and drained onions and heat.

Corn, but good, is this recipe for corn, cheese and egg timbales.

Gold and Green Vegetable Plate.
One can (16 to 17 oz.) cream style corn.

One-half cup grated Swiss cheese.

Two beaten eggs.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

One-fourth teaspoon prepared mustard.

One-eighth teaspoon paprika.

One-eighth teaspoon marjoram (optional).

One can (16 to 17 oz.) peas, green beans or lima beans.

Two tablespoons butter or margarine.

One-fourth cup sliced ripe olives.

Combine corn, cheese, eggs and seasonings. Place in four individual buttered custard cups and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees) until firm, about 40 minutes.

Drain liquid from peas and cook down to about half. Add peas, butter and olives; heat.

Unmold corn timbales and arrange the olive buttered peas or other green vegetable around them. Garnish with parsley. Yield: four servings.

Canned fruits can be used in desserts as simple as Pears Gino.

Arrange chilled canned pear halves (one or two halves per person) in dessert dishes; sprinkle each serving with two tablespoons red wine or grape juice. Top with a spoonful of whipped cream and a dusting of nutmeg.

Or in a festive dessert such as Party Peach Melba.

Six canned peach halves.

Toasted almonds.

One eight-oz. can red raspberries.

One pint vanilla ice cream.

Rum flavoring (optional).

Stir peaches with almonds

Thrifty Nifty

Sprinkle canned pineapple slices with peach halves with brown sugar and nutmeg. Dot with butter. Toast in broiler. Serve as most as dessert.

Delicate Top-of-the-Stove Custards

It Is Not Necessary to Light the Oven in Order to Make Delicious Custards.

WHY light the oven when you don't have to? Did you know that you could "bake" little cups of vanilla custard on top of the stove, just as well as you can in the oven?

The trick is a simple one. Use your deepest skillet. Fill it with water. Then, if you have no rack, place old jar tops in the pan—one for each cup custard you plan to cook. The water should come half-way up the side of the cup.

Fill the cups and place them on the jar lids. Cover the skillet with a tight-fitting cover and let the contents steam.

Remember that the secret of any really good custard is the flavoring, since the ingredients of a custard are essentially bland by themselves.

Flavoring extracts are highly concentrated, so use them carefully, no more nor less than specified by the recipes you follow. When using pure vanilla extract, bear in mind that while vanilla is a delightful flavor itself it also has the capacity of bringing out other flavors—for example, chocolate has a deeper flavor when vanilla is incorporated with it; coffee tastes more strongly flavored.

Vanilla-Coconut Custard.
One-fourth cup sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
One teaspoon pure vanilla extract.

Two cups milk, scalded.
One-half cup shredded coconut.

Six tablespoons brown sugar.
Six maraschino cherries (optional).

Combine sugar and salt. Add eggs and beat lightly. Stir in pure vanilla extract, hot milk and coconut. Butter six custard cups and put one teaspoon brown sugar and a maraschino cherry (if used) in each. Pour in the custard mixture.

Place cups on a rack or jar lids in a deep nine or 10 inch skillet with hot water coming half-way to the top of cups. Cover with a close-fitting lid. Steam over low heat until knife inserted in the center comes out clean, 12 to 15 minutes. If water around cups boils, custard will curdle. Cool. Serve in custard cups or turn out into dessert dishes.

Coffee Custard.
One-fourth cup light brown sugar.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.

One and one-fourth teaspoons pure vanilla extract.

One teaspoon instant coffee.

Two cups milk.

Crumbs from three macaroons.

Vanilla whipped cream.

Combine sugar and salt. Add

Vanilla Whipped Cream: Whip one-third cup heavy cream until almost stiff. Add one-half teaspoon pure vanilla extract and one teaspoon sugar. Beat until stiff.

Mocha Custard.
Two tablespoons cocoa.
One and one-half teaspoons instant coffee.

One-fourth cup water.

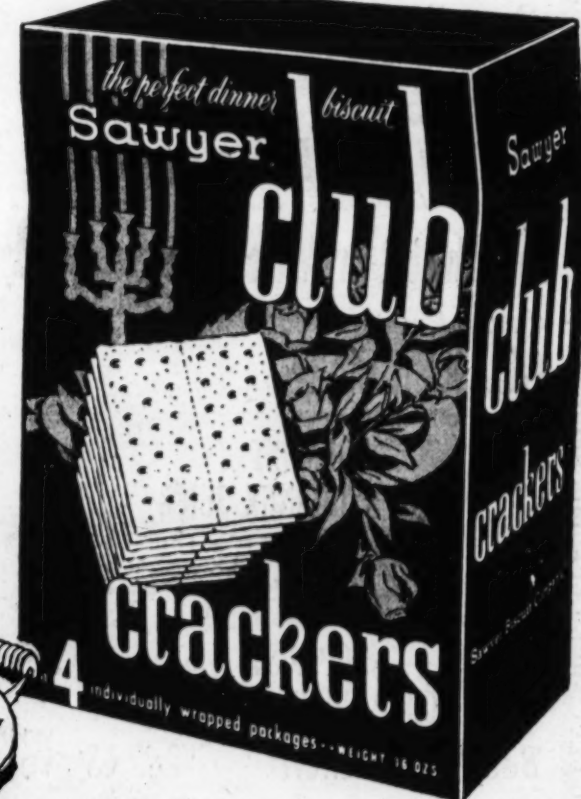

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

CLUB CRACKERS hit a new note—
Three snacks that really rate!
"Club Cracker Pizza" steals the vote—
But every one is great!

club CRACKER PIZZA
Mince two cloves garlic in crockery bowl... add one can undiluted condensed tomato soup and a pinch of dried oregano. Do not cook... let stand 30 minutes. At serving time top each CLUB CRACKER with tomato mixture; add a slice of sharp Cheddar cheese; sprinkle with oregano, then pop into hot oven 3 to 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

Sawyer's Club Crackers

Want to make your guests beam?
Serve "Club Crackers Supreme" club CRACKERS SUPREME

Mix liverwurst with sufficient undiluted condensed tomato soup to make it spread easily. Season with Worcestershire Sauce to taste. Spread on CLUB CRACKERS. Top with a slice of stuffed olive.

Hungry youngsters stage a raid
For "Club Crackers Marmalade!"

club CRACKERS MARMALADE
Soften cream cheese with a little cream. Then mix equal parts of cream cheese and thick orange marmalade. Add finely chopped ginger to taste. Spread on CLUB CRACKERS. Wonderful with hot or iced tea.

And they're real good plain, too!

Relish Idea.
To vary the relishes served with cold cuts, chill some of the relish tray assortment in a gelatin loaf and slice as you would an aspic at serving time.

Follow the basic salad recipe.
calling for fresh lemon juice, on the envelope of unflavored gelatin and add up to two cups of pickle relish, diced celery and shredded carrot.

Dainty Custards

Two cups milk, scalded.
Three eggs.
Five tablespoons sugar.
One and one-half teaspoons pure vanilla extract.
Mix the first four ingredients together in a small saucepan. Bring to a rolling boil and add to scalded milk. Beat eggs lightly. Add sugar and pure vanilla extract. Gradually stir into cocoa-milk mixture. Strain into six buttered custard cups.
Place cups on a rack or jar lids in a deep nine or 10-inch skillet with hot water coming half-way to the top of the cups. Cover with a close-fitting lid. Steam over low heat until knife inserted in center comes out clean, 12 to 15 minutes. Cool.

LEMON-CREAM DRESSING

ADD ZEST TO LETTUCE
Easy to prepare and different is this tossed salad of iceberg lettuce with a lemon cream dressing.
Lettuce with Lemon Cream Dressing.
One medium head iceberg lettuce.
Three tablespoons sugar.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
One-half cup light cream.
Wash lettuce and break into pieces. Mix sugar and lemon juice, then slowly stir in cream. Pour dressing over lettuce and decorate, if desired, with slices of radish. Yield: Four servings.

New England Corn Pudding

An Old American Favorite

It's an old American favorite, and with good reason—New England Corn Pudding. Try it as the hot casserole that accompanies the turkey or ham at your next buffet supper, or serve it at any family supper.
The work of husking the corn and cutting each kernel off the cob is eliminated by using a 10-ounce package of frozen cut corn, with the plump, golden corn kernels harvested at the peak of their flavor.
New England Corn Pudding.
Four tablespoons butter or margarine.
Three tablespoons flour.
Two cups milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper.
One package (10 oz.) frozen cut corn.
One cup boiling water.
Three eggs, separated.
Melt butter or margarine in heavy pan over moderate heat. Remove from heat and stir in flour to form a smooth mixture. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Add salt and cayenne pepper. Return to heat, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Remove from heat.
Pour boiling water over frozen corn, stirring lightly with a fork until kernels separate. Drain. Add drained corn kernels to white sauce. Beat egg yolks until light. Stir into corn mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold carefully into mixture.
Pour into greased two-quart heat-proof casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) one hour. Serve at once. Yield: Six to eight servings.

Tip for Squash.
For a different way with baked squash, serve with golden pineapple chunks glazed with brown sugar. This will add sweetness and is very delicious.

Smooth Texture.
Evaporated milk used 'tis homemade fudge helps to give a creamy, smooth texture to the candy.

Smacks of the old South
The recipe for Maud's genuine Barbecue Sauce originated long ago, 'way down South where cooks are noted for their tasty dishes.
The delightful tang, the delicate flavor, the tantalizing appetizing appeal are all preserved in dishes prepared with Maud's Barbecue Sauce. It peeps up gravy; it gives potato salad a new thrill; it makes lamb chops sizzle with freshness. And, a little goes a long way.

USE LEFTOVER BITS OF BACON IN THESE WAYS

- Double the amount of that breakfast bacon you panfry, broil or bake, and use the crumbled leftovers in one or more of these:
 1. Add to muffin batter just before pouring into baking cups.
 2. Toss with crisp salad greens; dress with oil and vinegar.
 3. Use as seasoning for fresh-cooked green vegetables—beans, peas, chopped spinach.
 4. Use as a topping for casserole macaroni and cheese.
 5. Stir into peanut butter or egg salad for sandwich filling.
 6. Top servings of spaghetti and meat sauce with the crisp bacon.
 7. Add to heated canned pork and beans just before serving.
 8. Sprinkle over hot baked potatoes—right on top of the melted butter!
- APPLES, FRANKFURTERS USED IN JIFFY CASSEROLE
Nothing like a recipe for a quick casserole, and this one can be put together in about 10 minutes and placed in the oven for a half hour or so.
Frankfurters and sauerkraut are baked in layers alternated with fresh spicy red apples cut into rings.
Apple-Frankfurter Jiffy Casserole.
One pound (eight to 10) frankfurters.
Three winesap apples.
Two cups sauerkraut.
Two tablespoons butter or margarine.
Split half the frankfurters in half lengthwise and place rounded side down in casserole. Slice apples into rings crosswise. Lay half the apple rings over frankfurters. Cover with sauerkraut.
Cut remaining frankfurters in half and place around edge of dish. Top sauerkraut with remaining apple rings. Pour melted butter or margarine over all.
Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 30 minutes. If desired, dish may be uncovered during last few minutes of baking time. Yield: four servings.
- THREE NEW WAYS TO VARY CHICKEN SANDWICHES
Canned chicken spread makes it easy to fix a variety of chicken sandwiches, differing widely in flavor and texture. Here are three new sandwich ideas.
1. Chicken Crunch Sandwiches: Mix one can (one-half cup) chicken spread with one-fourth cup chopped peanuts. Spread mayonnaise on slices of bread. Make four sandwiches.
2. Fiesta Chicken Sandwiches: Combine one can (one-half cup) chicken spread, one tablespoon chopped onion, and one-fourth cup chopped olives. Spread to make four sandwiches.
3. Piquant Chicken Sandwiches: Blend one-fourth cup mayonnaise with one can (one-half cup) chicken spread. Stir in one-half cup pickle relish. Make four sandwiches.
- POT ROAST AU JUS
Three-pound pot roast.
One tablespoon shortening or a piece of beef suet.
One and three-fourths teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon ground black pepper.
One-half cup hot water.
Two cups diced fresh tomatoes.
One cup diced potatoes.
One cup sliced carrots.
One cup chopped onion.
One-half cup chopped celery.
One-half cup chopped green pepper.
Brown pot roast in shortening or beef suet, on all sides, in a Dutch oven or a heavy saucepan. Sprinkle with salt and black pepper. Add water. Cover and cook over low heat one and one-half to two hours or until meat is almost tender.
Add vegetables. Cover. Cook one hour or until meat is tender. Slice and serve with the vegetables and juice spooned over it.
Yield: Six to eight servings.

Fined $500 for Unlicensed Practice of Medicine

Michael F. O'Flynn, 5622 Delmar boulevard, was fined $500 today by Judge Louis Comerford of the Court of Criminal Correction after he pleaded guilty to a charge of practicing medicine without a license. A six-month jail sentence was suspended pending payment of the fine.

O'Flynn was arrested in April after a pregnant woman under his care became suspicious and discovered he was not listed as a doctor by state medical authorities. O'Flynn described himself as a "naturopathic" physician.

He was booked on a fugitive warrant last month in Mobile, Ala. Police said he went there while under $1000 bond for appearance on the charges here to set up a similar health clinic in that city.

DETROIT MAN'S CONVICTION FOR CONTEMPT REVERSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals today reversed the contempt of Congress conviction of Saul Grossman of Detroit, which grew out of an appearance before the House Committee on Un-American Activities March 12, 1952.

Grossman was convicted by United States district judge

Alexander Holtzoff in December 1953 on a single charge of contempt. He was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $1000 but has been at liberty on bond.

He was identified as executive secretary of the Michigan Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born. The house committee was looking into activities of the national committee, as well as those of its Michigan affiliate in a quest for Communist ties.

Dividing 2-1, the court of appeals held the committee did not specifically direct Grossman to answer the question involved—whether he refused to produce the committee records.

PLEADS GUILTY OF GIVING OUT SECRET PAPER

Ex-Officer Van Fosson Handed Data to House Unit — Faces Up to Year in Jail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Rea S. Van Fosson, former Air Force intelligence officer who gave a secret document to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, pleaded guilty today to a single misdemeanor charge.

Seven felony charges will be dismissed when Van Fosson is sentenced. He faces a maximum penalty up to one year in jail and a $1000 fine.

United States District Judge Edward M. Curran, before whom Van Fosson entered his plea, fixed no date for sentencing. His bail of $1000 was continued.

He said the case will be referred to the court's probation office before sentence is pronounced.

The court proceeding today lasted only a few minutes.

Van Fosson's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, said Van Fosson wanted to withdraw his plea of not guilty previously entered to the first count of the indictment.

Van Fosson stepped forward and was asked whether he pleaded guilty. He said "I do" in a low voice.

After giving the committee the information, Van Fosson was hired by the committee for a time as an $8200-a-year investigator.

NEW YORK TIMES WRITER DENIED A RUSSIAN VISA

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Soviet government rejected today the visa application of a New York Times correspondent, Harrison E. Salisbury. It gave no reason.

Salisbury headed the Times bureau here from 1949 until 1954. On his return to the United States he wrote a series of articles about Russia which won a Pulitzer prize. He also wrote a book, "American in Russia."

It is believed this is the first outright rejection of a visa application for an American newsman since the Geneva summit conference of last July. But approval of some visa applications for newsmen has taken months, and others are still pending after long waits.

The Times already has one man in Moscow, Welles Hagen. Its bureau operated last year on a two-man basis. A spokesman told Hagen today the Foreign Office will consider the question of granting a visa to another correspondent when application is made.

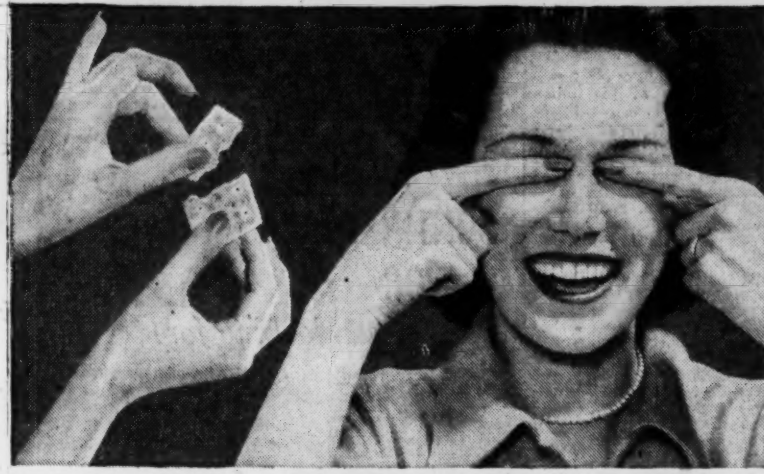

DETROIT NEWSPAPER STRIKE APPROACHING SETTLEMENT

DETROIT, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Detroit Newspaper Publishers Association and three striking unions reached tentative agreement on contract terms today, paving the way for a possible early end to the city's 43-day-old newspaper strike. The city's three metropolitan daily newspapers, the Detroit News, Times and the Free Press—have been shut down since Dec. 1.

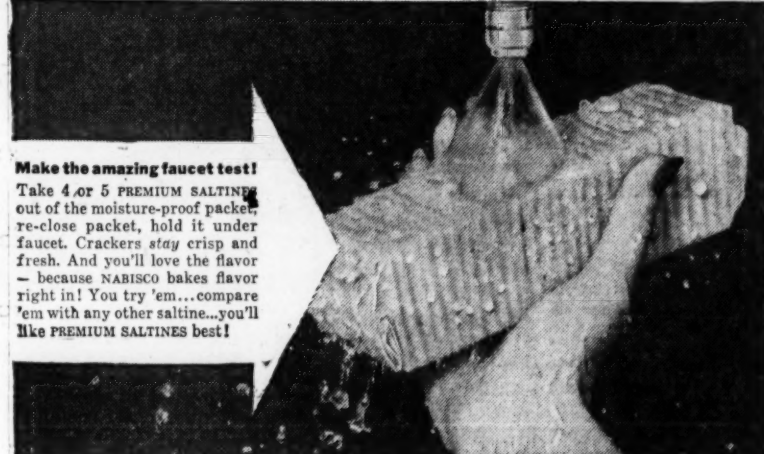

The joint announcement by the publishers and the three striking unions—Stereotypers, Printers and Newspaper Guild. Usually reliable sources expressed confidence these negotiations would be resolved speedily and that the three Detroit papers would resume publication by Monday.

Robert C. Butz, executive secretary of the publishers association, said the contracts "call for a wage increase of $3.75 upon resumption of publication and an additional $2.75 a week on Dec. 1, 1956. All other points have been resolved."

3 DEMOCRATIC SENATORS BACK DULLES ON AID

Sparkman, Humphrey, Mansfield Praise Plan to Shift Foreign Policy Tactics.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Three Democratic Senators applauded today when the described as an Administration shift in foreign policy strategy to greater emphasis on economic and social problems.

Senators Sparkman of Alabama, Humphrey of Minnesota, and Mansfield of Montana commented favorably on the call by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles for the nation to "wake up" to economic and social contest with the Russians abroad.

"Defeat in this contest could be as disastrous as defeat in an armaments race," said the statement prepared by the United States delegation to the recent United Nations General Assembly and released with the endorsement of Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles.

A Republican, Senator Dirksen of Illinois, called the statement "an assurance to the country that appeasement has no part in the Administration's foreign policy in dealing with the Soviet menace."

Elsewhere the statement, and the new foreign aid plans which many thought it was designed to support, drew varied reaction.

Chairman George (Dem.), Georgia, of the Foreign Relations Committee, who already has announced opposition to any expansion of economic aid, said "We'll have to wait a little bit to see what they report."

Among Senate Republicans, Minority Leader Knowland of California had "no comment," and Senators Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, and Dworth (Rep.), Idaho, expressed the opinion that the President would have a "hard time" extending foreign aid commitments.

The Eisenhower Administration plans to ask for $4,900,000,000 of new foreign aid appropriations, part of it for later spending, and to seek authority for commitments to overseas spending programs for as much as 10 years.

The U.N. group's statement said Russian efforts must be countered by economic aid that makes "newly independent and newly articulate peoples feel that they can best satisfy their wants by becoming and remaining part of the community of free nations."

"It's high time the Administration was getting busy on this kind of a program," Sparkman commented. "I am glad they are waking up to the realities of today."

Mansfield said he has been advocating a shift in emphasis for months, and Humphrey said the Administration statement resembled a speech he made months ago.

"Democratic Program." "Now that the President and Secretary have come to realize the soundness of our Democratic program, they may rest assured we will support it," Humphrey said. "All we ask the Administration to do is get a little help from the Republican leadership."

Like Dirksen, Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.), N.J., agreed with the new Administration approach, saying that technical and economic assistance is becoming increasingly important.

Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wis., said the Foreign Relations Committee should "get the facts at once and determine the necessities of the situation."

On the other hand Dworth said "I don't think Congress will go for any long range program."

Bricker said he wanted to "take a look" at the program, and added "the President will have a hard time getting it up here."

Representative Gordon (Dem.), Illinois, acting chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, predicted the increased foreign aid request "will go through lots of battles."

He said "a five or a 10-year term can not be considered because changes in world affairs occur so fast."

Representative Judd (Rep.), Minnesota, also a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said it's not the amount of economic aid that counts but the way it is administered.

(Chairman Harry F. Byrd of the Senate Finance Committee said flatly, "I'm opposed" to further foreign aid, the United Press said. "We have already spent 40 billion dollars on foreign aid," Byrd said. "That is sufficient.")

HIT PARKED AUTO, FINED AS INTOXICATED DRIVER

Edward J. Chaplin, of the 100 block of Jefferson Barracks road, Lemay, was fined $150 and his driver's license was suspended for 90 days yesterday when Police Judge Robert G. Dowd found him guilty of careless driving and driving when intoxicated.

Chaplin, a maintenance man, was arrested Sept. 16 after his automobile hit a parked car in the 700 block of Reilly avenue. Police said he appeared to be intoxicated. Chaplin, pleading not guilty, told police a sudden onset of pain, caused by an ailment, caused him to swerve the car. He filed notice of appeal.

Judge Dowd also imposed a $90 fine on Howard C. Phillips, of the 4600 block of McPherson avenue, who pleaded guilty of driving when intoxicated. Phillips' driver's license was suspended for 90 days. He was arrested Christmas day after his machine struck a parked car in the 4000 block of Olive street.

BUDGET MESSAGE WILL CALL FOR HIGHER OUTLAYS

But It Will Predict a Balance Due to Increased Income in Expanding Economy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower plans to send to Congress Monday a balanced budget, but one that contemplates higher spending, and to indicate that outlays are likely to keep climbing in the next several years.

The actual budget totals are closely guarded until disclosed to Congress.

But on the basis of Mr. Eisenhower's State of the Union message on Jan. 5, Mr. Eisenhower's budget will forecast: (1) Spending of between 65½ and 66 billion dollars in the next fiscal year; (2) income of at least that much, and (3) requests for appropriations well in excess of projected spending.

At the same time Mr. Eisenhower probably will revise his estimates for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30, to predict a balanced budget with spending at about 64½ billion dollars. That would be some three-quarters of a billion dollars higher than previously forecast.

Balance in 1956 and 1957. In his State of the Union message on Jan. 5, Mr. Eisenhower said his budget would forecast a balanced budget in fiscal 1956 and 1957.

If a balanced budget is achieved this fiscal year, it will be the first year since 1951 that the Government has spent no more than its income. And not since 1947 and 1948 has the Government balanced its budget in two successive years.

The budget is being balanced, even while spending is going up because the expanding economy is enriching the Government's income faster than spending is growing.

Aside from the balanced budget forecast, the most significant items in the forthcoming budget message, as indicated in previous announcements, are:

1. The expected sharp rise in appropriations requests—a reversal from recent years—because this indicates a rising trend of federal spending for some years to come.

2. An indicated sizable surplus of perhaps five billion dollars in the cash budget—because that could, in given circumstances, virtually force a personal tax cut. The cash budget includes receipts for social security and other trust funds which are not counted as income belonging to the Government.

Such a surplus, if it increased at a time when business activity may be turning down somewhat, would increase the pressure to cut personal taxes.

Deflationary Effect. This is so because a cash budget surplus means the Government is taking more out of the economy than it is putting in. The quickest way to correct such a deflationary effect is by a tax cut.

Here is the basis for estimates that spending this year will approximate 64½ billion dollars and that outlays will go on up:

Last fall's revised estimates indicated spending of approximately $65,500,000,000 this year. Since then, estimates have been that Pentagon spending will be half a billion dollars higher than was calculated and that foreign aid spending will be up by $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. No compensating economies have been indicated.

No compensating economies have been indicated.

Secretary of Defense Wilson has said also that defense spending will increase by another billion dollars next year, and foreign aid spending, it has been indicated, will rise by $200,000,000. Higher outlays are foreseen, too, for health, education, highways and agriculture.

VETERAN WHO THREATENED PRESIDENT IS RULED INSANE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—A veteran of both world wars was cleared "by reason of insanity" yesterday of charges he threatened the life of President Eisenhower here last March 5. United States District Judge

Henry A. Schweinhaut ordered Henry L. Layfield, of the State Soldiers and Sailors Home at Quincy, Ill., hospitalized for further psychiatric examination. Secret service agents testified Layfield threatened to shoot the President at a White House gate. They said he had no weapon with him. Layfield testified he was drunk and "blanked out" at the time.

WEEKS STEPSON DRIVES TAXICAB IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (UP)—Kirk Rankin, 24-year-old stepson of Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks, is working as a part-time Washington taxicab driver to help pay for his education.

Rankin, a student at the institute of languages and linguistics at Georgetown University, told the United Press he wants to enter private business as a Chinese language expert.

The former G.I. lives in a two-room apartment with his wife, Carlin, and 3-month-old son, Charles. He said he drives a cab in weekends to augment his G.I. benefits.

"We have to eat," he said. Rankin, a native of Nashville, Tenn., has maintained a legal residence here ever since Weeks came to Washington as a member of President Eisenhower's cabinet. Weeks has been his stepfather for eight years, Rankin said.

'CRUSADE' IN GEORGIA TO KEEP SEGREGATION

Move to Prevent Mixing of Races Is Carried to the County Level.

AMERICUS, Ga., Jan. 12 (AP)—Political leaders of Georgia have called for a "great crusade" on the county level to prevent mixing of the races in a move which openly defied United States Supreme Court decisions on segregation.

Plans were outlined yesterday at the first grass roots meeting of the States Rights Council of Georgia, Inc. in Americus. Gov. Marvin Griffin headed a parade of speakers who emphasized that organization of the recently formed States Rights Council must be carried out through all levels in the counties.

"The rest of the nation is looking to Georgia for the lead in segregation," he declared. Asserting that he "did not believe in the decisions of the Supreme Court," Griffin pledged that "as long as I am governor of the state there will not be any mixing of the races in schools and colleges at any time or any place."

Former Gov. Herman Tamm said he felt that "the meeting here today is the beginning of a great crusade which will sweep the state and southern regions to let the world know regardless of what the Supreme Court says, does or thinks that by the grace of God, Georgia will continue running its own affairs."

Methodist Evangelism Board Ends Segregated Basis, ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga., Jan. 12 (AP)—The General Board of Evangelism of the Methodist Church today ordered an end to administration of its program on a radically segregated basis.

The board voted to discontinue its department of Negro work, announcing: "The time has come when special department is no longer needed and it is our desire that the entire staff work with the whole church."

The Rev. J. W. Golden, Memphis Negro minister, who for 14 years headed evangelism work with Negro Methodists, was named head of a new department of motivation.

Bishop W. Angle Smith, Oklahoma City, president of the board, earlier had called upon the church to press for social progress. The board is composed of bishops, pastors, and laymen from 40 states.

Retired General Assaults N.A.A.C.P., Negro Group Walks Out, JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 12 (AP)—A retired United States Army general blasted the movement toward racial integration and laid it at the door of the Republican party last night in a talk to the Duval county Democratic executive committee. Negro members walked out in protest.

Lt. Gen. Sumter L. Lowry of Tampa called the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People "loud and arrogant" and a "nation-wide propaganda machine" that "has arisen in the South and the nation talking about equal opportunities, human rights, education and religion."

"But they fail to tell you that their real interest is to fuse the white and Negro blood; to create a mongrel race without courage, morals or principles, which in the end will mean the disintegration of our nation and the complete victory of the Communist movement," he said.

After Lowry's talk, Isadore Singleton, Negro committeeman, asked Chairman Edgar W. Waybright Sr. if the official meeting had ended.

"It has," Waybright replied. "Then we Negro members of the committee do not wish to sit in the meeting any longer and be talked about," Singleton said. "We feel everything that the general has said has been vulgar and against us as members of the committee."

The 22 Negro members present left with about 12 others in the audience. White members stayed for introduction of guests. No business was transacted after the walkout. The 364-member committee includes 54 Negroes.

M'DEVIITT RETURNS TO POST

Frank J. McDevitt, president of the Board of Public Service, who suffered a broken left collar bone the night of Nov. 18 when he was struck by an automobile, returned to work at City Hall today. He is 72 years old.

The accident occurred at Pershing and Newstead avenues as he was walking his dog. The driver did not stop.

HENNINGS CALLS
FARM AID TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE

Says Soil Bank First
Was Adopted by Democrats in 1933,
Opposed by G.O.P.

President Eisenhower's nine-point farm program was described last night by United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), as probably "too little and too late."

In an address at the annual banquet of the Merchants Exchange of St. Louis at Hotel Chase, Hennings endorsed the President's soil bank proposal as "excellent long-range policy as far as it goes," but declared the farmers need help now.

He also expressed surprise at the Republican adoption of the soil bank program which, he said, first became a law in 1933 under former President Franklin D. Roosevelt and which was fought consistently by the Republican party.

No Solution Found.

Hennings said the farm problems of this country were "staggering in their immensity and neither political party has yet found anything like a satisfactory solution for all of them."

He declared that he, like many Republicans and almost all Democrats, was an advocate of high price supports, "not because programs of high price supports are a final answer to the problem but because they are the best answer thus far proposed."

Declaring the forthcoming debate on farm policy should not be limited to flexible versus firm price supports, Hennings said the problem was too important to become a political football because it transcended partisan politics.

Election Laws Revision.

Turning from agricultural problems, Hennings urged public support for a bill he has offered to revise the nation's election laws.

Although present laws place a ceiling of $3,000,000 on the amount that either political party can spend on a federal election, estimates of the amounts spent in the 1952 presidential election range from $75,000,000 to as high as $200,000,000, he said.

Because of the high cost of radio and television as campaign media, the present limits on party expenditures are "totally antiquated and unrealistic," he said. The same is true, he added, of the present limits on what individual candidates may spend.

But more important than limits on spending, in Senator Hennings' opinion, is the need for an exact accounting of where the money comes from and how it is spent, he said. He asserted that some wealthy men have used their wealth in efforts to control, "in so far as they can," the election of federal officials.

On Senate Calendar.

The Senator's bill, which is now on the Senate calendar for action, would make all party primaries, caucuses and conventions for the selection of federal candidates subject to federal election laws, he said.

It would require a public accounting of the financial activities of all political committees spending more than $100 annually for federal offices. Among other things it would increase "to realistic limits" the amounts candidates for federal office may legitimately spend to seek nomination or election. Candidates would be made responsible for and given control over campaign committees supporting them, thus preventing these candidates from being embarrassed by any questionable activities on the part of "hit and run" committees, he added.

Finally, the bill would require the filing of businesslike reports at such times and in such places, both in Washington and the states, as to assure the public of adequate knowledge concerning campaign finances, Hennings said.

The senior Senator from Missouri said his bill had received enthusiastic endorsement by the press and public generally but that its passage was far from assured. He said many members of Congress, who had successfully campaigned under the existing laws, had an understandable aversion to revising them, and many members

KREMLIN BRASS GIVES BIG HAND TO
'PORGY AND BESS'

MOSCOW, Jan. 12 (AP) — Performers in "Porgy and Bess" almost got stage fright last night when top Soviet officials, including Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev, appeared at the show. All went well and the visiting notables applauded vigorously during curtain calls.

The cast of the George Gershwin-Dubose Heyward opera had no advance word the officials would show up until they saw them file into their box at the Stanislavsky theater. The top Kremlin brass skipped the opening the night before.

Khrushchev's party included Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, former Premier Georgi M. Malenkov and top officials L. M. Kaganovich, A. I. Mikoyan, M. G. Pervukhin, M. A. Suslov and D. T. Shepilov. Premier Bulganin was not present.

from the South, where nomination is tantamount to election, naturally preferred to exclude primaries from federal control.

Second Measure.

Another measure offered by Hennings would permit the deduction for income tax purposes of political contributions up to $100. He said the proposal was made not for the purpose of increasing such contributions but "because I believe more people should take part in politics and support the political party of their choice."

Edward S. Deibel, president of Elam Grain Co., and retiring president of the Merchants' Exchange, said total grain receipts of 94,000,000 bushels last year taxed storage facilities here even though those facilities had been increased by 8,000,000 bushels in 1954.

In turning over the presidency to Harold C. Banks as the Exchange begins its 120th year, Deibel expressed regret that plans for a new building for the exchange had not become a reality in 1955. He expressed hope that more tangible results could be expected in the future.

The meeting was attended by about 300 business and civic leaders, including Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Missouri Secretary of State Walter H. Toberman.

Hut of Early British Antarctic Explorer Standing 48 Years Later

U.S. Navy Men Visit Quarters of Sir Ernest Shackleton Who Had to Turn Back 97 Miles From Pole.

The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

CAPE ROYDS, ROSS ISLAND, Jan. 12 — Forty-eight years of the world's windiest weather have failed to knock over the wooden hut built in 1908 by Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, one of the greatest explorers of Antarctica.

It was from this hut—that "Cautious Jack" as he was called, and members of his British Antarctic expedition of 1907-1909, left on a remarkable attempt to score no less than three "firsts." They scored two and would have made a clean sweep if Shackleton had allowed his vanity to triumph over his realism.

One party ascended a peak in the hut's backyard, Mount Erebus, 13,200 feet high and the only known volcano in the Antarctic. The second group reached the South Magnetic Pole during an arduous 1260-mile round-trip journey. The third group, under Shackleton himself, sledged about 800 miles toward the South Pole, only to turn back 97 miles short of its goal.

Recorded in Diary. That shattering about-face took place 47 years ago this week — Jan. 9, 1909 — and Shackleton put it down in his diary this way:

"Our last day outward. We have shot our bolt... whatever our regrets may be, we have done our best."

He probably could have made the Pole but a Manchurian pony the party had been counting on for meat had fallen into a crevasse. Shackleton believed he would not have enough food to reach the Pole and return to the hut and he chose to turn back. Less than three years later — December, 1911 — Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian explorer, became the first man to reach the south pole.

Shackleton was back again in the Antarctic during his 1914-1917 expedition with a heroic plan to be the first man to cross the continent from the Weddell sea to the Ross sea. But the expedition met with a chain of disasters. His ship, the Endurance, was crushed by pack-ice in the Weddell sea but the party escaped after an epic march across the ice floes.

Trip By Helicopter. To visitors flown here by helicopter from Operation Deepfreeze, the Navy ships now operating in the McMurdo sound area, the hut had a look of abandonment both inside and out, as though the tenants had left it in a great hurry.

Inside, it had the look of a cluttered country store. There were shelves of all sorts of tinned foods, a collection of newspapers and a large old-fashioned stove.

The shelves for the food had been made out of old crates and boxes marked "Nimrod," the name of Shackleton's 1907-1909 ship. In the midst of it all were some framed pictures, of King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra of England. The ceiling was festooned with picture postcards of towns in Britain.

Outside there were boxes and crates of unopened food that apparently had been brought to the hut to feed Shackleton's party. There was corn spilling from a bag and the kernels were still golden. There were boxes of soap also and they still smelled like soap despite the fact that they had been out in the harsh Antarctic environment for more than forty years.

British Vessel Reaches Edge of Antarctic Ice.
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)
LONDON, Jan. 12—Members of one British expedition to the Antarctic have managed to berth their motor vessel Tottan on the edge of the southern ice more than 150 miles away from the destination planned, it was reported yesterday.

A second party in the Theron is still at sea some hundreds of miles away and reported to be traveling in reverse. The Theron at latest reports here was in danger of being trapped by ice.

Both parties had hoped to land at the same time at Vahsel Bay, an unexplored corner of the usually ice-bound Weddell sea to the east of Palmerland where the British hope to start their expedition overland from one side of the Antarctic continent to the other.

The party that landed from the Tottan is establishing a static base in preparation for the International Geophysical Year. Priority will be given at first to the collection of meteorological data and the measurement of solar radiation.

News about the Theron, which is carrying Dr. Vivian E. Fuchs, leader of the trans-Antarctic expedition, is more vague. The ship encountered almost impenetrable ice and strong head winds two days after Christmas. It is now reported to be seeking to find a clear passage toward Vahsel Bay.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS TO GO TO DINNER IN SPRINGFIELD

Between 40 and 50 St. Louis county Democrats are scheduled to attend the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner in Springfield, Mo., Saturday to display a united front and stress the importance of the growing Democratic vote in the county, it was announced today.

Sylvester G. Lipic, Democratic leader and member of the County Board of Election Commissioners, said the group would have a special car on the train. He pointed out that the Democratic vote in the county in the 1952 primary election was more than 58,000. With the increased population and voting machines, he expects the Democrats to poll about 90,000 votes in the next primary.

T.W.A. INTERIM PRESIDENT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 12 (AP)—John A. Collins, executive vice president of Trans World Airlines, was named interim president of the carrier yesterday, succeeding Ralph S. Damon, who died Jan. 4.

Collins, whose home is in Kansas City, joined Transcontinental Air Transport, predecessor to T.W.A., in 1928. He is a member of the T.W.A. board of directors and was vice president for operations before his advancement to executive vice president in September 1951.

Chaplain Back Decey Drive, INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—American Legion chaplains from all 48 states yesterday introduced a vigorous campaign against indecent comic books and objectionable movies.

CRANBERRY RAISIN TEA RING

What you need:

1 cup light or dark raisins

1 cup fresh cranberries

1/2 cup brown sugar (packed)

2 teaspoons grated orange rind

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 package quick acting granular yeast

1/2 cup lukewarm water

1/2 cup milk

1/2 cup butter or margarine

1/2 cup brown sugar

1/2 cup biscuit mix

1 egg

1/2 cup chopped walnuts

How you do it:

1. Rinse and drain raisins and cranberries; grind together.

2. Add brown sugar, orange rind and cinnamon; let stand while you make dough.

3. Sprinkle yeast over water; let stand 5 minutes.

4. Heat milk till top wrinkles.

5. Stir in 1/2 cup butter, sugar, biscuit mix and unbeaten egg.

6. Mix in yeast; place on floured bread board.

7. Knead until smooth, about 5 minutes.

8. Roll 1/2 inch thick into oblong about 18x8 inches.

9. Spread with remaining 1/2 cup brown sugar, orange rind and cinnamon mixture and roll.

10. Roll up from long side like jelly roll.

11. Form into ring on cookie sheet.

12. Cut at 1/2 inch intervals almost through to center as in a Swedish ring.

13. Turn slices slightly up.

14. Let rise till doubled.

15. Brush with butter.

16. Bake in hot oven 400° F. about 15 minutes.

17. Spread with icing made of 1/2 cup powdered sugar and 2 tablespoons orange juice.

Quantity: 1 tea ring

HIGH RATINGS GIVENMILK SUPPLY HERE

Production and Handling

Again Score Well in State, Federal Survey.

Production and handling of milk for St. Louis again was given high ratings after a survey by the Missouri division of health and the United States Public Health Service.

On a basis of 100 as perfect, the current ratings, with those of last year for comparison, are: raw milk, 92.5 and 93; pasteurization plants, 97.8 and 98; pasteurized milk, 95.1 and 95, and enforcement of the city milk code, 93.5 and 97.

The health department and all concerned were congratulated for the achievement, including the highest rating ever made in enforcement.

Sixty-three farms, 13 receiving stations and 18 pasteurization plants were inspected. The report said the city had done an excellent job of revising the milk ordinance.

Imperial Poems

STRESS CHILL IN POSTWAR JAPAN

TOKYO, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Emperor, the Empress and the Crown Prince all wrote about chilly weather today in Japan's 1000-year-old annual imperial poetry contest.

The Emperor's poem:

In my garden pheasants play merrily.

Still frost covers it.

It is spring, but still cold.

The theme of the contest—which anyone can enter and which 7490 did—was "early spring."

Old-timers said the cold weather reference could mean the long chill years of the United States occupation and postwar recovery period—perhaps even the continued presence of United States defense forces.

Others saw only a general reference to Japan's postwar difficulties—including the chill that has settled on last year's warm approaches to peace with Russia.

The Imperial family always writes for the contest, but their poems are not judged.

Among 15 winners were poems by a Japanese road gang worker and a lumberjack.

'DIMES' MARCHERTAKES TWO STEPS*IN ADVANCING ONE

Marine Technical Sgt. David Pryor, who started out Monday noon on a proposed 100-mile march for the March of Dimes, discovered on reaching the half-way mark of his five-day hike last evening that he already had covered 100 miles.

Sgt. Pryor, who is scheduled to complete his march Saturday afternoon at St. Anthony Hospital polio center, attributed the miscalculation in distance to hesitancy on the part of donors to leave warm houses to make their contributions. As a result, Pryor has been climbing steps "all the way to St. Charles" to collect dimes. A pedometer the Marine wears records the distance he walks.

Today the Marine is walking through Richmond Heights, Brentwood and Webster Groves, accompanied by volunteer collectors.

With collections of about $4000, he is far short of the $17,600 goal he set, on the basis of 10 cents for each stride taken in the march. The total will be swelled, however, by contributions mailed to "Marine March, care of the Postmaster."

U.S. TOLD TO GIVE DETAILSON PAULINE CLOIN TAX CLAIM

Special to the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—The Internal Revenue Service was given until Feb. 23 to make a detailed claim that Pauline Cloin, key witness in the alleged police pay-off inquiry in St. Louis, deposited $34,708 in unreported income in 1951-53.

United States Tax Court Judge J. Edgar Murdock ordered the service to identify the Cloin woman's saving accounts.

His action came on a petition by her attorney, Charles R. Cuntz of St. Louis, that the Government be more specific in its claim that she owes $17,777 in taxes and penalties for the three years.

The Cloin woman formerly was an employee of the late Mrs. June Alma Lytz, operator of June's Bath and Massage Parlor, 308A North Theresa avenue. After Mrs. Lytz's death, the other woman set off the pay-off inquiry by stating that she knew of bribes some policemen took from brothel operators to prevent raids on their places.

New England Rain Fifth Day.

BOSTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—This is the fifth day of rain in New England—and the Weather Bureau says, "All we can promise is more rain." However, little danger of floods was seen by authorities as ice jams on thawing streams broke up yesterday in many parts of New England and released backed-up waters.

KOREAN WAR COLLABORATORHELD IN DETROIT ROBBERY

DETROIT, Jan. 12 (AP)—Police yesterday held for investigation in a $50 grocery store holdup a former Detroit Army sergeant convicted of collaborating with the enemy in Korea.

He is Leonard F. Gordon, a former technical sergeant in the First Cavalry in Korea. He told police he had a Korean wife and three children in Suwan, Korea.

He said he was accused of harboring some Red Chinese soldiers caught living in an abandoned mine tunnel beneath his house. Gordon denied helping the Red soldiers and said he himself was a prisoner of war in Korea for 16 months.

Because he was given a dishonorable discharge, Gordon said Army authorities refused to permit him to bring his family to Detroit.

COLLEGE HEADS URGED TO READ AND STUDY MORE

Warned Against Depleting Intellectual Capital by Doing Too Much Talking.

Many American college presidents have depleted their own intellectual capital by talking too much, while devoting too little time to reading and study, the Association of American Colleges was told today.

The warning was given in a report by a 14-member commission on liberal education, composed of college and university presidents, at the association's concluding session at Hotel Jefferson.

Headed by Richard D. Weigle, president of St. John's College in Maryland, the commission members said that they had noted among themselves a need for a "regeneration" of spirit, a building of new understandings, and a replenishment of intellectual reservoirs.

Responsibility Spelled Out.

The commission said college presidents had an inescapable responsibility for furnishing the "imaginative and provocative leadership" that would revitalize teaching of the liberal arts, which it termed the wellspring of learning.

One of the commission's recommendations was that the problem of improving such leadership "become a matter of urgent consideration by individuals or by small groups of presidents in particular areas."

The report was approved.

On recommendation of its Commission on Teacher Education, the association voted to decline an invitation to membership on the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

College's Purpose.

The N.C.A.T.E. was set up by educators who believe that teachers colleges and education courses in other types of colleges should be accredited by a central agency, just as medical and other professional courses are.

Arthur G. Coons, president of Occidental College at Los Angeles, was elected president of the association to succeed the Rev. Joseph R. N. Maxwell, president of Boston College.

President J. Olin Edmunds of Stetson University, Deland, Fla., was named vice president, and William W. Whitehouse, head of Albion (Mich.) College, treasurer.

In an address this morning, Lyman H. Butterfield, editor-in-chief of the recently opened archives of the Adams family of Massachusetts, said historical manuscript resources in the United States are so vast they are "almost staggering to contemplate."

Butterfield noted that archivists of the nineteenth century tended to suppress or alter the record in an effort to make America's founding fathers appear without blemish. Since then, he said, the trend has been toward unadorned accuracy and full transcription of the record.

Concerning his own project with the Adams papers, Butterfield said it is the largest such enterprise yet announced, exceeding in size the publication of the Thomas Jefferson papers, a 50-volume effort now in progress at Princeton University.

Finds 300,000 Pages.

Butterfield said that in 1954, when he was named editor, he found some 300,000 pages "recording the political, diplomatic and intellectual history of the United States and the domestic life of a gifted family from the mid-eighteenth to the early twentieth century, of which by far the greater part was unpublished and, indeed, unknown."

He now is setting up "an assembly line" so that publication of the papers can be started, he said.

The Adamses—"possibly the greatest tribe of scribblers the world has ever known"—saved their diaries, letters, and official papers over four generations and early in this century deposited them with the Massachusetts Historical Society, Butterfield said.

However, access to the archives was limited to a few scholars until three years ago, he said.

An address by Under Secretary of Welfare Herold C. Hunt was read at a luncheon meeting ending the three-day session. He called on college presidents to prevent the frittering away, in unproductive recreation and amusement, of increased leisure time that is promised to Americans by advancing technology.

"A great expansion of national wealth appears now to be a certainty," he observed. "Will we spend more on trivialities, or will we lay convincing claim to some of this for the improvement of men's minds?"

Canadian Envoy Speaks.

In a speech to the association last night, A. D. P. Heeney, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, said nations of the free world needed citizens trained not only in science and technology but also in "a sense of proportion and historical perspective, awareness of social and moral values."

3 SEEN STEALING SAFE WITH $1650 FROM MARKET

A safe containing $1650 was stolen from the meat market of Barney Wise, 5011 Lotus avenue, last night, police reported.

A neighbor, who called police, said she saw three youths carrying the safe out of the rear of the store and load it into the trunk of an automobile. In the loading process, she said, it appeared in the dark as though the safe fell on one of the burglars.

Police said entrance was gained by forcing a rear door.

AUTO CRASH FATAL TO J. GRANT FRYE

Cape Girardeau Attorney and Legion Leader in Collision Near Columbia.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 12 (UP)—J. Grant Frye, a prominent Cape Girardeau attorney and past state commander of the American Legion, was killed in a traffic accident near here late yesterday.

Mr. Frye, 58 years old, was killed instantly when his auto swerved out of control into the path of an oil-truck on Highway 63. The driver of the truck, Will Hasenaff, 29, of Cedar City, Mo., was not injured.

Mr. Frye was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1940, losing to Forrest C. Donnell. He was also an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor in 1932. He was appointed director of organization for the Republican state committee following that defeat.

In 1936, he won the Republican nomination for attorney general but was defeated in the general election. He had headed the Republican state speakers bureau in 1931.

He had practiced law at Cape Girardeau since his graduation from the University of Missouri school of law in 1925.

He served as state commander of the American Legion in 1939. In World War I he served in the Marines and won the Croix de Guerre and several other decorations.

The highway patrol said that Mr. Frye was evidently driving at a high rate of speed. Apparently his right wheels left the pavement and ran over a concrete surface drain which apparently sent his car careening

BARRICADE IS HIT, 2 LEAVE MANHOLE, RUN DOWN DRIVER

A motorist who knocked down a barricade over a manhole in which two telephone men were working early today at Twelfth and Spruce streets was captured and held for police following a chase by the men across the Twelfth street viaduct.

Charles Barnes, 7634 Weaver avenue, Maplewood, and John Riley, 8932 Judith lane, St. Louis county, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employees, reported they were working on underground cables at 1 a.m. when an automobile crashed into the metal barricade surrounding the manhole, knocking the barricade aside. The driver continued on. Barnes and Riley scrambled out of the manhole, jumped into their truck and gave chase.

They forced the machine to the curb at Twelfth street and Russell boulevard, and held the driver until police arrived. The prisoner, booked for careless driving and driving when intoxicated, said he is William F. Meyer, a pipefitter, 4111 Quincy street. He was held at Central District for a police court appearance.

SPEEDER HELD IN THEFT, MONEY FOUND IN H'S AUTO

Walter E. Faline, of Bloomington, Ind., was booked on suspicion of burglary and larceny by county police today in connection with the burglary last night of Brown's Log House Cafe, Eureka. His arrest for speeding led police to the discovery of a cardboard box in his automobile containing $300 in coins.

The initial arrest was made by a State Highway Patrol officer at Gravois road and Lind-

More and richer buttermilk than in any other mix! 12 ingredients—many you can't find at your grocer's

DUNCAN HINES
America's Foremost Authority on Good Eating

From a well-thumbed page of an old cookbook, Duncan Hines took the recipe for pancakes as they used to be, when cooks took all the time and trouble to make really fine "eating." He put this recipe into a mix...so that now, off your griddle, come pancakes such as you've probably never tasted.

Run your finger down this recipe and you'd find ingredients not on your shelf, or your grocer's. Five—yes, five—different flours, including the finest-milled wheat flour usually reserved for cakes. Special syrup-flavored sugar. And, of course, buttermilk because it tenderizes the gluten in flour. The really rich, butter-flecked kind that farm folks know as "churning-day" buttermilk.

Wouldn't you like to sit right down now and taste Duncan Hines buttermilk pancakes? Better get a package today—and enjoy a "forgotten flavor"!

No More $10 Days

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—After 18 years as an umpire in the American League, Willie Grieve has worked his last ten-dollar day. That's a private joke and not an especially good one, but the lively, gray-haired man whose retirement was announced Tuesday will know what it means.

Back in the last days of the depression before World War II, American League umpires barnstorming with clubs in the spring exhibition season received an expense allowance from the league based on a sliding scale, though it didn't slide as far or fast as, say, Pepper Martin. When there was an overnight stop involving lodging in a hotel, the allowance was $10. If the night was passed in the team's Pullman traveling to another city, walking-around money was cut to $5.

One spring Willie Grieve mentioned this arrangement to newspaper men who thereafter gave tongue to withering remarks that might better have been saved for the typewriter. "Hey, Willie!" one of them would brag from the press box in Yuma, Ariz., during a lull in the action. "You got to hear down in this, it's a $10 day!"

Some of the more pompous members of the clan would have been outraged, perhaps properly, by such public bawling about their income, but Willie was amused. He'd turn, grinning, toward the source of the howl, acknowledge it with a genial sweep of his hand, and turn back to his work. It was this friendly equanimity of his that made his path smoother than the one most umpires travel.

Blessed the Peacemaker.

BILITY to keep his temper is a priceless attribute in an umpire, perhaps as necessary as normal vision, courage of his convictions and some inkling of the rules. The guy who bows his neck when challenged invites trouble. There comes to mind an instance when Willie Grieve's deportment in trying circumstances entitled him to special applause; whether he got it is something else.

In the closing week of the 1949 race the Yankees and Red Sox were playing in New York with first place at stake. In the eighth inning Johnny Pesky slid home on a squeeze play with the run that put Boston in front by a full game.

Ralph Houk, the Yankees' catcher, gave one of the most stirring impersonations of a homefield fanatic since the original Lou Gehrig. He roared, the pitcher, flung his glove aloft, inviting immediate dismissal. Casey Stengel came heel-and-toeing out of the dugout to part in baseball.

Willie would have been justified in unfrocking the three of them on the spot and recommending fines or suspensions. Instead, he reached for a white glove and dusted the plate, a fair and patient man who was not going to handicap either confounding team in order to save face before the big crowd.

The Democrats Said Worse.

LATER an obscure outfielder named Cliff May was fanned by Grieve under the grandstand and, with a fine blend of bush-league effrontery and repartee, demanded: "How much do you have on the game?"

Even that bit of scurrility didn't bring reprisals from Willie, who may have been flattered to abuse during his hitherto as a Republican assemblyman from Westchester county. Lacking conditioning in politics, there was a vastly complicated play which created a knotty problem for the umpires in a game between the Athletics and the Indians in Cleveland. It doesn't matter now what raised the argument and the chances are Willie never heard of it, for he was nowhere near Ohio that day.

Anyhow, while the debate raged Connie Mack thrust his head from the dugout and wagged a finger for permission to speak. Joe Rue, who was working the game, scampered in to hear his suggestion.

"Don't you agree, Mr. Grieve?" Connie began, and went on with his version of the play. It was Connie's special gift that he could, in one breath, get the decision right and the umpire's name wrong. Being in a friendly mood, he'd naturally think of a friendly name.

Gross said as he handed the gavel to John Frisch, newly-elected president. Other new officers are William Scheff, vice president; George Kletzke, secretary, and John Nooney, treasurer.

Guild Advises N. Y. Members to Quit but Plans Court Fight

Outstate Managers To Remain

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—New York boxing managers were quitting the broken Boxing Guild of New York today, but the organization refused to dissolve in complete surrender.

The Guild unanimously accepted the recommendation of its executive board last night to advise members who are licensees of the New York State Athletic Commission to resign from the Guild "forthwith."

However, it also approved an announcement that the Guild will remain intact and will proceed to the New York State Supreme Court to contest the validity of the Commission's order, setting a Jan. 16 deadline for all members to resign or lose their licenses.

Of the 69 members of the Guild, it was estimated that about 35 per cent are not licensed in New York. Presumably a nucleus of about 15 or 20 will remain to keep the franchise and guard the treasury, estimated at over $10,000.

According to Murray Frank, the Guild attorney, an unincorporated body, such as the Guild, can exist legally with "seven or more members."

In recommending the members resign, the Guild's typewritten statement said it was "fully aware of the irreparable damage that would be imposed upon the licensees who are members of the Guild if their licenses were revoked, and of the valuable contracts existing between the promoters and their sponsors."

Managers Who Quit.

Cus D'Amato, acting president of the Guild and manager of Floyd Patterson, heavyweight contender, wouldn't say if he planned to resign. Other managers were not so reluctant.

Willie Ketchum, manager of ex-lightweight champ Jimmy Carter; Bobby Gleason, manager of heavyweight Nino Valdes; Hymie Wallman, former acting president of the Guild, and veteran managers Eddie Walker, Jimmy DeAngelo and Cy Ciri (Garmine Fiore's manager) said they were quitting the Guild.

A stack of affidavits was expected to be on the desk of Julius Helfand, Commission chairman, before the Monday deadline. The resignations of Al Weill, manager of heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, and Chick Wergeles, his partner, already had been filed by wire.

Frank admitted the only way he could force a court test on Helfand's ruling would be if at least one member and manager resigned. Helfand had his license revoked.

"I challenged Helfand to prove his charges," said Frank. Bill Daly, a member of the New York Guild and secretary-treasurer of the parent International Boxing Club, said he was not resigning. Daly, under fire by the commissioner for his alleged "grounding" of welterweight Vince Martinez, has no New York license.

Daly arrived shortly after the 15-minute meeting to call on the Guild "the greatest organization in the world."

Max Wyman, New York Guild president; Charlie Bauer, secretary-treasurer, and Andy Niederreiter, recording secretary, also are not licensed in New York. Wyman has been ill for several months and has not been active.

The parent I.B.C. and its various affiliates have been taking it on the chin since Helfand set the deadline for all members of the New York branch to resign or lose their licenses.

Wave of Resignations.

A wave of resignations hit the western New York Guild, an 85-member organization with headquarters at Buffalo. Johnny DeJohn and Joe Negro, co-managers of welterweight champion, Carmen Basilio, said in Syracuse they would pay no more guild dues. Mike Scanlan, manager of Joey Giambra, a middleweight contender, said he, too, was out. Other resignations quickly followed.

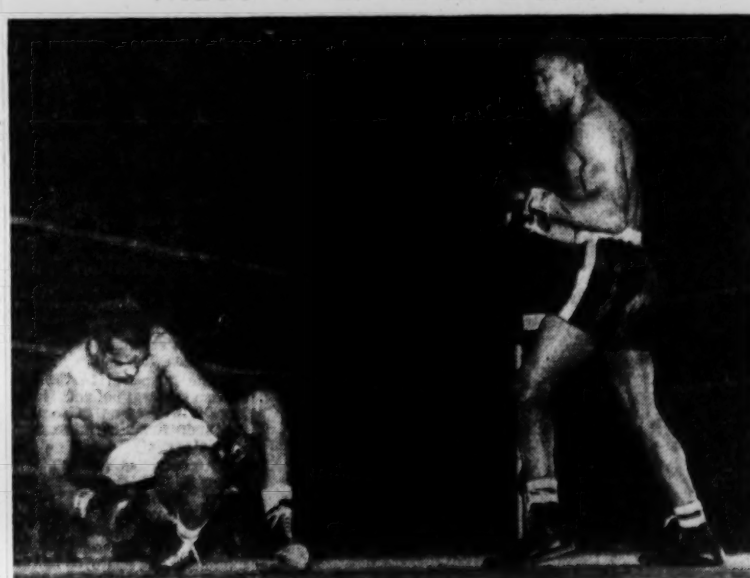

The International Guild, two of its officers and the Cleveland affiliate, were indicted.

Made It an Even Dozen

BOB SATTERFIELD, Chicago heavyweight, down and out in the eighth round of his bout with Johnny Holman, also of Chicago, at the Stadium. It was the twelfth time in his long and erratic career that Satterfield had been knocked out.

Tuesday by a federal grand jury in Cleveland on charges of boycotting and other violations of the Sherman anti-trust act.

While the Guild crumbled, various state athletic commissions gave out with their "Sunday punch."

Chairman Jim Crowley, Commissioners Alfred Klein and Paul Sullivan and John Saunders, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission, met with Helfand yesterday to assure him of their "complete co-operation." Crowley said he would urge the National Boxing Association at its executive meeting at Chicago next weekend to back up New York.

Michigan swung solidly behind Helfand yesterday when Commissioner Floyd Stevens revealed he had written Helfand he would urge the N.B.A. to join "in this or any movement which do preserve the sport's integrity and ease out the evil influences such as have been uncovered."

If New York bans the Guild and suspends those who do not resign, we will go along and suspend them also. Further, we will permit any boxing show or set of shows to come into Michigan which do not conform to all standards of our concept of the sport."

Maryland, Minnesota, Ohio, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and other state groups already had supported Helfand in various statements. California set a Jan. 25 meeting to consider banning the Guild.

It was the action of Gov. McKeldin of Maryland backing up Helfand by "requesting" his athletic commission to reverse itself on permitting the Monday night televised fights to move to Baltimore, effective Jan. 23, that helped break the Guild.

Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, threw the crusher when he sided with Helfand against the Guild and announced he would continue to operate in New York.

Satterfield Is Kayoed for Twelfth Time

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP)—Bob Satterfield's chin got in his way again last night, keeping him once more from crossing the threshold to heavyweight title competition.

Johnny Holman, a hulking 201-pounder with the reach of an octopus, catapulted three long rights to Satterfield's sensitive button.

Three times Satterfield, outweighed by 17 pounds, fell like someone yelled "timber!" He went down for a nine count in the second round of the nationally televised fight at Chicago Stadium, for eight in the third and finally the scheduled 10-round bout was stopped in the eighth.

Holman's right in the eighth flattened the 13-5 favorite. But Satterfield staggered up just at the count of 10 with eight seconds to go before the bell.

Referee Bernie Weissman stopped it, giving Holman a technical knockout.

Satterfield, at 32, was being hoisted as bait for heavyweight champion, Rocky Marciano. But all that appeared vanished now and the unpredictable fighter has returned to the also-ran class.

The most that can be said of Satterfield is that he provides a token of excitement in his bouts. He has scored 30 knockouts but has been kayoed 12 times. Just when he appears to be going places with a string of knockouts, someone finds his chin and out go the lights.

Holman, who had been clobbered by Satterfield twice before, showed some finesse with a left jab, something that he only recently developed. It seemed to have bewildered Satterfield.

Since being handled by Trainer Angelo Dundee, Holman, who is 28, has a kyo list that includes besides Satterfield, Ezzard Charles, Cesar Brion and Boardwalk Billy Smith.

The International Boxing Club has promised him a Feb. 17 date in Madison Square Garden against Nino Valdes or the winner of the Feb. 3 scrap between Bob Baker and Hurricane Jackson.

A crowd of 3508 paid $8651 to sit in on last night's fight. Satterfield said: "I was over-anxious and I felt slow."

Interested in Profit.

Dowie reviewed the four-year history of Carling-sponsored events in Cleveland and Boston, noting that the tournament was held jointly with the Tournament Sponsors Association championships at the Charles River course in Boston last year.

Charles River had had the bad luck, he noted, of having had its clubhouse destroyed by fire and was interested in making money.

Because of its extensive building program the prospect of sharing in a profit undoubtedly was attractive to Sunset at this time. The district association and the host club stand to share in any profit made on the event, a Carling representative said.

Bob Carling, the company's advertising manager, who has been close to the golf promotions, said the tournament with its first prize of $5000 and total money of $25,000 is certain to have a good field. It fits into the P.G.A. schedule between a $25,000 event at Fort Worth and another at Kansas City, all coming before the proposed $100,000 competition in late May at Dallas.

Jim Fogarty, Sunset pro, predicted the touring tour would find Sunset more difficult than when Hogan won there but he expected them to score it about as well as they did on that occasion 10 years ago. Sunset's course measures about 6500 yards and has a par of 34-38-72.

Golf Pros Here May Drop Women's Tourney To Support $25,000 Event

St. Louis is back on the major professional golf circuit but in the process it may lose a women's pro golf tournament that filled the void the last two years.

Sunset Country Club yesterday was announced as host for the $25,000 tournament to be sponsored here by the St. Louis District Golf Association and Carling Brewing Co. The dates will be May 10-13 for the 72-hole competition.

"I'm very enthusiastic," said Hardin, who had waged a losing battle over several years in tournament promotion efforts. "The threat of having a 'loser' has been removed."

Basilio to Box Saxton, Feb. 15

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (AP)—Carmen Basilio will defend his welterweight crown against former champion, Johnny Saxton, at Chicago Stadium, Feb. 15.

The nationally televised 15-round title scrap, with the Chicago area blacked out, was approved last night by the Illinois Athletic Commission.

The commission, however, said that Saxton must sign his own contract for the fight in preference to his reported manager, Blinky Palermo, who has been under fire from the New York State Athletic Commission.

Saxton lost his title to Tony De Marco, who in turn was defeated by Basilio.

The International Boxing Club also announced the signing of Cisco Andrade of Los Angeles and Jimmy Carter of New York for a 10-round televised lightweight bout at Chicago stadium on Feb. 1.

Moberly Home String

Moberly's Greyhounds, national champions of junior college basketball for two straight seasons, will risk a 21-game string of home court victories tomorrow night against the St. Louis University freshmen.

The Greyhounds haven't been beaten on their own floor since Feb. 19, 1954.

Moberly's 82-51 victory over Centralia, Ill., last Friday was the fifth in a row for the Greyhounds.

Normandy Swimmers Win.

Normandy High swimmers defeated Beaumont, 45-32. Among the top performances were Terry Yates' time of 1:12.7 in the 100-yard breaststroke and Dale Sigmund's 1:00.8 in the 100-yard freestyle. Both are on the Normandy team.

getting too many shots—he took nine—but Big Gus also stopped the Bears from following through on their missed efforts by picking the hall off the backboard.

With Doss and the harassing SIU guards, Capt. Joe Johnson and Richard Blythe—preventing the Bears from too many layups it was necessary for Cristal, Jim Barton and Art Borchers to do most of their shooting from outside. That they did just often enough to keep the Salukis from catching up once the Bears were on their way on goals by Cristal and Barton.

Bears Lead at Half.

Southern Illinois went through seven minutes 39 seconds before it scored from scrimmage. Johnson hitting a jump shot to put the Salukis on the short end of a 10-6 score. At the half, SIU trailed 30-19.

The Bears' edge of 11 points soon wilted in the second half until the Salukis were only three away at 42-45 when Gordon Lambert tallied with 4:27 to go. Shortly after that of eagle-eye Barton dropped in two free throws, then another and when Jim Paul sank a fielder the Bears were in front, 50-42. There they stayed.

Washington, known for its good defense, used a switching man-to-man combination against SIU and neither team left the middle open for long. The Bears, who scored several times on slick passes, used their speed to break up SIU's pattern plays.

Cristal's 22 points led both teams, but Barton had 17 and Borchers 11 for Washington and Doss' nine points were second only to Warren Talley's 11 as the top SIU scorer.

eventually kill, or swallow, the N.A.A.

Effective next year, the basketball season will start Oct. 15 instead of Nov. 1, and spring practice was abolished.

The convention tightened to some extent its recruiting rules, but another proposal to limit the number of visits by an athlete to a campus to one was withdrawn for further study. This will provide some fodder for debate next year.

Van Leer Proposal Loses.

Col. Blake Van Leer of Georgia Tech attempted a parliamentary move to remove the N.C.A.A. out of the recruiting field entirely. He argued that the matter was "so complicated" it defied enforcement by the N.C.A.A. But his amendment was ruled out of order by the re-elected president of the N.C.A.A., Clarence P. (Pop) Houston of Tufts University.

The infractions committee reported that 25 schools are presently under investigation for 14 offenses in the area of recruiting. Neither the identity of the schools nor the alleged infractions was divulged. Frank N. Gardner of Drake, the chairman, said that in all 77 cases were dealt with by the committee in 1955.

The continued probation of Miami of Florida until the next convention was ratified without debate. The school has been under fire for several alleged violations, including a loan fund for students, athletes particularly.

The N.C.A.A. voted to bar its coaches and officials from functioning in high school all-star football and basketball events, effective Sept. 1, 1956. Stadium and facilities also were denied such promoters unless special permission was granted by governing high school organizations.

Athletes who compete in the 1956 Olympic Games will not have their eligibility endangered.

The Olympic Games fund was enriched $260,292 via contributions from N.C.A.A. members, including $34,300 collected on tickets from the recent Rose Bowl game.

Perez Defeats Espinosa, Keeps Flyweight Title

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 12 (AP)—Pascual Perez, who looks more like a jockey than a fighter, still was in possession of the world flyweight title today after turning back the challenge of the Philippines' Leo Espinosa.

The little Argentine, standing under 5 feet and weighing only 107½ pounds, pounded out a 15-round decision last night before a sellout Luna Park crowd of more than 25,000 in the second defense of his title to remain undefeated in 26 professional fights. Espinosa weighed 111½.

Perez cut Espinosa under the left eye in the third round and had him down for a count of four in the ninth. Blood from the wound seemed to bother the Filipino as it flowed freely at intervals, but a boxing commission physician said the cut was of little importance.

Espinosa got up in the ninth after being floored with a stinging left and was receiving still more punishment when the bell ended the round. The pace, fast through the first 10 rounds, was slow through the last five as Espinosa concentrated on trying to put across a knockout punch. But he was outclassed by the fast moving Perez.

Frankie Albert New 49er Coach

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12 (UP)—Frankie Albert, the former all-America player from Stanford and one-time professional star, today was named head coach of the San Francisco Forty-niners. He replaces Norman (Red) Strader, fired a month ago after a dismal 3-9 National Football League season.

Albert served the Forty-niners as an assistant coach last season—his baptism as a football coach. However, he sat out a good part of the season when he was stricken with pneumonia.

Marion Says Sox Will Be Stronger, Won't Predict Pennant

Aparicio And Doby Add Punch

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 (UP)—Manager Marty Marion said today his 1956 Chicago White Sox would be a better ball club, but he predicted only that the team would finish "in the first division."

"A year ago I predicted we'd win the pennant and we missed by five or five and a half games," he said. "This year I'm just going to say we'll finish in the first division and the whole American League race will be a tight one, just like it was last year."

Marion said the White Sox would be better because Larry Doby would furnish left-handed power hitting, Luis Aparicio would do a commendable job at shortstop and the team would have a better bench.

"We're right at the period where we've got to get rid of ball players, not get them," Marion said. "You can only carry 25 players, and we've got two bonus players, so we'll have to cut down to 23 for the American League race."

"Guys like (John) Phillips, (Bob) Nieman, (Cal) Abrams and some others you'd like to keep as pinch-hitters, but I want to carry 11 pitchers and three catchers, and with that limit, it makes it difficult to pick a club."

"We'll be about the same except for Doby and Aparicio. Doby will give us added punch and we'll have more left-handed hitting power. Last year we had good right-handed power, but no punch on the left side outside of (Nellie) Fox and (Jim) Rivera. And Rivera when he was hot he was real hot and when he was cold, you could shoot him.

"Aparicio can run real well, and he's got a great arm, and he'll range farther than our shortstop last year. What he'll hit I don't know, but he hit well in the two leagues he played in in the States. Don't underestimate Aparicio. He might hit better than you think he will."

"Our main competition will come from the Yankees as usual," he said, "but I don't think Cleveland will be any tougher than it was last year, and I felt last year any time we had Doby out of there we could beat them, and now we've got Doby."

Stenographer Plans Dictation In Silver Skates Carnival

By Neal Russo.

Barbara Marchetti DeSchepper, an attractive stenographer who dictated to the rest of the women's field here from 1950 to 1952, will try for her fourth Southwest Open title in the Silver Skates Carnival at the Arena Sunday afternoon.

Kept out of last year's meet at the last minute because of an operation, Mrs. DeSchepper recuperated in time to add two more big titles to her long list—the national indoor and the North American indoor. A powerful skater who paces herself extremely well and whizzes along as soon as she decides to take off from the pack, Mrs. DeSchepper of Detroit probably will get her chief opposition from another Detroit entrant—Jeanie Robinson, also a topnotcher nationally.

Pat Gibson, University of Wisconsin student who is far more highly regarded in outdoor meets, will not defend her Southwest title in the 24-race program starting at 2 o'clock. The meet again is being sponsored by the Post-Dispatch and is under the director of the Missouri Skating Association.

Husband Enters Also. There will be a husband-wife combination in senior competition, for Omer DeSchepper, Barbara's husband, also has entered. A good distance man, DeSchepper should have his hands full against the strongest senior men's field in years.

Besides the California trio of Stan Fail, defending champion; Bill Disney and Dick Hunt, there are Chicago's Jim Campbell, 1953 champion; Billy Stoner, Saginaw, Mich., standout who races the 440 in track at Michigan State; Frank Till, St. Louis and Missouri titleholder; and Harry Montell, up-and-coming St. Louisan.

Fail, Disney and Hunt sharpened up in a long workout at the Arena last night. Disney, partner in a rug cleaning business in Pasadena, is fresh from a second-place finish in the tough two-mile event on the Champion of Champions program Monday at Madison Square Garden.

Small (5-foot-7) and agile Disney passed Bob Olson, another Californian who took the Silver Skates crown here in 1954, on the last turn to become runner-up. Olson, unable to enter Sunday's meet because he had to return to classes at Brigham Young, took third.

Sixth at New York was Till, who paced the field in the early stages.

"Arnold Ullrich of Yonkers, N.Y., who won the race in record time last year, broke with 27 laps to go in the 32-lap race," Till said. "He was caught six laps later, then broke again with 17 laps left and was caught next with nine to go."

Ken Lebell of Lake Placid was first; Ray Blum, Nutley, N.J., a former Olympic team member, took fifth in the eight-lap race.

Further workouts are set for tonight at the Winter Garden— from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock. Time trials in some closed divisions also will be held. Final practice will be tomorrow from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Arena.

Donna Lake, 9 years old and one of the better scorers in the midget racing, suffered a fracture of her right arm when she fell in a race last night and will be unable to compete Sunday.

In addition to solo skaters Gladys Jacobs of Chicago and Tommy Weirich of Colorado Springs, a duet, is being lined for the figure skating feature numbers between races.

Woman Bowler Picks The 'Double Pinochle'

The split sometimes known as "double pinochle," consisting of pins No. 4, 6, 7 and 10, was picked by Mrs. Ann Gebel during the Southwest Women's League at Palace Bowl Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Gebel, who carries a 156 average, picked the extremely difficult shot in the first game and almost did it in the third game, getting the 6, 7 and 10.

Garagiola Passes to Buck At Wagner Award Dinner

The man in the dark suit at the head table took an extra-long look at the shiny bowling trophies almost within reach of his long arms. Not so many years ago he was working in the brake department of the same plant in his same neighborhood before going off to launch a very brief career as a pitcher in the low minors.

His name? Don Carter of the Budweisers. The place? the cafeteria of Wagner Electric. The event? the annual athletic awards dinner.

Carter, two-time national match-game bowling champion, shared the guest table with his wife, LaVerne, a star bowler herself; Fred Johnston, veteran St. Louis bowling figure; Joe Medwick, the former Cardinal standout; Jim Fogarty, professional at Sunset Country Club; Frank Crespi, former Cardinal and now a Cardinal scout, and Les Bever, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. Industrial Athletic Association.

Jack Buck, a last-minute substitute for Joe Garagiola as main speaker last night, commented: "This isn't the first time anyone pinch-hit for Joe; he batted only .250, you know."

Hawks Seek First Victory Over Syracuse

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 12.—The St. Louis Hawks will be seeking their first victory of the season over the champion Syracuse Nationals when the teams meet here tonight in an NBA game in which the home club will be trying to snap a four-game losing streak.

Not since the night of Jan. 2, when Syracuse edged the Hawks in an 84-82 thriller at St. Louis, have the Hawks played off champions of last spring being able to win. They've lost in succession to Philadelphia in one point, to Boston and Minneapolis twice.

The Hawks are in the midst of a five-game trip that started Sunday with a victory at Fort Wayne and continued Tuesday in an overtime loss at Philadelphia after St. Louis had a 13-point lead with less than six minutes of regulation play remaining.

Syracuse has defeated the Hawks in each of three previous meetings this season but St. Louis this week has been strengthened by the acquisition of Jack Coleman and Jack McMahon from Rochester. Dick Ricketts went to the Royals in the big deal.

The Hawks fell into the cellar of the Western Division last night when the Minneapolis Lakers defeated the Boston Celtics, 114-110, and moved out of last position into third place.

DHOBI SESSION

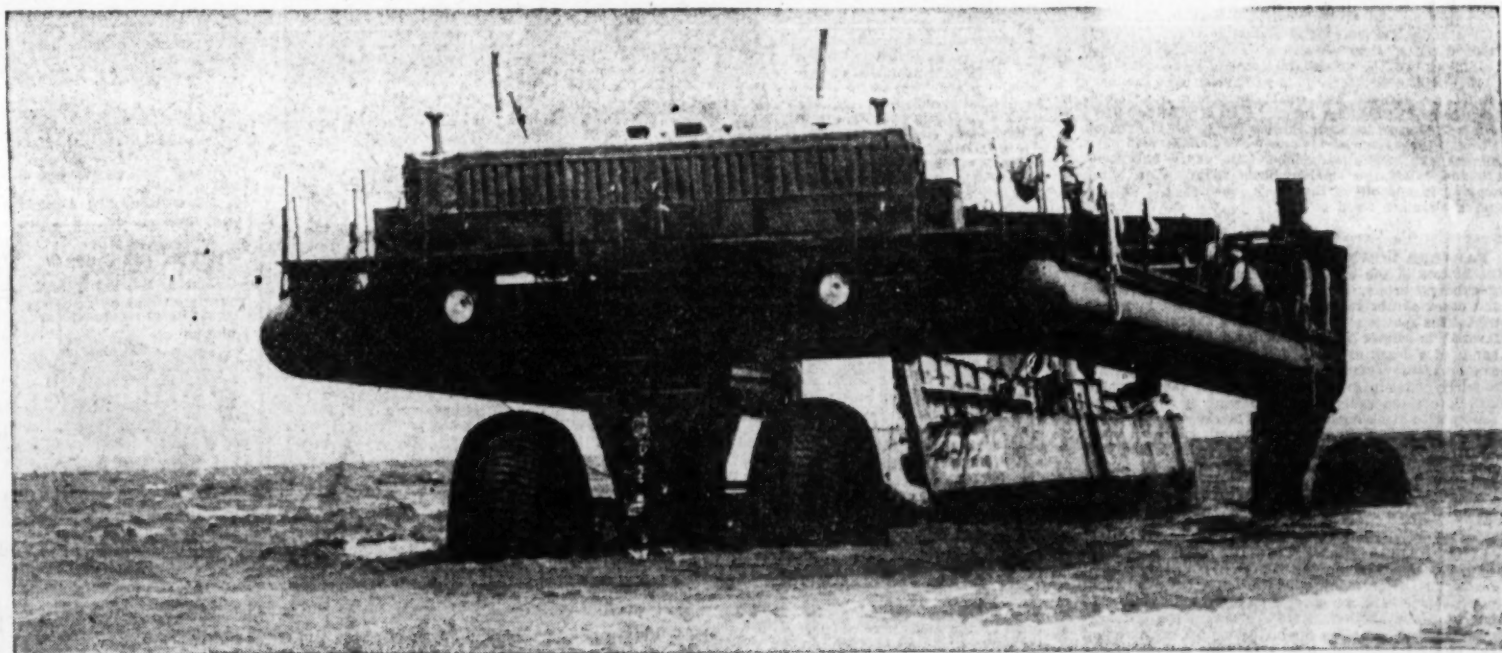

Everyday scene in Bombay as members of the Dhobi caste—India's traditional washermen—scrub articles of clothing by the hundred in one of the city's communal open-air laundries. Dhobi men, who have washed the garments of princes and commoners alike for centuries, are known throughout India as the people who never buy clothing. Traditionally, they wear clothes brought to them for washing. In many parts of the world, the term dhobi is synonymous with laundering.

SEA MONSTER

Emerging from the ocean like some fictional sea monster, the Army's new landing craft retriever rambles up onto the beach near Longview, Tex. The huge, 101-ton machine, latest tool in the army's roster of salvage equipment, is able to straddle a 67-ton landing craft and pick it up from the ocean bed, securing the craft safely in its U-shaped frame. Massive vehicle was developed when Army studies showed that the majority of landing craft lost in World War II were damaged by rough seas, not by enemy action. The unit travels on tubeless tires 10 feet high and 4 feet wide, giving flotation and traction in extremely poor terrain.

STABBING VICTIM

Bracing herself against the pain of her wound, Mrs. Catherine Nesenjuk is carried to an ambulance by New York police officers, with the handle of an ice pick protruding from her back. Mrs. Nesenjuk, the mother of two children, was stabbed by an unknown assailant while on her way to work. In serious condition at Beekman Hospital, she told police she saw a youth of about 18 run away after the stabbing.

WESTERN SCENE

Skeletons of sunken boats, reminiscent of cattle bones bleaching in the desert wastes, lie high and dry on the exposed bed of White Rock Lake, near Dallas, Tex. Lack of rain and withdrawals to supplement the city's water supply have reduced the water level to six feet below the lake spillway.

NEW ROLE FOR WEATHERBIRD

Mrs. Stanley Sander, 8111 Myrick drive, Berkeley, examining a king-size version of the Post-Dispatch Weatherbird adorning the side of a delivery truck, where it points out top news story of the day. The Weatherbird, whose pungent comments on news events have appeared on the front page of the Post-Dispatch for nearly 55 years, steps out of the confines of his regular space and into a new career when the first of about 60 trucks bearing the new design will be on the street.

Possum Trot Farm

A Hike Down the Road
On a Winter Day

By Leonard Hall

AFTER weeks of weather far colder than is normal for mid-winter in the Ozarks, the new year began with a handful of shirt-sleeve days that made you think spring might be just over the hill. But don't worry; we aren't shedding our long-handled woollens yet awhile. It is good, though, to work outdoors without a jacket, catching up on a dozen odds and ends. We finally managed, with considerable effort, to dig a hundred-odd fencepost holes and stretch the wire for an extension of the barnlot. And believe me, we really stretched that wire, because the ratio of the cost of fence wire to the selling price of calves is about the same as that of diamonds to soft coal. We're hoping the drouth breaks so we can get back again to planting multiflora rose hedges for fencing. Nevertheless, when the fence was finished and several new gates hung, we brought in the summer calves to wean. And then were kept awake for a couple of nights by their bawling and that of the old cows which resented being separated from their youngsters. But both cows and calves soon settle down to their new routine. The calves start eating their daily ration of grain; the cows, relieved of feeding these big 450-pound youngsters, soon begin putting on weight and building up stamina for the next round of calving. Three more new calves arrived during the mild spell and now there probably will be no more until early February when a whole flock arrive at one time. And we decide we're lucky, for one night the cold clamps down again and we wake to find the thermometer standing at its favorite Bellevue Valley reading of 10 degrees.

ON ONE of the warm weekends we managed a hike down our county road, up the lane and back through the deserted fields of the White place where from the high ground we have a wonderful view southward over the entire valley. These walks with no definite objective come all too seldom, for they are one of the real delights of a country existence. And this winter, far from having to worry about mud, snow and ice, we go dry shod. The country lanes, in fact, are dusty and one must exercise extreme care not to toss a match or lighted cigarette into the clinder-dry grass at the roadside. I think we enjoy most our walks where every step of the way is familiar, so that we know the things to look for. Just outside the garden fence, for example, is a raggedy thicket which we often talk about cleaning up and eliminating. Yet here in the brush piles and coral berry and cedars is cover for birds and wildlife. Here we can always start a cottontail rabbit or two, the potential parents of more cottontails which will undoubtedly help us harvest next summer's vegetable garden. Yet what fun would a vegetable garden be if it couldn't support a bit of wildlife? Here one of the mockingbirds finds a secure place to sleep through the winter nights and we're delighted to have him, though he is a tremendous bully at the bird feeders and sends the smaller birds flying. And here, hopping in and out of the brush piles, we can always find a Carolina wren or two.

FARTHER DOWN THE ROAD it curves steeply to the bottom of the hill and here is another thicket of blackberry briars, hawthorn, buckthorn, gooseberry and other shrubs surrounding a magnificent burr oak tree. This spot is a year-around bird haven, especially favored in winter by the cardinals which collect in flocks of a dozen or more. This is one spot where we can be fairly certain to find the towhee or chewink, a fairly common member of the finch family which still is not too well known. Chewink is a handsome fellow with black head and back, bright red eye, white breast with rusty sides and white tail spots. It stays with us the year around, so I suppose the reason it is not more commonly known is that it is almost always in fairly dense under-cover, often at the edge of the woods.

THIS HALF-ACRE OF THICKET which runs away into the woods along the limestone bluff is also a favorite spot for many other birds. A covey of quail often comes here for cover and to feed on berries of one kind and another. Here are always the slate-colored juncos and often the handsome fox sparrow and the smaller field and song sparrows. A pair of fox squirrels range this area, first harvesting the hickory nuts and then probably helping clean up the big pods of the honey locust. Groundhogs den in the steep bluff, though they're in hibernation, now. But in the sandy ditches along the lane we find tracks of cottontail and fox, and in the higher ground we find the small circular holes dug by the skunk as it prospects for insects or succulent roots in the upper soil. Often on cold days, meadow larks gather in flocks of 100 or more in the alfalfa field which flanks the creek. And here in a giant dead white oak we can count on seeing several crows perched like sentinels. A beautiful marsh hawk hunts this valley and when we come to the creek, there's almost certain to be a solitary kingfisher perched on the cable which supports the water gap. This is his permanent hunting stand, for he has been here in practically every month of the 10 years we've been at Possum Trot; that is to say, he or one of his relatives.

THERE ARE, OF COURSE, few growing things to see in January. Yet we enjoy the birds—downy and hairy and red-bellied woodpeckers, flickers, the occasional big pileated which sends its cry ringing across the valley. Now and then we'll surprise a pair of morning doves which forget to go south—or a migrant shrike or small sparrow hawk. On sunny days there are always bluebirds and, in late afternoon, the flocks of robins flying westward, high overhead, to their roosting place in the timbered hills. The winter afternoons are always too short for our small expeditions—and I suspect one reason we enjoy them is that there is so little activity and so few things to see. It is the countryside at its simplest and most peaceful, resting for the busy season of growth that lies ahead.

Duck in Wine Sauce Is a Taste Treat

It's Also Good Roasted, or Braised With Cherries; Here Are Recipes

By Hoyt Alden

DID you know that most of the ducks that people eat in this country come from Long Island where, for some reason, duck raisers raise about $10,000,000 worth of ducks a year, or roughly, 30,000,000 pounds.

With that interesting thought in mind, we will proceed to the cooking data. Whereas some people prefer to cook duck at a high temperature, the people who raise the ducks have done considerable research into the matter and they say that there are a number of advantages in roasting a bird at 325 degrees because at this heat you'll have less shrinkage, extra-juicy meat and no oven splattering of fat. The duck is a very obese bird, you know.

What we're leading up to mainly is the fact that one of the reasons more people don't eat more ducks is that they don't know much about them. Duck meat is all dark, and it is well balanced in protein and fat. It is also high in calcium, potassium and iron and it contains a number of the better and more influential vitamins. A duck isn't hard to prepare. All you have to do is decide what you're going to do with it, i.e., braise it, roast it, broil it, etc., and then follow directions. Preparing a duck for cooking differs from preparing a chicken in a few small details.

For instance, you push the neck skin back and then cut off the wing tips. You'll have to remove the pin feathers with tweezers. Then wash the duck well inside and out with cold water, and then dry it carefully. What you do next depends on how you're going to cook it. If you're going to roast it, you stuff it. If you're going to braise it, you cut it in quarters. If you're going to steam it or broil it, you cut it in small pieces.

DUCK in wine sauce isn't too difficult, and at the same time it is delicious. It's a good way to find out how good duck can be.

Remove the skin and fat from a five-pound duck and cut it into serving-size pieces. Take the skin and fat and put it with the giblets and wing tips in a saucepan along with two cups of water and a half teaspoon of salt. Let them cook, covered, for about 40 minutes. Back to the duck.

ONE OF THE REASONS MORE PEOPLE DON'T EAT MORE DUCKS IS THAT THEY DON'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT THEM.

Melt two tablespoons of duck fat in a big frying pan and brown the pieces of duck over a moderate fire. Then put the duck in a nine-inch casserole. Mince a half clove of garlic and put it in the fat left in the skillet and cook it for one minute. Then stir in a couple of tablespoons of flour. Then add two cups of red wine, eight sliced mushrooms, two sprigs of chopped parsley, a small bay leaf, an eighth of a teaspoon of thyme and a teaspoon of salt. Bring it to a boil and stir it until it thickens. Cut up the giblets and add them.

Now peel eight small white onions and put them in the casserole with the duck. Peel eight small carrots and do the same with them. Then pour in the sauce, cover the casserole and cook in a moderate oven until everything is tender which will take from an hour to an hour and a half.

ROASTING a duck is somewhat different from roasting a chicken. You put the duck, breast side up, in a shallow baking pan; one not more than three inches deep. You don't cover it, you don't baste it. Also, contrary to what you may have heard, you don't prick the skin. A duck that weighs three and a half to five pounds should cook 30 to 35 minutes per pound at 325 degrees to get it well done through.

If you want to roast a duck unstuffed, put a few celery leaves and a few slices of onion in the bird, just for flavor, and throw them out when it's done. If you want a stuffed duck, here's a mighty salubrious mixture.

Cook a cup of long grain rice until it's tender but not too soft. Melt a couple of tablespoons of fat in a frying pan and cook therein a half cup of diced onions until tender. Add a half teaspoon each of salt and celery salt.

Now cut a cup of dried apricots in narrow strips. Combine the rice, the onions and the apricots, mix them thoroughly and stuff the bird, but not too tightly. Roast according to size and serve him up.

MOST people, when they think of duck, think of roast duck. Well, after they've tried braised duck, they usually quit thinking about roast duck and go around thinking about braised duck.

To braise it, cut it in quarters, place it skin down on a rack in a shallow pan and roast it in a slow oven for an hour. Meanwhile cook the giblets and prepare the sauce you're going to serve with the bird. After an hour, transfer the bird to a covered pan, pour the sauce over it, cover it and continue baking until the bird is tender.

A good sauce is black cherry sauce. Get a tablespoon of fat from the pan the giblets are cooking in, and put the fat in a saucepan. Add a tablespoon of minced onion and cook it over a low heat for three minutes. Then add a cup and a half of the broth from the giblet pan, a half teaspoon of salt, a bay leaf and an eighth of a teaspoon of marjoram.

Drain a number two can of black cherries. Combine a half cup of cherry juice with two tablespoons of cornstarch. Stir this into the hot broth. Cook, stirring, until the sauce thickens and boils. Take out the bay leaf and put in the cherries. Heat it all thoroughly and add it to the duck when it is ready for the oven.

Why Child Grows Up
A Stranger

By Angelo Pairi

TO KNOW people requires close association with them and, as children are people—important people—to know them it is necessary to live close to them. When both parents work outside the house and the children are cared for by others, unless the father and mother make a special point of giving all the time possible to learning about the children, they are more than likely to discover, to their dismay, that they are strangers to each other.

"When I get home at night after a day's work, I don't feel like getting down on the floor to play with the children. All I want to do is get into comfortable clothes, put on my slippers and rest." Of course.

WHILE PARENTS work and rest, the children grow—and growth means change. This process goes on year after year and it is not surprising to anyone but the parents that the children look upon them as outsiders. Having lived outside their children's lives, they are strangers.

"If we did not work, where would the money come from to send them to college, to give them good clothes and a nice home?" I wonder if it was the thought of the college education and the rest that drove the parents to live outside their home? Did they want to live in the business world because home was such a limited area for their talents? Anyway—balance the values. Do they weigh more on the side of material advantages or on the ones so precious to children—the spiritual ones of affection and understanding? How about the day when the boy looks at his father with a stranger's eyes? When the girl says, "I'm going to be off in the morning; I've a job in town."

YOU SEE, to weave a bond of friendly intimacy between parent and child, there is the necessity of closeness day by day, year in and year out. It

1. CHILDREN TEND TO PREVENT DIVORCE.
TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

Answer to Question 1.

TRUE. The Census Bureau made a survey of divorces in 22 states and came up with the following figures (in round numbers): No children, 55 per cent; one child, 22 per cent; two children, 13 per cent; three children 5 per cent; four or more, 3 per cent. This does not mean that all parents with children are necessarily happy. The question of how to rear children causes much marital discord, but couples stay together "for the sake of the children."

Answer to Question 2.

Yes, say experts. No one can foresee the enormous changes that moving from an electrical age into an atomic age will bring, but it is sure to bring undreamed-of needs for technical means. Mother is waiting at home; mother is hovering over the bed the day the fever strikes; father is on hand to cheer the good hit and brush off the bump; mother stands by on high occasions like birthdays, and father takes son along to catch the big trout that hides under the roots of the old hemlock. In good days and bad, in the ups and downs of childhood and adolescence, this Dad and Mom stand by. They can never be strangers because they have

2. WILL SEMI-SKILLED AND UNSKILLED WORKERS SOON FIND IT HARD TO OBTAIN JOBS? YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 3.

Yes, says Dr. David I. Macht as reported in New York Times. He found that Hindu physicians all agreed cobras are charmed by certain tones on the flute or musical pipes. They find some types of music attract cobras more than others. In India, children are warned not to sing when playing outside at night, lest it attract cobras. Cover Up With Felt

By Elizabeth Hillier

NO PLAIN frame is hopeless. Even if it is battered and dingy, it will take to a smart cover-up with felt, and the cover-up can come straight from the bag of tricks you know how to do.

Felt by-the-yard comes in wonderful colors, shades to fit the old picture or mirror into a new color scheme. Use a single piece of felt, cut out in the middle for small frames, or strips cut diagonally to miter at the corners for larger frames. Because felt is stretchable, it takes the shape of the frame's ridges and curves, and because it cuts to an unruffled edge, pieces can be fitted together without turning under.

Spread heavy glue evenly over the front of the frame and smooth the felt down. Then spread glue on the sides and edges of the back of the frame, USE FELT ON OLD FRAMES. Turn the felt back and smooth it down. Corner piece must be cut out in back when a single piece is used.

The Golden Complex

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

EXPERTS agree that everyone has what might be called a normal inferiority complex. If you didn't recognize your own limitations, you would be in serious trouble. Trying to overcome these limitations is one of the main sources of progress, so this has sometimes been called the Golden Complex. But Mrs. Y. can't see any treasure in hers.

SHE EXPLAINS:
"After eight years of marriage, I've decided that I'm pretty nearly a failure in life. I just don't believe in myself at all. I'm so oversensitive, so easily embarrassed, so ready to take everything personally, that I'm always in hot water. I worry for days over some trifling mistake I have made. Whenever I have to do something a little out of the daily routine—entertain guests, attend a meeting, call on a stranger, write an important letter—I get panicky."

"When I finally tackle the job, I guess I really do succeed fairly well most of the time; but I die a dozen deaths before I start. I've consulted specialists, and they tell me that I have an inferiority complex. That's like telling a cripple that he can't walk naturally. Have you ever helped him by telling him that?"

"I could be a lot happier, a lot more helpful to my husband in his profession, a lot more inspiring to my two children, if I could look out on the world in a different frame of mind. Can I cure myself?"

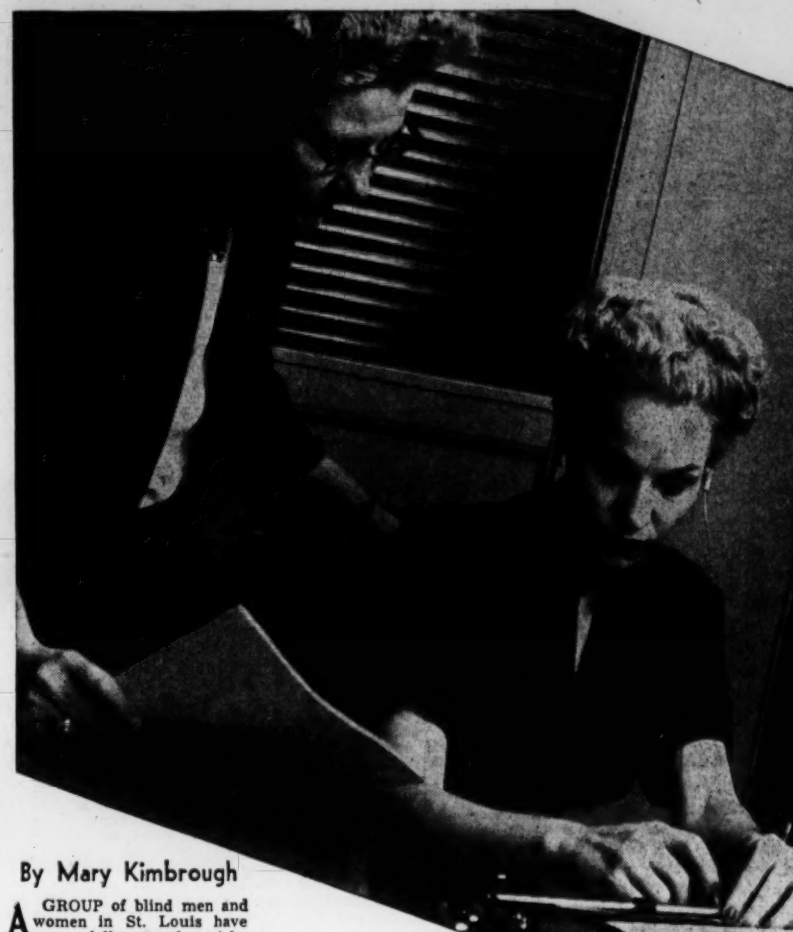

YOU MUST cure yourself, Mrs. Y. No one else can do it for you. You'd do better with a teacher (that is, a counselor), but you can start by yourself. Start by writing out your own history. Begin as far back as you can remember, and trace all the events, all the influences that you think may have contributed to your present difficulty. Do this a little at a time, so it will end by being full of detail. You'll see many of the sources of your trouble, and merely recognizing them will help in some instances.

Look around and see how many other people have some of the same difficulties. Along with this, try to build up your morale by any improvements necessary in your health, dress, hairdo, grooming, home and household efficiency.

Above all, keep track of your little achievements and successes. Dwell on these a little more. Remember, a cure takes a lot of time. But you may be surprised to find how quickly you can make some progress.

Jobs for Blind in Secretarial Field

Training Program Tailored Especially for Them Leads to Positions in Hospitals or Business Firms

By Mary Kimbrough

A GROUP of blind men and women in St. Louis have successfully carved a niche for themselves in the stenographic and secretarial field through a training and placement program tailored especially for them.

Begun four years ago in St. Louis, one of the first cities to adopt it, the specialized project has now trained 20 men and women, 14 of whom are working either in hospitals or commercial establishments. Two more are now in school and the others either are taking instruction in other fields or have married and have left the business world. None has ever been fired.

The project was the idea of Miss Madeleine Walker, district supervisor of the Bureau for the Blind, a division of the Missouri State Department of Public Health and Welfare. Searching constantly for employment fields which would be open to those with limited vision, Miss Walker suggested in 1951 that one of the city's hospitals employ a blind young man for transcribing machine work. Already an excellent typist as well as a college graduate, he typed the complex records so expertly that the hospital asked for additional blind persons to help turn out the tremendous volume of medical records and dictation by physicians.

Quick to recognize the potential for employment of the blind, Miss Walker called on Miss Gretchen Vanderschmidt, director of a secretarial school, to evolve a training program and prepare the students for the difficult medical work. Much of the program, of course, was technical, but some of it was therapeutic, combating the emotional handicap with which some of the students approached their studies.

With Miss Walker's blessing, Miss Vanderschmidt and the other instructors have not allowed themselves to become paternalistic or unduly sympathetic toward their blind students. Although they are understanding and go out of their way to make sure the blind have all the special help they need, they seldom segregate them from the sighted students and keep in mind constantly that they are being prepared for a competitive world.

"They must produce," said Miss Vanderschmidt, "because they are not accepting employment hand-outs. They are trying to prepare themselves to do as good a job as a sighted person, in a sighted business world."

"And many times they produce a far greater volume of work than does the average sighted person. In transcribing machine work, writing 150 lines an hour is considered average for the normal worker. Some of these blind people can write as many as 200 or even more lines per hour. They have fewer distractions. They aren't clock-watchers. And they know they must turn out the work and turn it out well."

With their visual handicap, the blind of course, cannot transcribe from shorthand notebooks. The machine method, in which dictation is recorded on a plastic belt and the worker types the letter or record as he listens to it through earphones, is practical and fairly simple for the sightless. Their natural aptitude for it is indicated by the length of training they require. It ranges from one to nine months, according to individual ability and prior training, with the average a little over six months. Yet the sighted person usually requires from four to six months to become equally proficient.

However, the ease with which they transcribe many-syllable medical terms, make up charts, write neat letters and handle other details in a business office is the result of their vigorous training program, much of which Miss Vanderschmidt herself developed. Because such training had seldom, if ever, been offered before, she had to work it out in detail, evolving short-cuts and stressing points on which the sightless would naturally be weaker than their sighted fellow students.

PRINCIPAL hurdle was the spelling, Miss Vanderschmidt found. Most of them had studied Braille, and Braille spellings are phonetic, so their natural reaction was to spell phonetically when they sat down at a typewriter. One girl had 67 misspellings in her first letter, including "eny" for "any" because she typed the sound she heard, never having seen the word written out.

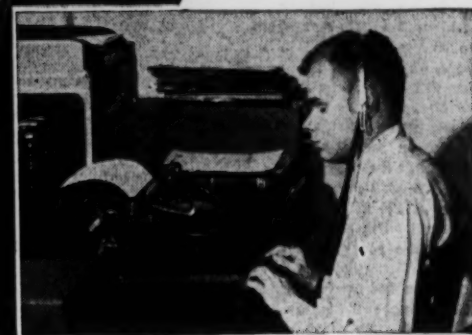

"They bring their Braille equipment with them to class," Miss Vanderschmidt said, "so we tell them all the words they have misspelled and they take them down in Braille and carry them home to study. I have tried to work out some gimmicks that will make spelling easier for them. For instance, I suggest that they look for the 'rat' in both 'separate' and 'comparative,' frequently misspelled. To differentiate between 'proceed' and 'procedure,' I pointed out that one 'e' was taken out of the word and placed at the end. They can remember that 'paper' ends in 'er,' so 'stationery' is spelled with an 'er' rather than an 'ar.'"

"They have had to study technical and medical terms, of course, so they can recognize them when they hear them on the dictation tape, but strangely enough, medical words often are more phonetic in their spelling than ordinary words. I remember one boy, hearing the words 'greater trochanter' on the tape, spelled trochanter correctly but the first word came out 'grator.'"

"The phonetic spelling of technical terms is one reason the blind are especially good in this professional field. Another is that so many hospital jobs entail only medical dictation and not additional office duties which would be difficult for a blind person, such as filling or detailed record work. However, we are giving all of them some basic business training so that they can more easily fit into a secretarial position if the opening occurs."

MISS MARY CHISM, A BLIND WORKER, COMPETITIVELY SUCCESSFUL IN THE BUSINESS WORLD, AT WORK AT WELSH BABY CARRIAGE CO.

DANNY BOYLE, ONE OF 20 BLIND MEN AND WOMEN TRAINED IN THE SPECIALIZED COURSE, IS SHOWN AT WORK AT THE BARNES HOSPITAL CLINIC.

MISS DORIS WRIGHT TRANSCRIBES MATERIAL AT ST. MARY'S INFIRMARY. PHONETIC SPELLING OF MANY TECHNICAL TERMS, AS IN BRAILLE, IS ONE REASON THE BLIND HAVE PROVED ESPECIALLY SUCCESSFUL IN TRANSCRIBING MEDICAL TERMS.

But as capable as they have shown themselves in hospital record rooms, Miss Walker is constantly looking for new openings in other fields. She has placed one as a secretary at Mutual Bank and Trust Co.; another at Welsh Baby Carriage Co.; another at Graham Paper Co. One is employed at Goodwill Industries, and the others in hospitals, Barnes, Firmin Desloge, St. Mary's Infirmary and Perry County Hospital at Perryville.

"Now that they have succeeded in these places," said Miss Walker, "we will go out and seek jobs in other firms and institutions. We try to have the jobs waiting for the men and women when they come out of training, but we don't recommend this particular field unless they prefer it and not until we have made an extensive diagnostic study, not only of their medical history but of their psychological and emotional problems as well."

Miss Vanderschmidt is well aware of those problems as she begins the training program and the work for each student is tailored not only to his physical and mental capacity and his dexterity, but to his emotional handicap as well.

"THE Bureau does a superb job of readying these people for the work, and I would say that a high per cent of our success is due to that pre-training preparation," she said. "In our own follow-up we try to help develop a right mental attitude as well as give the technical training."

"Some are terribly jittery when they come to us. One girl was making five or six spacing errors in a single line simply because she was so nervous. One was typing 90 words a minute but was making mistakes because of her speed which in turn was the result of nervousness, so we had to slow her down to 50."

"We try to create a calm and friendly attitude in the classroom and the blind boys and girls have been accepted into the camaraderie of the group. We put them right in the same class with the sighted people, unless they have some specific problem, and they follow the same general training pattern. They are going to be integrated into the business world, so they must be integrated in school."

However, Miss Vanderschmidt has taught the blind students some tricks of the typewriter to make their work easier. Tiny strips of tape, for instance, mark stops for the margin control so that if the margin keys are moved by another typist they can be easily reset by touch instead of sight. To erase a mistake—and she says their sense of touch is so acute that they can detect it immediately—they are taught a formula for backing up the machine carriage the correct number of spaces and placing the eraser in the type guide.

"One girl was employed in an office where she had to use ruled paper marked off in columns of different widths, so we taught her how to place the latter keys for the columns. "When we know a student is to be in a certain office, we ask the employer to send us any special materials he will need such as technical vocabularies or forms he will have to work with, and we give the student additional training with those."

THE program thus far has trained five men and 17 women. Some stayed on the job two or three years, then moved into more exacting work. Two have married and are no longer working.

"But the fact that they were able to achieve something, to rise above their handicap and accept a responsible job has done a great deal for them," said Miss Walker. "It has helped them become better-adjusted individuals, and we feel we have accomplished much with those who are now happily married, just as we have with those who are happy in a new career."

St. Louis Vacationers On Variety of Trips

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

AT PRESENT on the high seas aboard the Saturnia bound for Naples, Italy, are two young St. Louisans, Miss Jane Chambers Thatcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Fuz Thatcher, 30 Lenox place, and Miss Abigail Richards, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roland W. Richards, 4609 Pershing avenue. The young women will attend school in Rome for the next three months and make an extensive tour of Europe afterward.

Sailing from New York last Friday, after leaving St. Louis two days before, the travelers will land in Naples on Tuesday. There they will be met by Mr. and Mrs. Hubertus Schotten, 23 Lenox place, and their daughter, Miss Odilla Schotten, who are spending the winter in Europe. Mrs. Schotten and Mr. Thatcher are cousins. From Naples the group will drive to Rome, where Miss Thatcher and Miss Richards will attend Trinita del Monti, Mother House of the Religious of the Sacred Heart, until the end of April. The Schottens will also remain in Rome, where they are occupying an apartment until spring.

After finishing their studies at Trinita the two young women will travel through France, Belgium and England for approximately two months, visiting friends of their families throughout the trip. Miss Richards has a return reservation on the United States in June and will be met at the pier in New York by her parents. Miss Thatcher, however, may plan to stay longer in Europe.

Both Miss Thatcher and Miss Richards will be debutantes of the coming season. They were graduated from Villa Duchesne last June.

Gardiner Rogers Family Home From Trip.

MR. AND MRS. GARDINER ROGERS, 9540 Park lane, Ladue, with their two young sons, James Gardiner and William Walker, returned Monday night after spending the Christmas season in the East and South. In Merion, Pa., they visited Mr. Rogers' mother, Mrs. William W. Walker, and Mr. Walker, for Christmas week, after which they motored to Norwood, Powhatan county, Va., to spend a few days with Mrs. Rogers' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Randolph Kennon. Mrs. Kennon was the former Miss Nancy Masters Goodbar before her marriage last October.

MRS. KENNON... ENTERTAINED VISITORS.

John Jerome King (Julia Darst) departed Friday for their home in Durham, N.C. With their young daughter, Jane, the Kings were guests of Mrs. King's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Darst, 4931 Laclede avenue. Also here during the holidays was the Darsts' son, Air Force Lt. James E. Darst Jr., on leave from Fort Sumter, S.C. Lt. Darst expects to be released from duty some time next month and will return to St. Louis permanently.

Another guest of the Darst family during the holiday season was Airman Hans Thomas French of Chicago, who is the fiancé of their youngest daughter, Miss Katharine Brooke Darst.

Blanchard-Dudley Wedding Saturday.

SEVERAL St. Louisans are in New York to attend the marriage Saturday of Miss Amy Robsart Dudley to William Lyle Blanchard. The prospective bride's mother, Mrs. Clifton R. Dudley, departed before Christmas to be with her daughter until the wedding. Other St. Louisans at the wedding will be Miss Dudley's cousin, Mrs. John Kennard Wallace, and Mr. Wallace, who will give her in marriage, and their daughter, Miss Mary Kennard Wallace; Mrs. Emmet T. Carter and her daughter, Miss Virginia Bradford Carter, who will serve as bridesmaid; Mrs. Charles Adams How and Mrs. Mary Beall Kerwin.

Also in New York for the occasion will be Mr. Blanchard's parents, Capt. and Mrs. Lyle Blanchard of Ruton, Md.; Navy Capt. (ret.) and Mrs. James Rogers Dudley from Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Klein (Mrs. Kennard Eddy) from New Jersey, and Dr. and Mrs. Peter Randall of Philadelphia.

Mr. Blanchard, whose attendants have not been announced, will have his father as best man and Edward R. Padgett, Chestertown, Md., and Henry H. Tubman, Orange, N.J., as ushers.

The ceremony will be performed at 11 o'clock in the morning at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin. The reception will be given at the New York Junior League Club.

Miss Ruth Harper Married in the West.

NEWS has reached St. Louis concerning the marriage Dec. 27 in San Francisco of Miss Ruth Rita Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin H. Harper of Steele, Mo., to Dr. C. James Toohy. The former Miss Harper, sister of United States District Judge Roy W. Harper, 1 Berkeley lane, Ladue, has visited here numerous times. The ceremony, originally planned at the Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel, Calif., took place, because of the recent floods, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Campbell in San Francisco, close friends of the bride and parents of her sister-in-law, Mrs. L. M. Harper of Fort Worth, Tex. Dr. and Mrs. Toohy spent their wedding trip touring southern California. They have taken an apartment in Vallejo, Calif., where both have been living.

Mrs. George Pruitt Gimbel of New York has departed for Palm Beach, Fla., to spend the greater part of the winter after a few days' visit here with Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser of Goldfinchburg, Sappington. She will come through St. Louis again in April, on her way east, and will be the Anheusers' guest for a longer time.

Among St. Louisans who will spend mid-winter vacations in Florida are Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Thompson, 20 North Kingshighway, who will leave the end of this week for St. Petersburg. They plan to be away several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Seward, 30 Willow Hill road, Ladue, are planning a trip to Jamaica later in the winter.

The Women's Association of the Missouri Historical Society will have a meeting Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18, in the west wing of Jefferson Memorial. During the meeting, timed for 2:30 o'clock, new by-laws will be voted on. Afterward tea will be served. Mrs. Chester C. Sharp, president, will preside.

My Day

Similarity Between Coastlines

By Eleanor Roosevelt

BELLINGHAM, Wash.

I AM struck by the fact that this northwest coast is very similar to the northeastern part of our country. The coastline is indented with many bays and little islands and the evergreens grow right down to the rocks.

On our flight from Seattle to here the sun was struggling to come through, which made some rather beautiful cloud effects. I am hoping that the sun, which finally battered its way through the clouds, is going to stay with us, for we are about to drive 28 miles to Mount Vernon and it should be a beautiful drive along the water. The mountains will be very close to us on the other side.

Mount Baker can be seen on clear days from my niece's house where I am staying. The family of her husband, Daniel Walker, has long lived in Bellingham and the young people have now come back, bought an old house and done it over into a completely modern interior. It is on top of a hill with a view of the water on two sides and of the mountains on the others.

I AM FASCINATED at the way my niece and her husband have arranged their house. There are areas on the first floor for dining, for sitting around the fire, for the baby to play in, but the only separate room is the kitchen. On the second floor there are bedrooms. Their baby boy, only a few months old, is completely adorable, with pink cheeks, and chubby and fat as all babies should be.

It is rather pleasant that I am going to spend two nights with my niece even though, because of the Mount Vernon trip, I won't see much of her during the daytime.

Mount Vernon is a small community with a junior college of the same name. There are about 270 regular students in junior college courses and 1500 taking special courses, since they offer vocational training as well as academic courses. They tell me that about 65 per cent of their regular students go on to some other college or university and are here studying pre-engineering, agriculture, education and business administration.

THE DEAN, George Hodson, says that in engineering it is a question of weeding out people who would like to become engineers but who would perhaps be better as highly trained mechanics of some kind. Like so many areas of teaching, guidance, I imagine, is one of the most important things and one of the most difficult.

People are most kind when one is traveling. Mrs. Selbert Baillargeon, mother of one of my secretaries, and her two sons met us in Seattle and had flowers and fruit awaiting us. Then Mrs. Baillargeon came on Monday morning to take us to our plane.

Who in New York would be so kind to travelers passing through? I wish we sometimes were less busy there and gave a little more thought to the pleasure we might give by meeting our friends and seeing they were comfortably settled in their hotels.

Seattle is a charming city and every time I go there I see great changes, just as there are in all parts of the United States. We certainly are a growing nation.

Peart - Beebe Engagement Told in Alton

ANNOUNCEMENT was made during the Christmas holidays by Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Beebe of Canton, Ill., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Audrey Beebe of Wood River, to Leslie Peart, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Peart of Springfield.

Miss Beebe, director of Christian Education for First Baptist Church, Wood River, was graduated from Canton High School and Wheaton College.

Her fiancé, a former resident of the Alton area, attended Shurtleff College, Alton, and during his last two years at the college was organist and choir-master at First Baptist Church, Wood River. Now studying at the School of Sacred Music of Union Theological Seminary in New York City, he will leave there in February for the Philippine Islands, where he will teach for the American Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Golike of West Alton, Mo., have returned from Grand Island, N.Y., where they visited for three weeks with their son, Dr. Ralph C. Golike, and his family, and made the acquaintance of a grandson born to Dr. and Mrs. Golike after the arrival of the Crosby Golikes in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Tuetkin, 912 East Fifth Street, have announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Mary Susan, to William Robert Lorschbach, son of John L. Lorschbach, of Hardin and the late Mrs. Lorschbach.

The couple will be married Saturday, Feb. 11, in St. Patrick's Church.

Miss Tuetkin was graduated from Marquette High School in the class of 1950 and attended Ursuline Business College. She is employed in St. Louis. Mr. Lorschbach, a veteran of World

Martha Carr's

Dear Martha:

I AM a girl 18 years old and a freshman in college. For the past four months I have been going with a young man of 23. We have grown to care a lot for each other and have discussed marriage. My parents want me to complete college. Although they are very fond of this boy, they don't approve of our getting married because our family backgrounds are unlike. He was reared in a rural community and I am from the city. My father holds a high position with a firm and has always made a good income. The boy makes only a moderate salary. Although I love him, I am beginning to have doubts because of my parents' attitude. I don't know which way to turn.

Unless he wants to farm—and you wouldn't like that kind of life—I don't think the difference in backgrounds, rural versus city, would be much of an obstacle. And unless he has no ambition to progress further in his work, I don't think his "moderate" income should be a stumbling block. Most well-to-do men started out on low-paying jobs. But I can understand your parents' wish that you finish college and after all, you have known this boy only a short time to be planning marriage. Why not put those marriage discussions off for the time being? If your parents like him, go ahead and see the boy but don't rush into marriage, especially when you are beginning to have your doubts. In another year or so, you may realize he isn't the one for you at all—or by the same token, your parents may feel that he is the one. So give yourself time to make the right decision.

PLEASE HELP ME solve my problem. I am the only girl in an office with five men. I am supposed to be secretary to the boss, but all of them dictate letters to me and I handle the files. I'm glad to do that, of course, but what makes me so mad is that they expect me to run out for coffee all the time or if I go out for lunch they're always asking me to bring something back for them. Not once in the three years I've been here has any one of them offered to go out for coffee or even brought a box of candy into the office. They hardly say thank you. I don't like to make a scene but I'm tired of being an errand girl.

If the errands are interfering with your work, they certainly should stop and I think an appeal to the boss would be all that was necessary. Maybe you could suggest that you all take turns getting the coffee, agreeing to go after it one day a week if the others will go for it the other days. You don't have to be ugly about it—but neither do you have to be a doormat.

Planning a party for the small fry? Martha Carr's special leaflet, "Let's Have a Party," will suggest entertainment and refreshments for a children's party. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Self-Made Beauty

By Josephine Lowman

A BEAUTIFUL woman is self-made. She may have been born a beautiful child. She may have been a beautiful girl, but when you can say of a woman from middle age on, "Isn't she lovely?" there is always more than meets the eye.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN and good posture and fine nutrition.

SUCH A PERSON has remained acutely alive in mind and heart and body. You also can be sure that she has adapted to her daily routine all that science has to offer in skin and hair care, and has been aware of tricks in makeup, hair styling and clothes.

It is amazing how many attractive middle-aged and older women we see everywhere today. It can't be because more women are born beautiful. It is because we know so much more today about the importance of nutrition and exercise and reducing, about skin and hair care and make-up.

IT IS ALSO DUE to the fact that the standards of beauty are saner than ever before. Today attractiveness is within the reach of every woman who is willing to make the effort.

Today beauty is not dependent on perfect features or naturally curly hair. It relies on good body tone, good grooming, a clear complexion and healthy hair, on graceful posture, on the correct weight and measurements, and even more upon good health, aliveness, verve, warmth, an eager spirit, an alive mind, a love of people and of life.

These are the things I want you to keep in mind as you stick tenaciously to the eight-week self-improvement Marathon you have started.

If you have not yet joined the Marathon for figure improvement and personality growth, do so now. You may obtain the Marathon booklet by sending 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

WE are so concerned with the problems of overweight that we are inclined to forget the tall, thin woman of any age. If you are thin, I can give you advice for clothes and colors, designs and accessories.

Don't try to make your clothes a complete camouflage for your thin figure.

Choose soft fabrics in flattering colors. Handsome designs in self-color are always good, and I like bold prints and big bold dots. Floating panels, soft drapery and pleats are flattering. You can "advance" your figure through light colors. Jackets and skirts in complementary colors are very becoming, such as a charcoal gray jacket and a pale gray skirt.

Plaids worked on the bias are especially good and also look very well worked into horizontal designs.

Wide-brim hats are not always suitable but are becoming. The large soft bag, flaring gauntlet-style gloves, handsome sizes in pearl chokers, scarves, and massed beads do things for the tall, thin woman.

She Has Her Sights Set on the Met

Marlys Watters, Who Will Sing Here Sunday, Started Career in Kansas City

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. MARLYS WATTERS, beautiful and talented Missouri-born coloratura soprano who will appear in St. Louis in dinner concert in the Hotel Jefferson Gold Room at 7 p.m. Sunday, under the sponsorship of the Friends of St. Charles Borromeo Church, is a straightforward, determined young woman whose musical sights are firmly set on singing at the Met.

The winner last year of the coveted Blanche Thebom Award for young artists of operatic and concert caliber, Marlys competed with 300 contestants from all parts of the United States. In addition to the $750 prize she was rewarded with high praise from Miss Thebom, Metropolitan Opera mezzo-soprano.

"I think Marlys has an exceptionally beautiful voice," said Miss Thebom. "She has a remarkable musical maturity. Her voice is quite bigger than one expects to find in a girl of her age and experience. It is ideally suited for opera."

Born in Kansas City, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watters, Marlys decided while still in high school that she wanted to be a concert singer. She attended the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, where she received a Bachelor of Music degree and gained local fame by appearances in operas and operettas, recitals and symphonic concerts, radio and television shows.

While still in her teens she won an award over 500 contestants which gave her a weekly radio program of her own for two years. Through her "Songs You Love" over WDAF she became widely known and in 1949 when WDAF inaugurated its television programs, Marlys was the first local artist to appear and for a year had her own television series.

In addition to her continuing music studies, she studied ballet and other forms of dancing and for a time earned money for her voice lessons by fashion modeling, a field in which she might well have succeeded had she not preferred a singing career.

In 1951, Marlys came to New York to study with private teachers and the same year won a Fulbright Fellowship which gave her a year's study in Italy.

First she went to language school in Perugia and then to Milan to enroll in the opera department of the famous Giuseppe Verdi Conservatory, and work under such masters as Gina Cigna and Florenzo Tasso, formerly associated with the Metropolitan and La Scala. Before long she was giving recitals in Milan, Bergamo and elsewhere.

"That year in Italy was wonderful," the slim, dark-haired singer said. "I enjoyed living with Italian families. They did all they could to help me combine work and a good time."

RETURNING to the United States, Marlys plunged still deeper into study and for the past two years, when not singing concert dates around the country, has taken two voice and two coaching lessons a week.

To help finance her career, she sang for a while in a small night club and a year ago danced and sang in the Christmas show at the Radio City Music Hall.

"That Christmas show ran six weeks at Radio City," Marlys laughs. "In it I had to do the mambo with Santa Claus and sing 'I Saw Mommy Do the Mambo with You Know Who.' In between shows at Radio City one day I had to dash over to Carnegie Hall for the Thebom Award finals. I sang the 'Barber of Seville' aria and then dashed back to Radio City and sang 'I Saw Mommy Do the Mambo.' I'll never forget that day."

Blanche Thebom feels certain that Marlys will some day sing at the Metropolitan.

"In the meantime," says petite Marlys, "I shall have to study hard. If I ever get a chance at the Met, I want to be ready."

Tasty Tricks

When eggs or egg mixtures are held at too low temperature for too long, protein will shrink and tighten. When protein tightens, soft cosmetics will curdle, and scrambled eggs look watery.

Two reds can be worn together if they blend. True reds blend with true pinks in spite of the deeply rooted aversion to this combination. In truth, it is one of the most stunning color alliances in the world. True reds also blend with some orange-reds and some purple-reds. But orange-reds and pur-

What to Wear

Red is the Favorite

By Louise Trescott

F all colors, red is best liked. Pure red can be worn by more complexion types than any other color. Note, I say pure red—not orange-red or purple-red, but pure red.

An admirer of it asks:

"I seem to see so much red this winter, and as it has been a secret desire of mine to own a red dress, I would like your opinion. I have black hair, green eyes and a fair complexion. I am not slender. I have been told red tends to make a person look heavier. I'm just under five feet and I weigh 120. Measurements are 36-27-38. Please advise."

YOUR COLORING can take a bright true red beautifully but your measurements can't. Why don't you compromise this way? Get a navy, gray or black dress in a good basic style and add a handsome necklace and earrings in red enamel or stones, something unusual. You might try a hat, too. Also consider a red scarf. Be sure to keep gloves, bag and shoes the color of the dress. This will throw the brilliant color near your face where I am sure it will be flattering—and will do no harm to your figure.

I'm sorry I can't fulfill your heart's desire. A very deep, subdued wine red is a possibility but I am sure that is not the kind of red you covet.

THE COMBINATION of reds and pinks puzzle many, as this writer:

"I was wondering if it is correct to wear two reds together, as red and pink which I construe as a tint of the same red. Also please tell me whether stripes and plaids are worn together? Checks and prints? Checks and plaids? I have fair skin, hazel eyes, blonde hair with reddish cast. What colors are correct for me?"

TWO REDS can be worn together if they blend. True reds blend with true pinks in spite of the deeply rooted aversion to this combination. In truth, it is one of the most stunning color alliances in the world. True reds also blend with some orange-reds and some purple-reds. But orange-reds and purple-reds clash unless employed in vastly different quantities. Unfortunately combinations of this sort led to the mistaken assumption that all reds and pinks were bad. Not knowing the category of the reds you have in mind, I leave it to your judgment. Suffice to say, if you are doubtful of your reds, don't.

Stripes and plaids combine beautifully, if planned for. But it is almost impossible to pick a striped jacket and plaid skirt, let us say, at random, even if in blending colors—and find them compatible. Fabric designers plan such combinations with knowledge and skill and wonderful three-piece costumes are created from them. Unless you had such expert fabric in mind, be careful.

If checks and prints have ever been combined successfully, I have not seen it. Checks and plaids bring the same answer as stripes and plaids.

You can wear all blues and greens from light to dark, except the strongest tones, as royal blue and Kelly green. Try the dozens of fascinating colors in between, as teal, turquoise, peacock, etc. All pastels no doubt become you. Also true red. Select a basic from medium blue, navy, gray or black. Dark green could be good for the "too" and yellow, except very pale, oranges and orange-reds. Avoid browns. There may be some pleasant beige for your coloring but your choice is greater and surer among becoming colors named previously.

The Dean Speaks Up

The Journalist's Search for Truth

By Adele Starbird

A N editorial reprinted in the Mirror of Public Opinion from the New York Times, called "The Voice of a Free Press," ends with the statement that "the New York Times will still be speaking... without fear or favor, the truth as it sees it."

The late Walter Williams, while Dean of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri, wrote a creed for journalists, one clause of which states, "I believe that a journalist should write only what he believes in his heart to be true."

"The truth as it sees it," says the New York Times. "What he believes in his heart to be true," said the Dean. Both knew that nobody can be certain at all times where the truth lies. The only thing about which one can be certain are the facts. It goes without saying—or it walks without talking as a foreigner once said—that the good journalist will have all the facts and will state them accurately. But the facts of a situation and the truth about a situation are by no means identical. It is in the interpretation and arrangement of the facts that the truth lies. And at that point the process becomes subjective; the heart enters into it, and belief, "What he believes in his heart."

IN OTHER WORDS, he must be sincere. But accuracy in reporting the facts and sincerity in their interpretation are not quite enough. The journalist must have insight. How good he is depends upon how often and how nearly his innermost conviction is correct, and whether it strikes fire in the minds of his readers as being the inevitable, the inescapable truth, so that they too enter into the core of facts with its total significance.

Whenever the journalist accomplishes this illumination, this mutuality, this transference, he joins the company of creative writers; he goes beyond craftsmanship to art.

For the artist is by definition and compulsion a truth-revealer. The moment he deviates or fails, he ceases to be, for the moment, an artist; he has failed to heed the lie-detector which warns him of false writing. Or, to change the figure, he has gone forward without waiting to hear the furious ticking of his built-in Geiger counter which would insure the proximity of perilous ore.

WHAT TEMPTATIONS are peculiar to the journalist? There are four, I think.

The first is sensationalism, an exaggeration of the facts for dramatic effect. One such piece of reportage is sufficient to destroy the confidence of informed readers.

The second temptation is self-deception, or wishful thinking. As a corrective, he should have present in his mind's eye an attorney for the opposition, somebody who tear down, smacks and gibes. Jane Addams always took a member of her staff with her when she was going to make a speech about Hull House. The presence in the audience of a fellow worker who knew the facts made it impossible for Miss Addams to soar into the realm of fancy.

The third temptation is to write what the public wants to hear—a cynical form of pandering which can continue indefinitely, but not without the loss of self-respect.

The fourth and subtlest temptation is to write what he thinks it is good for the public to believe. But in the long run nothing is good for the public which is not true. The journalist is not a puppeteer, manipulating the facts of this world; to try it is the worst of blasphemies. As Alexander Miller says, the man who fears facts doesn't really believe in God.

If a journalist avoids dramatics, self-deception, pandering and doctoring, and if he listens to his Geiger counter, he is likely to arrive at the truth.

To acquire a not-too-bedroom bed, get a box-spring an upholstered back and side to look more like a couch than a bed.

My Neighbor Says:

Want something different for that ladies' lunch? Serve cold sliced turkey or chicken plus ham with French toasted cranberry sandwiches. To make the sandwiches, layer jelly, cranberry sauce between slices of white bread; dip the sandwiches in a regular French toast mixture of egg, milk, salt and sugar. Brown the sandwiches in butter and then cut into small triangles. Add a big mixed green salad to this menu, coffee and rich cookies and you'll have something food. A bowl of fresh fruit might also be in evidence for weight-watchers who eschew the cookies.

Memo to a BLONDE
By Rob Eden

CHAPTER 17

CLESSA arrived at her shop early Monday morning. Her weekend had been a nightmare and she had worried constantly about Lew. Since he walked out of her place with Sgt. Knight and Perkins on Friday, she hadn't heard from him.

Repeated calls to his apartment brought no answer. She was tempted to telephone the police and inquire about him, but didn't dare.

Clessa unlocked the shop and hurried to the office, where she opened the safe and took out her books.

Business had fallen off, and the two gardeners who had been helping on the floor were sent back to the nursery.

When Sarah came in she was surprised to find Clessa at the shop so early.

"Did you see that man across the street?" Sarah asked. "He was there all day Saturday, and he's back again this morning. Why are the police casing our shop?"

"Perhaps they're watching another store," Clessa suggested.

"Nope. He's got his eye on us," Sarah said emphatically.

Clessa sighed. "I wish they'd clean up this mess and we could get back to normal."

The telephone rang and Clessa picked it up hopefully. She wasn't disappointed. Lew was on the line.

"Listen carefully, Cles," he said. "I'm in the Baltimore lobby. I can't come to the shop and I've got to see you. Come over right away and bring 100 bucks. I need it quick."

"Where have you been?" Clessa demanded angrily. "I've worried terribly for two days. Why didn't you call?"

"I'll tell you when I see you," he replied. "Get the dough and hurry up!"

"Where have you been?" Clessa demanded angrily. "I've worried terribly for two days. Why didn't you call?"

"I'll tell you when I see you," he replied. "Get the dough and hurry up!"

Clessa lost her temper. "You talk about 100 like it was a dime," she said. "I'm pressed for money, Lew. The shop isn't doing so good, and I've got bills to pay. I can't be putting out for you all the time."

"Cless, I'm in trouble," Lew begged. "You've got to help me. Don't argue. Get the dough and scam over here."

"All right," Clessa said. She replaced the telephone. Sarah looked at her reproachfully. "It's none of my business," she said. "But I think that guy's a bum. I don't know why you keep giving him money. Let the big lug get a job."

Sarah had never been so outspoken about Lew, but Clessa was too depressed to resent it. She went to the safe and took out some bills. "I'll be back soon," she said, and left the shop.

She found Lew in a rear corner of the Baltimore lobby. He needed a shave and looked seedy. "You're a mess," Clessa told him. "What's the matter with you? Where have you been? Why didn't you answer my phone?"

"Look, Cless," Lew said contritely. "I'm in a jam. I don't dare go near my apartment nor your shop. I'm trying to shake those guys tailing me and it's almost impossible."

"What happened Friday when you left the shop with the detectives?" Clessa asked.

"Plenty. They had a search warrant for my joint. They went through it from top to bottom, trying to find something to hang me on."

"What did they find?"

"Nothing."

"Then what are you worried about? What do you care who tails you, as you say? You haven't done anything, have you?"

"No."

"Then what are you worried about? What do you care who tails you, as you say? You haven't done anything, have you?"

"No."

Clessa looked away. "No, of course not. But it's awful being tailed day and night. And those fly cops found my bookie's number on the phone pad, along with the morning line on some nags I liked. They knew right away what it meant. They phoned the vice squad from my place, gave 'em the phone number and told 'em I crack down. Then they would let me use the phone until I victors got to Artie's and practically cleaned him out. I found out where they got the tip and he's loaded for me now."

"Maybe that's a good thing," Clessa said. "Maybe you'll lay off the horses for a while. One thing's for sure, I can't keep financing your bets, Lew. I'm pinched. My checking account is sagging."

"Why don't you get a job, Lew? Quit stalling around, promising to find something and never doing anything but promising."

"Aw, don't romp on me now, Cless, when I'm so low. You got the dough with you?"

"You know I have, Lew. That's got to Artie's and I'll do almost anything you ask. You're unfair to me, Lew. Give me a break. Straighten up and we'll be married. I'm very fond of you, even if you don't deserve it."

"All right," Lew said. "I'll look for a job. I'll get cleaned up and see a couple of guys I know. Maybe they'll steer me to something."

"You mean a job, or one of the usual get-rich-quick schemes?"

"A job. I'm getting sick of this hide-and-seek stuff."

"I hope you mean that, Lew. Here is $100. And go after the job for my sake, Lew."

"Thanks, kid," he said, smiling for the first time. "I'll see you after that job. Now I gotta duck downstairs and head for the Grand Central through the tunnel. Maybe I'll shake that tail."

"Keep in touch, please," she begged. "I nearly went crazy when you didn't telephone."

He turned quickly and left her.

Cold weather is expected to continue in the St. Louis area through Saturday with little chance of precipitation to ease mid-winter drought conditions. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said. He said the mercury should vary tomorrow from about 20 to the middle 30s with little change Saturday.

An almost steady flow of cold air pushed by northerly winds has kept temperatures below seasonal levels in the southeast. Below freezing readings were recorded early today in parts of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas. A low of 41 degrees was recorded at Miami, and in contrast a pilot flying 4000 feet above the St. Louis area reported a temperature of 42 at 9 a.m. today.

Minimums in Missouri this morning ranged from 11 at Korkville to 26 at Malden, and over the nation from 10 below zero at International Falls, Minn., to 55 at Los Angeles. Yesterday's high was 85 at Thermal, Calif.

A mixture of rain, freezing rain and snow continued in the 24 hours ending early today over broad areas from Maine to western Tennessee, northern Alabama and Georgia. Falls were generally light, with the heaviest, one inch, recorded at Boston.

Lew crossed quickly to the Grand Central terminus where he went into a telephone booth and called a number.

"Blackie there?" he asked.

He waited for a short time, then spoke again. "Blackie? I got the dough. But it's getting tougher. She says business is off and she's crowded by creditors. We gotta do something. I've got a hangover like "The celebrated Miss Rosamond, a child about 11 years of age, will deliver a lecture on heads . . ."

"Mr. Breslaw will display new deceptions with six different metals, magical watches, gold boxes, silver cup, glass and silver . . ."

Another advertisement, printed 55 years later, gave the public a statement that a Mr. Fawkes would show his musical clock and a puppet show. The puppets were to act a play entitled "The False Lover."

The best trick of Mr. Fawkes was described in this manner: "He throws the cards up and causes any of them to stick against the ceiling, and the rest to fall down. Likewise he causes the whole pack to stick up to the ceiling, and calls them down by their name, one by one."

Many were the men who performed tricks in the same period as Mr. Breslaw and Mr. Fawkes. In France a magician known as Comus gained fame by producing an image over a table. This image would vanish as suddenly as it appeared. The trick is believed to have been performed with the help of mirrors.

THE EARLY TRICKS included getting rabbits out of a hat. Other tricks were performed by using boxes with false bottoms. Folding tables with handy, built-in parts were used.

Many early performers, but not all of them, wore aprons with large, baggy pockets. If the magician was quick, he could take many objects from the pockets without letting the audience see him do so.
